SMILING NIXON — President Richard M. Nixon, who spent an agonizing weekend at Camp David, Md., pondering his decision on the Watergate affair, was in a jovial mood this morning as news photographers focused on him when he came out of the White House to greet visiting West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Brandt, Nixon Begin Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon gave West German Chancellor Willy Brandt a relaxed, informal White House welcome today and they immediately began two days of talks.

Brandt drove from nearby Blair House to the south side of the White House where Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers greeted him, standing on a short red carpet.

During the first minutes of the welcome it had the trappings of a state visit, including honor guards lining the driveway and U.S. Army trumpeters, but the atmosphere was warm and relaxed.

On the morning after removal of three top aides because of the Watergate bugging case and what he acknowledged was a difficult broadcast speech to the nation, Nixon appeared to be in a cheerful mood.

He chatted with news photographers and cameramen while waiting for Brandt —who was 10 minutes late. He later joked with Brandt about the chancellor's unsuccessful fishing trip on Chesapeake Bay Monday.

While talking with Brandt, Nixon gave him a half embrace. Then, with his hand over Brandt's shoulder, they slowly walked down the driveway toward the West Wing of the White House.

As they were strolling to his office, he placed his arm around Brandt's shoulder a second time.

The President in his speech Monday night, accepting the responsibility but not the blame for Watergate, mentioned his talks with Brandt as well as his forthcoming summit conference with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, as examples of the "larger things" to which he wants to turn his attention now.

Nixon and Brandt, in addition to this morning's session, will dine together at the White House tonight and confer again Wednesday morning before the Chancellor addresses the National Press Club.

It was announced Monday that Presidential Adviser Henry A. Kissinger would meet Friday in Moscow with Soviet officials to discuss arrangements for the Brezhnev visit to Washington, which is tentatively scheduled to take place in late June. Nixon also has invited French President Georges Pompidou to meet him somewhere in the Western Hemisphere prior to the Soviet-American summit.

Nixon and Brandt were expected to discuss a whole range of measures being taken to end the cold war in Europe and deal with the Soviet Union on a more cooperative basis. The President mentioned particularly the proposed discussions with the Soviet Bloc to achieve mutual reduction of armed forces along the Iron Curtain. He said that, if successful, these would materially reduce the U.S. military budget.

He also cited other issues of critical importance, the second round of Soviet-American talks on limitation of strategic nuclear weapons, the "difficult task of maintaining peace in Southeast Asia" and the situation in the Middle East.

The Nixon-Brandt talks also are expected to deal with the President's idea for a "new Atlantic Charter," unveiled last week in a New York speech by Kissinger, and trade problems.

FBI Guards Aides' Files Following Nixon's Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI agents moved into the White House today to safeguard presidential papers in offices of three top aides to President Nixon who resigned yesterday in the Watergate case.

Government spokesmen described it as an orderly procedural step that reflected in no way on those leaving.

But White House officials said the move was decided on at a high level meeting yesterday after consultations between Elliot L. Richardson, named by Nixon to take command of the Watergate investigation and to be new attorney general, and acting White House legal counsel Leonard Garment.

"The FBI is safeguarding the files so that a precise strict procedure is established regarding access and removal of any White House papers," officials said.

Nixon fired his White House counsel John W. Dean III yesterday and accepted the resignations of his two most trusted aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

He also pledged in a televised speech to the nation "there will be no whitewash in the White House" of the Watergate affair and ordered a fresh investigation of administration involvement in the burglary and bugging of Democratic headquarters last June.

The Senate special committee investigating Watergate was summoned to meet in a closed session Wednesday and the Watergate grand jury met late this morning to discuss their separate, future courses in looking into the scandal.

In a quick development, the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution urging the President to name a special independent prosecutor to oversee the government's Watergate investigation. A similar resolution was introduced in the House.

The proposal is not binding on Nixon. The President said in his speech last night he had authorized Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor if he felt it necessary.

Nixon said in his speech last night he had authorized Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor if he felt it was necessary.

The appearance of the FBI agents at the White House itself and at the adjacent Executive Office Building was the first overt manifestation of Nixon's announced determination to get the full facts of the Watergate scandal.

The agents, wearing visitors' passes, were seen near the offices of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean. Others were posted near the mailroom of the Executive Office Building.

The White House said the FBI action was an "orderly procedure to maintain presidential papers and in no way reflects on the integrity of the departing advisers —It's a procedural step."

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, "The purpose of this procedural step is to make sure all appropriate steps are taken to oversee all files." He said the FBI was instructed to "physically protect the file," describing the move as "a strict safeguard procedure to protect all documents."

Ziegler would not say why Secret Service agents or White House police were not used.

Nixon appeared to be in a relaxed, smiling mood when he publicly welcomed West German Chancellor Willy Brandt to the White House late this morning.

That was in contrast to the noticeable tenseness he showed last night while delivering his speech.

The President told the nation he accepted full responsibility for not recognizing the gravity of the Watergate case after it broke June 17 with the arrest of five men at Democratic national headquarters with bugging equipment in their possession. He said he was misled by subordinates.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman reportedly resisted temporarily Nixon's decision that they should resign from the powerful

A Proposal To Hike Bus Fares Rejected

The Marin County Transit District board today unanimously rejected a staff recommendation that local bus fares be increased 10 cents to cover next year's expected operating deficit.

The board's staff also said the number of intracounty bus routes could be cut as another means of reducing the expected $82,000 deficit but that also was rejected.

"To reduce the number of routes at this time would be going backwards," Wornum argued, adding it was the intent of the proposed countywide general plan and previous county policy to encourage bus use and discourage auto use.

Wornum, who also serves on the Golden Gate Bridge District board from which the county contracts its bus service, suggested the board consider a tax rate increase election. His idea, suggested last month, drew no response.

Instead, the board agreed with board member Robert A. Roumiguiere to delay further discussion until July budget hearings when it will consider whether to fund the deficit out of the district's $250,000 reserve.

Supervisors Kill Merger Proposal

Plan To Consolidate Departments Axed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County Supervisors, under intense political pressure, moved swiftly today to kill the county administrator's controversial proposal to consolidate the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation.

The move came at the outset of the board's public hearing and drew a 4-to-1 vote from supervisors and sighs of relief from some members of the audience, which totaled about 150 persons.

However, supervisors agreed to spend a portion of the afternoon session discussing their own ideas or reorganizing the three departments short of full consolidation.

The board's move to scrap Administrator John F. Barrows' proposal came at the urging of Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who said "it was a mistake" to direct Barrows to develop the reorganization alone.

He said the three department heads involved — Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Planning Director Werner Von Gundell and Parks Director Pierre W. Joske — should have been included in mapping out the reorganization.

Furthermore, he said, the board failed to instruct the three department heads to meet with Barrows after the proposal was finally submitted last month.

"As a result, there is ill-will among the three departments involved, which is sadly unfortunate," Giacomini read from a prepared statement.

"As a result, we have received a phenomenal amount of public outcry on the issue, and

Aid Plan Excludes N. Viets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon sent Congress today a $2.9 billion foreign aid bill including $632 million to rebuild war-torn South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, but seeking no funds at all for North Vietnam.

Nixon described the measure which would increase current foreign aid levels by $300 million as "the absolute minimum prudent investment" needed for the free world's development and prosperity.

Nixon said in a message to the House and Senate that he was not requesting any money for North Vietnam because he said the Communists were violating the Paris cease-fire accords. He said if Hanoi adhered to the agreement he would propose American assistance for reconstruction and development in North Vietnam.

When the Vietnam peace agreement was negotiated, both sides mentioned that the United States would contribute to repairing damage caused by U.S. bombing in North Vietnam. There has been considerable opposition in Congress to any large aid plan.

The President requested $1 billion in development assistance to the world's poor nations, and $1.3 billion in military aid to friendly nations along with the $632 million "for the reconstruction effort in Indochina," other than North Vietnam.

The President insisted that the aid program was vital to America. He told Congress: "Successful development by friendly nations is important to us both economically and politically.

"Economically, many of the developing countries have energy resources and raw materials which the world will need to share in coming years. They also could represent larger markets for our exports.

"Politically, we cannot achieve some of our goals without their support. Moreover, if essential needs of any people go entirely unsatisfied their frustrations only breed violence and international instability.

"Thus we should recognize that we assist them out of self-interest as well as humanitarian motives."

No foreign aid authorization bill passed Congress last year because of a dispute between the Senate and House over proposed riders to legislate an end to the Vietnam war and to impose other restrictions on the use of the assistance funds.

Nixon said passage of a bill this year is vital to the international "Nixon Doctrine of Shared Responsibilities."

Water Board Votes Freeze

By GEORGE NEVIN

An immediate halt to all new water connections in the Marin Municipal Water District was unanimously ordered yesterday by district directors. (Another water district story, page 17.)

At the same time, board members agreed to push ahead with seeking new sources of water to head off a threatened shortage, but said it may be years before these sources can be tapped.

Citing an imminent crisis in water supply, directors enacted a temporary moratorium on new water connections of any size and promised a permanent freeze to replace it in a few weeks.

The door was left open, however, to granting exceptions via variance procedure.

Director Jack R. Felson said possible exemptions might be given to single-family homes to be built by their owners, low and moderate cost housing and those projects on which planning now is under way.

An overflow crowd of about 50 persons jammed the hearing room at the water district's Corte Madera headquarters. Most of those who spoke allied themselves with the development and building trade and opposed the moratorium.

It was the third time a freeze on connections had been before directors. On the two previous occasions, last June and again in February, the board had declared a threatened water shortage but stopped short of a connections freeze.

The seating of Dr. L. Martin Griffin on the board provided the impetus for the moratorium. The board had been deadlocked on the subject, with Dr. Ronald T. Stafford and Felson favoring it and John W. MacPhail and John L. Martinelli Jr. opposing it.

MacPhail abandoned his opposition to the moratorium in exchange for a pledge from the majority of three that they would support a bond issue in November to develop new sources of water.

MacPhail noted Griffin's election to the board on April 17 after a campaign taking a strong conservationist stand and pledging to vote for such a moratorium. MacPhail pointed out that had broken the deadlock on the board and said he might as well go along with the new majority.

Martinelli abandoned his opposition to the moratorium without comment.

Police Chief Klemme Turns In Resignation

Novato Police Chief Allen V. Klemme resigned today citing disagreements with City Mgr. Charles A. Brown over department operation and policy during the past several months.

Klemme's resignation, to become effective on appointment of a new chief, was predicted last week by the Novato Police Association's attorney, J. D. (Pat) Burdick, after a closed meeting with the city council.

Until he departs, Klemme will work on earthquake and disaster programs. Lt. R. Richard Courier, as acting chief, will be in charge of the day-to-day operations of the department.

In his letter of resignation submitted to Brown, Klemme said the disagreements they have had "are not easily reconcilable."

"It has become clear to me that to resolve these disagreements would be disruptive to the future effectiveness of the department and the city. Although it would be consistent with my character to remain until these disagreements have been overcome, such a course of action would not be in the best interest of the city," Klemme said.

Brown, in a separate statement, said the reason for the resignation and his acceptance is that "during the past few months, mutual respect and confidence has diminished to the extent that it has been decided for the best interest of the city of Novato that the chief resign," Brown said.

(Under the city's city manager ordinance, the city manager has the power to hire and fire department heads.)

Brown said that he has investigated "a number of personnel problems" in the police department, but has found it one of the finest police departments in Marin County. "Many of the high standards of this police department have been achieved during the past three years under the direction of Chief Klemme," he said.

Klemme said his more than three years as chief have been rewarding and that he wishes "every success in maintaining the excellence of the Novato Police Department."

Snag On Widening Of Road

An environmental impact report on proposed realignment of Lucas Valley Road from Mount McKinley Road to Big Rock finds that two of four possible routes are unacceptable, Marinwood Association president Michael Laughlin reported today.

The report, prepared by Environmental Science Association of Burlingame in connection with a county proposal to widen Lucas Valley Road, was aired before about 70 members of the Marinwood and Lucas Valley homeowners associations last night, Laughlin said.

Laughlin said the report was a preliminary "environmental impact assessment" of the proposed improvement and added a final impact report will be presented by the firm to the county within two weeks.

Laughlin said the preliminary report rejects two routes that "go about one-quarter mile further north" and vary widely from the present course of Lucas Valley Road. These proposals, according to the report, would require more grading, cutting and filling than two other possible routes that "go along the same general route" as the present road.

Realignment of the road using the northern routes would cost about $2 million, while realignment using routes similar to the existing road would cost about $1.6 million according to county figures, he said.

Routes deemed desirable by the report would require some cutting and filling aimed at widening the shoulders of Lucas Valley Road and softening curves, he said.

Audience members wondered whether any alteration of the road is necessary, but were in general agreement that following the general contour of the

Most May Day Celebrations Center On Day Off, Parades

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Strikes marred May Day celebrations in some countries, but much of the world marked the equivalent of Labor Day today with parades and a day off work.

In Moscow, thousands of persons jammed Red Square to hear Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev pledge to seek better relations with the United States and Japan and to help overcome "Europe's bloody past."

Following his brief speech, more than a million Muscovites ranging from factory workers to athletes paraded through Red Square as Brezhnev and other Communist party leaders looked on from atop the Lenin Mausoleum. Like most of the Eastern bloc, the Soviet Union abolished the military aspect of the May Day parade years ago.

In Japan, millions of labor union members turned out in peaceful demonstrations and rallies and heard their leaders call for the ouster of conservative Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, blamed for escalating costs of living.

The demonstrations coincided with a poll published by Japan's largest newspaper claiming that popular support for Tanaka's policies had slipped drastically in the wake of the worst transportation strike in Japanese history last week that paralyzed the nation's economy.

While flags fluttered and millions relaxed, many British and Spanish workers stayed home for another reason—they were on strike.

Spain's biggest industrial plant, a Barcelona automobile plant, was shut down by a walkout of 24,000 workers protesting increased social security payments.

In Britain, union officials said between one and two million workers struck for 24 hours to protest government curbs on pay raises.

In Paris, thousands of high school students were expected to join traditional leftwing marches. The students have been aroused by a government abolition of their military deferment.

In Rome, unions organized a traditional march from the Colosseum to the square in front of St. John's Basilica, which is Pope Paul VI's church in his role of bishop of Rome. The Pope planned to mark the day, celebrated by Roman Catholics as the feastday of St. Joseph, by greeting pilgrims and tourists at the Vatican.

In Israel, minor work stoppages were planned during the day. Rightwing groups called for abolishing May Day observances in newspaper advertisements reading: "The red flags that wave will be the flags of Israel's enemies and of those who plot the destruction of the state."

In Havana, thousands of workers and students were expected to march in May Day celebrations winding up with a speech by Premier Fidel Castro.

Cuban radio broadcasts heard in Miami said a 21-gun cannon salute would signal the start of the parade by 133,000 persons, among them 17,000 rural high school students.

There was no mention of army troops, indicating that Cuba would again follow the pattern of recent years— emphasizing political slogans and banners while omitting military hardware and soldiers.

The New China News Agency, heard in Hong Kong, said millions of Chinese waving red flags and banners attended public celebrations, but it did not say if Mao Tse-tung was among them.

In Cairo President Anwar Sadat said today that American peace plans for the Middle East were deceptive and cautioned Soviet leaders against accepting them.

Sadat did not announce any measures to break the Middle East deadlock, but reaffirmed his earlier declarations that a state of "total confrontation" against Israel has started.

He spoke at a May Day rally at the Nile Delta industrial town of Mehalla El-Kobra, about 70 miles north of Cairo. The speech, which lasted nearly two hours, was broadcast live by radio and television.

Shortly before Sadat spoke a left-wing Arab organization with members all over the world called for mass demonstrations against American interests in the Middle East on May 15, Beirut press reports said.

Rogers Says Nixon Has Right To Bomb Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has handed the Senate a 14-page document claiming constitutional legitimacy for the bombing of Cambodia and denying that the U.S. flag has again been committed in Indochina.

After months of delay, Rogers furnished the Senate Foreign Relations Committee an explanation of how—Rogers says—President Nixon can legally continue bombing in Indochina without congressional consent, now that all U.S. ground troops and prisoners of war are home.

Since North Vietnamese are violating the Jan. 29 cease-fire agreement that the administration has negotiated, Rogers claimed the administration can undertake military action to give Hanoi an incentive to uphold the agreement.

Those who argue that air strikes must cease because of the Constitution are saying the Constitution "contains an automatic self-destruct mechanism designed to destroy what has been so painfully achieved" at the negotiating table, Rogers said.

Rogers steadfastly denied that, by bombing in support of the Lon Nol government in Cambodia, the United States is undertaking a defense commitment that will prevent it from leaving until insurgent forces have been defeated.

The strikes, he contended "do not represent a commitment by the United States to the defense of Cambodia as such but instead represent a meaningful interim action to bring about compliance" with Article 20 of the peace agreement barring North Vietnamese and other foreign troops from Cambodia.

But as long as they remain there, they threaten "the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people, which is guaranteed by the agreement."

Senators who have questioned the President's constitutional authority to continue bombing in Indochina were handed Rogers' statement during a hearing Monday. They asked Rogers to return later to discuss it in detail.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Threat To Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A federal mediator hopes to bring both sides together late this week or early next week in an attempt to settle a strike that could delay the scheduled May 14 launch of the Skylab space station.

There have been no negotiations between 130 striking tracking station workers and the Bendix Field Engineering Corp., since last Thursday. A spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) said both sides are far apart in a pay dispute.

A Test Boycott?

SYDNEY (UPI) — The president of Australia's biggest trade union said today he hopes an international labor group will threaten France with a worldwide trade and transport embargo to prevent French nuclear tests in the South Pacific.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU), said he attended a meeting of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) in Mexico, where it was agreed that each member country would decide what action it will take in the event the French tests take place.

Train Sabotaged

SAIGON (UPI) — Saboteurs blew up a freight train about 25 miles east of Saigon yesterday and government troops killed 13 Communists in fighting in the Central Highlands, the Saigon command said today.

President Nguyen Van Thieu told leaders of his newly formed Democratic party that President Nixon assured him the United States would "retaliate" if the Communists broke the Vietnam cease-fire.

Thieu, who conferred with Nixon in the United States in early April, also said he is working on a plan to overcome postwar unemployment in the country and said he will shake up his government and its civil service "along military lines" within a week. He did not elaborate on his reshuffle plans.

A Talk Of War

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State William H. Sullivan said today North Vietnam must decide soon either to adhere to the cease-fire agreement or go back to war.

"Hanoi knows what we expected from them," he said. "I think they will have to make a choice soon as to whether they are going to have a full and faithful implementation of the agreement or whether they will take the path that leads back into the unfortunate military situation that we hopefully ended by signing the Jan. 27 agreement."

Sullivan's statement and statements by the North Vietnamese raised doubts that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger would be able to hold talks in Paris in mid-May with Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho as envisaged by the White House. The Sullivan talks were to have laid the groundwork for this meeting.

Raids Resumed

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. Air Force Phantom jets resumed bombing raids around Phnom Penh today after a one-day respite, striking targets field reports placed about five miles east of the capital.

The raids were aimed at targets in marshes where Communist troops retreated after a 1,500-man government force routed them from the east bank of the Mekong river.

Martial Law

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government declared martial law in Buenos Aires and five provinces last night after leftwing guerrillas assassinated a retired admiral, the fifth high-ranking military man slain by guerrillas since a March election meant to return the country to civilian rule.

Demand For Independent Watergate Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Republicans and Democrats agreeing that the Watergate scandal will remain a major issue for months to come, leaders of both parties demanded today that a special, independent prosecutor be named to oversee further investigation.

"Watergate is far worse than Teapot Dome and the worst is yet to come," Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., considered a possible 1976 Republican presidential candidate, said in proposing a Senate resolution calling for an outside prosecutor.

In announcing yesterday the departure of four top-level administration aides because of steadily unfolding Watergate disclosures, President Nixon named Elliot L. Richardson — now Attorney-General designate —to take over the investigation. In his broadcast speech to the nation last night, Nixon said he had told Richardson he could name a supervising prosecutor if he felt it warranted.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., an early Democratic presidential candidate in 1972 who often supported Nixon policies in Vietnam, said Richardson's credentials were unquestioned but that the prosecutor should be "removed from anything political."

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., noted that Richardson "has been on the Nixon team from the beginning so the appointment of a truly independent man is essential."

Percy, in a joint interview with Buckley and two other GOP senators on NBC-TV's Today Show, said "the underlying principle" of his resolution is that "the executive branch should not investigate itself."

In a separate interview, Jackson said Nixon should have directed Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor —"far removed from anything political," adding:

"At this point in time, the best politics is no politics. That applies on the Democratic side; that applies on the Republican side. The American people feel that the institution of the presidency, the White House, has been badly tarnished in this go-round."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., for a short time the 1972 Democratic vice presidential nominee and like Jackson a former prosecutor, said that a key matter in prosecuting the case in the future is to give the prosecutor authority to grant immunity to witnesses with major information.

John W. Dean III, White House legal counsel fired by Nixon in the shakeup, has been reported in published accounts as seeking immunity from prosecution before agreeing to give testimony before the Watergate grand jury about his knowledge of the bugging.

Nixon said in his broadcast that the first he knew about the bugging was news accounts received while resting last June 17 in Florida following his Moscow summit trip. Most Democrats and Republicans alike have said they take Nixon's word for it that he had no prior knowledge.

However, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., called for formation of a special House committee to look into the matter.

"I am not saying we should move to impeach," Moss said. "I am merely saying we should be prepared. The House has the responsibility to set up the machinery so that if there is a move to impeach, we should be ready."

He added, "Before we even suggest impeachment, we must have the most uncontroverted evidence."

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., one of the more outspoken House members, said the House should investigate whether there are grounds for impeachment.

Any impeachment of the President is initiated by the House, which must formally vote to impeach. The Senate is then required under the Constitution to conduct a trial —with the Chief Justice presiding —of the President.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd, W.Va., said a special Watergate prosecutor must be appointed at once "to avoid any suspicion of a whitewash" by the White House.

"The administration must not investigate itself," Byrd said.

Republican Sen. William Saxbe, Ohio, critical for months of Nixon's handling of Watergate, was not satisfied by last night's television address. "I am very sympathetic with his position of trying to get things done with the difficulties he has," Saxbe said. "But I don't know any more about the Watergate than I did."

Congress' initial reaction is important because how Congress and the nation accept Nixon's explanation that he was misled and poorly served by overzealous aides can determine much—whether Nixon himself will retain effectiveness or "credibility" during the remaining three years of his term.

Before Nixon spoke, Percy said Nixon could restore his "credibility" but "it depends on everything he says and does, particularly in the next few days."

Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., said the next few months "will make it clear whether or not there was prior knowledge" by Nixon of the illegal plans to disrupt the Democrats.

Following the speech, some Republicans applauded.

"Most statesmanlike," said George Bush, GOP national chairman.

"A most courageous act," said House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich., who a few hours earlier had issued a statement pointedly noting "that no Republican member of Congress was in any way involved in the Watergate affair."

"The President once again has shown that in a time of crisis his stature as a man stands tall," said GOP Senate Leader Hugh Scott, Pa. Scott earlier told a news conference that on March 22—the day after Nixon said he first learned of the Watergate coverup—he met with the President and was convinced he "did not know."

Democrats were less charitable.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Mass., the House Democratic leader, said Nixon in his speech admitted "that there have occurred payoffs, bugging, coverups, denials, fraud, lying, bribes and break-ins."

Watergate Web Wraps Papers Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Pentagon Papers trial, once expected to close this week, instead has become tangled up in the Watergate web.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne Monday ordered a "broad" probe into governmental investigations of Daniel Ellsberg, referring to such an investigation that had been conducted "directly out of the White House."

The judge has already ordered the justice department to tell him everything it knows or can possibly find out about a charge that two of the convicted Watergate conspirators burglarized the offices of Ellsberg's psychiatrist while they were White House staff members.

And the judge revealed in open court that he himself had met at the Western White House with President Nixon and aide John D. Ehrlichman — who resigned Monday because of the Watergate scandal — to discuss a possible job for himself in the government, later revealed to be that of director of the FBI.

The judge said he told Ehrlichman he would not discuss any such appointment while he was sitting in judgment on Ellsberg. He said that he had met Nixon "for one minute or less, we merely exchanged greetings."

The judge made the statement in open court, with the jury out of the room, in response to published reports of a "secret meeting" and an inquiry from defense lawyers, he said, to make sure there was "no misunderstanding" of the incident.

Polls Patrolled In Mayor Vote

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (UPI) — John R. Johnson is running for mayor today, and he wants to be sure no Irish travelers vote for his opponent.

One reason for the concern is that opponents charged that 26 Irish travelers were brought to Morristown to register as voters by a friend of Buda. The registrations were voided by the Hamblen County Election Commission after it was discovered the would-be voters gave as their residences either a burned out hotel or a poolroom.

The group eventually was escorted out of the state by sheriff's deputies.

Wage-Price Control Authority Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After much fussing and fuming, Congress has given President Nixon authority to control wages and prices for another year.

Final congressional passage came late Monday afternoon, and Nixon signed it into law just two hours before the Economic Stabilization Act would have expired at midnight.

The bill extends until April 30, 1974, Nixon's discretionary power to control the economy, a power he is using now only for the relatively mild Phase III controls on the processed food, health, construction and petroleum industries, and a ceiling on meat prices.

The legislation was passed after weeks of Democrat-Republican infighting and confusion. At one time, the House Banking Committee had reported out a bill that would have rolled all prices, interest rates and rents back to Jan. 10 levels and placed them under a ceiling.

The final bill, however, contains no freezes, rollbacks or rent controls, although it does contain some significant amendments that were strongly opposed by Republicans and by some Democrats.

The major amendments in the compromise bill would:

—Make public the information that companies with more than $250 million a year in sales must give the Cost of Living Council to justify price increases of 1½ per cent or more on major products.

—Allow Nixon to allocate petroleum products in shortages.

—Change from $2.75 an hour to $3.50 an hour the definition of substandard earnings, which are exempt from wage-price controls.

—Make it clear that the authority in the bill could not be used as an excuse to impound funds appropriated by Congress.

The final vote was 267 to 115, with the pro and con votes spread among both Democrats and Republicans. Some 153 Democrats and 114 Republicans voted for the bill while 58 Democrats and 57 Republicans voted against it.

Republicans had said earlier that they would oppose the bill because of the restrictive amendments, but any substantial opposition faded after the White House passed the word around that the bill was acceptable.

Sex Traps Eyed To Kill Moths

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said it would set up traps with a sticky substance known as "sectar" in a 77-acre experimental apple orchard.

Hopefully, the scientists said, the destructive moths — in search of mates—will "home in" on the substance and become stuck.

Enrollment Is Up At Sonoma State

At a time when many colleges and universitites are beginning to have drops in their enrollment, Sonoma State College has 450 more students this spring than last year at this time, according to college officials.

College officials say they hope to keep enrollment at 5,250 for the fall semester, since school facilities were designed for 4,600 full-time students.

Harold Soeters, dean of admissions and records, said the school already has received 4,250 applications for the 2,100 spaces open in the fall.

He added, however, that "we plan to accept another 500 applications before the application period is closed."

Students may still apply in many majors," he said, but no applications are being accepted for junior transfer students in nursing, psychology and undeclared majors, nor any for undergraduate majors in counseling and guidance, teaching credential programs and psychology.

Among the majors still open to new applicants arebiology English, art, music, philosophy, anthropology, history, political science and sociology.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Costa Rican President Jose Figueres leaves for the United States today for a four-day unofficial visit.

Bee Rustling Jumps Sharply

Bee rustling has doubled this year, according to the State Department of Food and Agriculture.

The department said Monday that beekeepers had 558 colonies stolen during April, bringing the yearly total to 684— more than double last year's 319. Each hive is worth about $30.

The increased bee thefts were attributed to higher honey prices and a strong demand for rental of bees for pollenization purposes.

Mass Murder Suspect Declared Harmless By Doctors Last Fall

SANTA CRUZ, (UPI) — Two days after mass murder suspect Edmund Kemper III dismembered a Berkeley high school student, two psychiatrists declared him harmless, Dist. Atty. Peter Chang reported yesterday.

Chang discussed the psychiatric report prior to Kemper's arraignment on charges of murdering his mother, her friend and six hitchhiking coeds in the past year.

Kemper, 24, a 6-foot-9, 280-pounder who killed two grandparents nine years ago, was ordered held without bail by Municipal Judge Donald May, who set May 21 for the entering of a plea.

Attorney Roland Hall of Santa Cruz, representing Kemper, asked Judge May to issue a "gag order" preventing law enforcement officers from discussing the case. May told the lawyer to prepare an order after Hall agreed to Chang's request "to be reasonable about any new developments."

The gag order was sought about two hours after Chang told a news conference that Kemper had confessed to the eight murders.

The district attorney also disclosed that Kemper was examined by two psychiatrists last Sept. 17 and declared in "excellent psychiatric health" and absolutely no danger to anyone.

Chang quoted Kemper as saying he had killed Aiko Koo, 15, a Berkeley high school student, on Sept. 14 and dismembered her body the next day, burying parts around Santa Cruz County.

"Two days later, Kemper went to Fresno, where he was examined by two psychiatrists, both of whom diagnosed him as no longer being a threat to society," Chang said.

FBI Guarding Files; Nixon Gives Report

posts they held as part of the President's innermost guard.

The Washington Post quoted close advisers to Nixon as saying the two went to Camp David Sunday to tell him they did not want to resign, but he felt they should despite their close relationship. Dean's resignation was requested —meaning he was fired outright.

Nixon said he had invested full authority for the Watergate investigation in Richardson, and he would leave up to him whether to name a "special supervising prosecutor" to assist.

Nixon said he accepted the responsibility for the Watergate affair because in any organization "the man at the top must bear the responsibility."

Nixon, brushing away tears, stopped by the White House press office, where reporters had asked literally thousands of questions about Watergate during the months, after the 24 minute address and said: "Just continue to give me hell when you think I'm wrong."

Favorable reaction poured in from Republicans, who had joined in harsh criticism of Nixon's handling of Watergate as the case wore on. But several members of Congress continued to call for a special prosecutor chosen by someone outside the administration.

Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, said: "I don't know any more about Watergate than I did. I don't know why people resigned or were asked to resign." Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., said the House should investigate whether there are grounds to impeach Nixon.

In his telecast, he imputed no wrong-doing to Kleindienst, Haldeman and Ehrlichman—but gave no such assurance about Dean.

Nixon said that during the 1972 presidential campaign his overriding concern was the goal of "bringing peace to America and the world." He said that at the time of the bugging he was getting a few days' rest after his summit trip to the Soviet Union.

He said he immediately ordered an investigation. He said he discounted press stories about Watergate because he was getting "repeated assurances" that no members of his administration were involved.

"Until March this year, I remained convinced that the denials were true and that the charges of involvement by members of the White House staff were false," Nixon said.

He said "new information" came to him that there was a "real possibility" that some of the charges were true, and on March 21 he personally assumed responsibility for a new inquiry.

"I believed the reports I was getting," Nixon said, referring to an early investigation of Watergate conducted for him by Dean, which denied further White House involvement beyond two low-level aides arrested soon after the bugging.

Nixon implied that the persons involved in Watergate did so out of zeal, a belief that what they were doing was right, and because they were reacting to "the excesses or expected excesses of the other side."

"For the fact that alleged improper actions took place within the White House or within my campaign organization, the easiest course would be for me to blame those to whom I delegated the responsibility to run the campaign. But that would be a cowardly thing to do.

"I will not place the blame on subordinates—on people whose zeal exceeded their judgment, and who may have done wrong in a cause they deeply believed to be right," Nixon said.

"In any organization, the man at the top must bear the responsibility. That responsibility, therefore, belongs here, in this office. I accept it.

"And I pledge to you tonight, from this office, that I will do everything in my power to ensure that the guilty are brought to justice, and that such abuses are purged from our political processes in the years to come, long after I have left this office."

Already Watergate has resulted in the departure of perhaps as many as 10 persons. Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell resigned as campaign manager two weeks after the bugging, claiming personal reasons.

Former deputy campaign manager Jeb Stuart Magruder resigned as assistant to the commerce secretary last week, and acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III quit. Nixon's appointments secretary, Dwight L. Chapin, and special counsel, Charles W. Colson, resigned earlier this year to take jobs in private industry.

All have been linked in one way or another with alleged espionage and sabotage during the 1972 campaign.

Richardson apparently will take over from Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen the direction of Nixon's inquiry into Watergate. Petersen had been given the assignment only last week after Kleindienst removed himself, citing the same reason he did Monday — his personal and professional relationship with persons who may be involved.

Several investigations are underway into Watergate in addition to Nixon's inquiry. The Senate established the Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities earlier this year, and it is expected to begin open hearings—with the cooperation of Nixon aides promised—about May 15.

The federal grand jury that indicted the seven men who already have pleaded or been found guilty of conspiracy has been hearing witnesses for several weeks. And the Democrats have filed a $6.4 million civil damage suit against the reelection committee and have been taking deposition from persons linked with the case.

As he neared the end of his address, Nixon appeared anxious to put Watergate behind him and move on to "work that cannot wait, work that I must do."

"It has claimed far too much of my own time and attention," he said of Watergate.

Nixon cited the visit of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, the next Soviet-American summit later this year, the seeking of a mutual reduction of forces in Europe, the maintenance of peace in Southeast Asia and the Middle East and "vital work to be done right here in America."

He mentioned "a good job for everyone who wants to work," controlling inflation and other goals. At about midnight on Christmas Eve during the bombing of North Vietnam, he went over these goals, he said.

He urged new standards, rules and procedure for future elections, saying: "In recent years the campaign excesses that have occurred on all sides have provided a sobering demonstration of how far a false doctrine can carry us. The lesson is clear. America, in its political campaigns, must not again fall into the trap of letting the end, however great that end is, justify the means."

BOARD

it is apparent that there is growing ill-will among the people of Marin who are lining up behind one department or another, and there is growing ill-will among the people toward county government."

Giacomini, however, agreed there are areas of each department that could be better organized and he suggested the board spend its time discussing them.

"So, it is in a spirit of positive cooperation — to broaden all outlooks — and to try and eliminate the negativism I sense, I move that the consolidation as proposed by the administrator. . . be rejected."

His motion was seconded by Supervisor Michael Wornum but drew opposition from colleague Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who said he was "philosophically in agreement" but any discussion of the three departments should include their possible consolidation.

Giacomini suggested "we discuss problems and possible solutions toward improving cooperation and perhaps some consolidation among these departments on a lesser scope."

He drew support from Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Robert A. Roumiguiere. Arrigoni cast the lone dissenting vote.

The discussion of a limited consolidation and reorganization "on a lesser scope" was expected to run into the afternoon.

The large audience attending the board's morning session necessitated removal of the sliding wall which separates the supervisors' meeting room and that of the planning commission.

ROAD

present road is most desirable, he said.

Although the county claims that improvement of the road will result in future saving through decreased maintenance, residents "were not convinced of any savings in light of the initial cost of the improvement," he said.

The impact report also said that though noise pollution will increase, air pollution will remain about the same because of improvements in auto emission devices.

The county has viewed Lucas Valley Road as a possible major route to West Marin, Laughlin said, adding the road's current capacity of about 1,600 cars daily would be doubled by the improvement.

Turfing Due Review Tonight

The Fairfax School District board will consider the Deer Park School turfing project when it meets at 7:45 p.m. today in White Hill School.

Neighbors have loudly opposed the project, saying it will create added traffic congestion along Porteous Avenue, open the door for Little League activities on the school ballfields and spark potential development of nearby watershed lands.

The board will also discuss district goals for 1973.

San Rafael Girl Is Riding Winner

TRACY LYNN DAVENPORT
Vanishes in San Rafael

6-Year-Old Girl Object Of Search

San Rafael police, having spent hundreds of hours searching for a 6-year-old San Rafael girl who vanished Friday on her way to kindergarten, today declared that all attempts to locate any trace of the child had proved fruitless.

"We have no idea whether this is a kidnap," drowning or simply a lost child," said Deputy Chief Thomas L. Stephenson, urging citizens with any knowledge of the child to contact police immediately.

Tracy Lynn Davenport left the home of her grandmother, Evelyn F. Allen of 737 Francisco Boulevard, at 11 a.m. Friday for Bahia Vista School and hasn't been seen since, Stephenson said.

He described the child as black, about four feet, six inches tall and wearing short pigtails and a black and blue Hawaiian ankle-length dress.

More than 50 policemen and explorer scouts from San Rafael Post 303 have repeatedly scoured the Francisco and Canal areas in an attempt to find the girl, but have had "absolutely no luck," he said.

About a half-dozen officers continued today to search the city for the youth, he added.

HEW Denies Occupancy Of Center

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has refused to let the Sausalito Arts Center remain at Bayside School beyond July 15, the school district board was told last night.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said a committee of the board met with HEW officials Friday to ask that the arts center be allowed to remain at the school until Oct. 12.

But the department, in a letter received yesterday, turned down the request, Lindberg said.

The board terminated the occupancy of the arts association April 16, after it was told to do so by HEW. The land on which the school sits was given the district by the U.S. government on condition it be used exclusively for educational purposes.

After a closed session, the board agreed to rehire Lindberg next year at a salary of $24,500 and Armando Renzullo, principal at Bayside School, for $21,000. Lindberg's current salary is $23,000 and Renzullo, $19,095.

The question of buying playground equipment for Bayside School was referred to the board's faciliites committee, consisting of Dr. Warren K. Hansen and Douglas B. Martin, Lindberg said.

Trustees also approved applications for $110,809 in state and federal funds for a variety of programs, including early childhood education, three disadvantaged children programs and a library materials program.

Court Date For Comedian's Son

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Andrew King, 18-year-old son of comedian Alan King, is scheduled to appear May 30 for a court hearing on charges of possession of small amounts of marijuana and hashish.

The hearing, in Nassau County District Court, will determine if there is sufficient evidence to hold him for grand jury action.

Young King was arrested May 14 after his father told police his son had taken one of the family cars without permission. The youth pleaded innocent to that charge, and Judge Francis Donovan set his trial date for the same day as the hearing.

Masonic funeral for Fred H. Breckwoldt, father of Vera Shirley of San Anselmo, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Sneider and Sullivan Funeral Home in San Mateo.

Breckwoldt, a native of San Francisco, was 87. He died Sunday in a Burlingame hospital after a long illness.

He and his wife, Helena Breckwoldt who survives him, recently celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary. They were married in San Francisco shortly after the 1906 earthquake and fire. He was employed by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. until he retired.

He was a member of King Solomon's Seaport Lodge No. 260, Free and Accepted Masons in San Francisco.

He is also survived by one grandchild and two great-grandchildren.

Inurnment will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, South San Francisco.

EBER A. RICE

Eber A. Rice, 69, of Novato, a retired insurance claims manager, collapsed while playing golf at the Indian Valley Golf course near Novato yesterday and died at Novato General Hospital.

Rice, who arrived at the hospital at 3:12 p.m., died at 3:45 p.m., apparently of natural causes, according to the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Rice, of 1000 Ignacio Boulevard, Apt. 5, was retired claims manager for Commercial Unions Insurance Co. of Grand Rapids, Mich.

He was a native of Chicago and had lived most of his adult life in Grand Rapids. He had been a resident of California for four years. He was a member of the Claims Managers Council in Grand Rapids.

Surviving are his wife, Clara; a daughter, Linda Danford of Tiburon; a brother Milford E. Rice of Leesburg, Fla., and two grandchildren.

Memorial service and burial will be in Grand Rapids.

CHARLES LELAND

Charles Redding Leland, retired insurance executive, died Sunday in a local retirement home after a long illness. He was 89.

Leland, a resident of Marin since 1954, retired in 1941 from Lansing B. Warner Inc., an insurance firm in Chicago.

Born in Easton, Pa., Leland lived in Chicago and Winter Park, Fla., before moving to Sleepy Hollow 19 years ago. He and his wife, Mabel, also lived in San Anselmo.

Survivors, besides his wife, are a daughter, Alice McBride of San Rafael; a sister, Grace Knox of Deland, Fla.; three grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

No funeral will be held.

ALWINE CIMA

Private funeral for Alwine Emily Cima, 67, of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, a former Larkspur resident, was held Sunday in Bonners Ferry.

Mrs. Cima, a retired practical nurse, was killed Thursday in a headon traffic crash in Bonners Ferry.

According to her daughter, Daine DeLorme MacMillan of Lucas Valley, a car traveling about 85 miles an hour on the wrong side of the road collided with Mrs. Cima's car.

Mrs. Cima, widow of Victor Cima, a sales representative for a tile and Formica company in San Francisco, moved from Larkspur about nine years ago after living there about 15 to 18 years. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star in Larkspur.

She was born in Lima, Peru, daughter of a sea captain and was reared in San Francisco. She had been a resident of Bonners Ferry for about a year after living in Sacramento, where she was a practical nurse.

Surviving are a son, Robert B. Cima of El Dorado County; two daughters, Nancy Phillips of Bonners Ferry, and Mrs. MacMillan of Lucas Valley; a sister, Evelyn Shaw of Antioch; a brother, Howard E. Monteeton of San Francisco; and seven grandchildren.

Burial was at Bonners Ferry. The family prefers that memorial contributions to be the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in San Francisco or a favorite charity.

J. E. CORRIGAN

Funeral for Joseph E. Corrigan, former Marin County resident and brother of San Rafael attorney William G. Corrigan, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Johnson Funeral Home in Morgan Hill.

Corrigan died Sunday, apparently of a heart attack. He was 41.

Born in St. Helena, Corrigan moved with his family to Larkspur when he was 5 years old. He lived in the Marin community for 20 years. For the past six years, he has lived in Morgan Hill, working as an engineer with General Electric Co. in San Jose.

In addition to his brother, he is survived by his wife, Jean; a son, Grant E. Corrigan, and a daughter, Kathleen J. Corrigan, all of Morgan Hill.

WATER

as soon as it was voted on, allows the district to provide water to users whose service has been disconnected and to public agencies such as police and fire facilities.

Felson, who introduced the ordinance, said it "will give us some time to come to grips with the water shortage problem."

Like several others in the audience, Joseph E. Bacheller III, of 409 Hilary Drive, Tiburon, said he didn't see the urgency in the situation.

Felson disagreed. With a relatively dry winter followed by a hot summer, he said, the district very easily could run out of water and be forced to institute rationing.

"I've been saying for one-and-a-half years that we're faced with a critical situation. We're sitting under a blade that's going to come down on us any minute now," he said.

Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger concurred. "We can't run out of water this year but we damn well could come close to it next year," he said.

Nathan Jones, of 1470 Vistazo West Street, Tiburon, who identified himself as a developer, said the halt to new connections would save only one-half of one day's consumption in the district, or 50 acre-feet, between now and November, when the board hopes to float a bond issue to bring in new water supplies.

(An acre-foot is the amount of water needed to cover an acre of land one foot deep. The Marin Municipal Water District now uses roughly 32,000 acre-feet per year, but can count with certainty on only 26,000 acre feet per year from its reservoirs.)

Felson, however, said new building units, if not halted by the moratorium, could consume up to 1,000 acre feet of water between now and November and much more after that in the absence of a connections freeze.

David G. Greenlee III, president of the Marin Builders Exchange, said tax revenues in the district would drop if a moratorium were enacted and "you'd be putting a lot of people out of work."

"It's an affront that the water board is becoming a planning agency. I don't think any of you up there is competent to plan my town. I don't think it's legal to plan with water," he said.

Tiburon architect Philip K. Buskirk said drawing new water from the Walker Creek in West Marin, one of several sources being investigated by the board, could take up to seven years, a figure no one disputed.

At the request of MacPhail, directors wrote into the moratorium a clause stating the district intends to seek approval of a bond issue for new water supplies as soon as possible, but no later than November 1973.

Board members then unanimously adopted the freeze.

After the vote, directors continued to a future meeting consideration of two variance requests for water service to homes and a pipeline extension agreement to furnish water to the Casa Madera project in Corte Madera.

These requests will be considered when the board adopts guidelines for processing variance applications for customers seeking to bypass the moratorium. The guidelines are expected to be enacted at the board's May 9 meeting.

The board also discussed a preliminary report by William T. O'Leary, a consultant who is studying water sources for the district. The report says the most feasible sources of water are Walker Creek, diverting part of Lagunitas Creek to Nicasio Reservoir and the North Marin Intertie, which would bring Russian River water to Marin from the North Marin Water District and the Sonoma County Water Agency.

The complete report will be finished sometime around May 20, O'Leary said.

Belvedere Planners Eye Zone Amendment As Density Control

The Belvedere Planning Commission last night discussed an amendment to a proposed zoning ordinance that would, if adopted, become the city's primary "tool for controlling density."

The proposed amendment would prohibit building on lots that are of substandard size and in "contiguous ownership."

In other words, anyone owning a standard lot and also owning an adjacent lot judged to be of substandard size, would not be permitted to build a structure on the adjacent or substandard lot.

Both lots would be considered one lot under the proposed law, and would allow only building of additions to an existing structure or construction of a single residence over the area of both lots. Landowners would be forced to obtain a variance for permission to build on the substandard lot alone.

"This would be a tool to keep density down and keep lot sizes from getting smaller," said City Mgr. William L. Cavalli.

Cavalli called this section "the meat of the new ordinance" and cautioned commissioners to consider it carefully before passing it to the city council for adoption.

"This is the one that is very important and the one the city probably will end up in court on," Cavalli said.

The ordinance would apply to lots that are under 15,000 feet in size with less than a 75-foot frontage and a 75-foot average width.

Attorney Charles Patterson appeared before the commission to protest the proposed ordinance, questioning it on the contention that it is being enforced retroactively.

Patterson said the freeze on such building currently is in effect under an emergency interim ordinance until December, at which time the city council may adopt it permanently under the new zoning regulations.

He also questioned it on a philosophical basis, saying that it is unfair to apply the rule to contiguous owners of substandard lots and not to all persons owning lots that are below size.

Although he agreed the proposal could control density, "to arbitrarily take someone's property away is inequitable," he said.

The commission agreed to study the section further when it meets at 8 p.m. tonight in the city offices.

The suggested new ordinance is a combination of a report by the planning firm Livingston and Blayney — compiled in November 1971 — and work by Cavalli and Robert A. Switzer, a summer intern hired last year by Belvedere.

Commissioners accepted a provision of the proposed ordinance that reduces height limits of structures from 42 to 36 feet in the multiple zone and from 32 to 28 feet in all other zones.

They also agreed to increase side yard setbacks in R-15 zones (covering steep slopes) from five feet to ten feet; set a five-foot minimum setback from the street line for building on Corinthian Island, and limited fences, hedges and solid walls to 42 inches in residential zones.

The commission is expected to review a provision of the proposed ordinance that limits the amount of land that can be covered by buildings when it meets tonight.

Impact Report Of Pleasure Faire Appealed

Sonoma County officials yesterday appealed the environmental impact report on the controversial Renaissance Pleasure Faire, saying it was inadequately prepared.

According to Harvey Bragdon, Marin County Deputy zoning administrator, an appeal hearing will be held either next week or the week after by county supervisors.

Bragdon last week approved a use permit for the Pleasure Faire's permanent site north of Novato on the Sonoma County Line.

Much of the northbound traffic to the site on Pleasure Faire weekends will have to travel into Sonoma County, turn around at Petaluma and return to Marin to get to the site.

Hilliard Takes Case To Tribunal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Imprisoned Black Panther leader David Hilliard has asked the California Supreme Court to overturn his conviction in a 1968 shoot-out with Oakland police.

Hilliard argued Monday that the District Court of Appeal had affirmed his conviction on two counts of assault with a deadly weapon despite the lack of evidence connecting him to the crime.

Two Canoes Stolen

Two canoes, one aluminium, the other bright orange fiberglass, were stolen from Canoe Trips West Inc., of 2170 Redwood Highway, Larkspur, between 5:30 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. yesterday, reported Larkspur police. The canoes were valued at $300 each.

Grand Jury To Decide On Salaries

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday voted to turn the entire matter of salaries for themselves and other elected officials over to the county grand jury.

The vote came after a discussion in which the Irate Taxpayers of Sonoma County asked that the salary issue be decided by the county's voters and the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association opposed any raises for the supervisors.

The latter group also opposed changes in the civil service system so that some elected officials could receive merit increases, according to Richard McGlinchey, county public information officer.

McGlinchey said there was no indication of when the grand jury might submit its review and recommendations on the salary issue.

Teacher Named Coordinator Of Film Contest

Barbara Rosenberg, a teacher who has taught film making at Terra Linda High School for three years, has been named coordinator of the 1973 Marin County Film Competition to be held in connection with this year's county fair.

Winning films will be shown in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building each day of the fair, which runs from Aug. 30 through Sept. 3 on the county civic center fairgrounds.

Any independent producer from throughout the country with a film which runs 40 minutes or less and which was completed and released after January 1, 1971, is eligible to enter.

The competition will award five prizes ranging from $500 to $100 as well as a special award of $250 for the best film using "Man and Nature" as a theme.

Larkspur Eyes Larger Redevelopment Area

The Larkspur City Council will amend its redevelopment survey area at its meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at city hall.

Larkspur, racing against Corte Madera to attract a regional shopping center, also will direct the city's planning commission to select a redevelopment project area and formulate and adopt a preliminary redevelopment plan.

According to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, the council will be asked to enlarge the redevelopment survey area from the Bon Air site proposed for the Connolly-Rouse "Larkspur-Greenbrae Mall" to include all city territory on the San Quentin peninsula and much of the town's flatlands too.

Also on tomorrow's agenda is an "urgency ordinance" adopting a moratorium on land with a slope of 10 per cent or more bordering on Magnolia Avenue.

Judge Sentences Concord Man To Six Months

A 23-year-old Concord man was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail for passing a forged check for $550 last Aug. 14.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court also placed Walter Sydney Boatright on probation for two years and ordered him to participate in therapy at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Palo Alto, undergo periodic drug testing and make restitution.

He cashed the check, which had been stolen in Fairfax, at the San Rafael branch of Bank of America.

Reportedly a heroin user, he had prior arrests for selling the drug, smuggling it and for burglary.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

Sympathetic Partner Helps After A Disastrous Round

"How could I tell what was going on?" West asked at the end of today's hand.

Everybody was sympathetic. "Nobody thinks that you're losing on purpose," his partner assured him. "It just happens to look that way." A sympathetic partner is a great asset.

WISE ACTION

Wise opened the deuce of clubs and South won with the king. South immediately returned a club and West played low. He expected to take the third round of clubs, at which time his partner would be able to make a discard and thus give him some information.

The information arrived too late. Declarer didn't lead clubs again until he had made sure of his game contract.

After winning the second club trick in dummy, South ran five diamonds and two top spades. He then cheerfully conceded the rest.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN

West should have hopped up with the ace of clubs at the second trick and should have led a low heart. The defenders would then take their club and four hearts to defeat the game contract.

It was easy to see this at the end of the hand, but how could West know at the second trick what was going on?

The TIP-OFF

The tip-off was that South hadn't tackled dummy's long diamond suit. In this situation, South would surely lead diamonds at once if an opponent held the ace of diamonds. His failure to lead diamonds meant that he held the ace himself, and that the suit was ready to run at a moment's notice.

It should have been clear that West had to take five defensive tricks without delay. The only reasonable chance was to take the ace of clubs and switch to a low heart.

You hold:

♥- A 10 9 8
D-10 8 7
C- 9 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Your hand is worth only one response, and your first duty is to raise partner's major suit rather than show a suit of your own.

Behr To Speak To GOP Teen-Agers

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will speak on "The Teen-Age Role in the Republican Party" at a meeting of the Marin County Teen-Age Republicans at the Marin Civic Center supervisor's chamber at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Spokesman Alexis McKenzie said the group also will discuss Governor Ronald Reagan's tax initiative proposal and a field trip to Sacramento. The meeting is open to all Marin teens interested in the Republican Party.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

The summing up! Our birthday bookkeepers told us to correct the ages on today's notables. So who becomes older? younger?

1. Glenn Ford could be 48 or 57 today. He'll give you a happy grin whichever you choose because this "Cowboy" and "Sheepman" is still "The Fastest Gun Alive" in any man's western. Born in Quebec, Canada, he learned horseback riding and rope tricks from Will Rogers, as his stablehand in the early days. He washed windows and sold newspapers before getting his chance to act in his first film. Now 157 movies later, half of them westerns, he says, "Sam Cade is really me!"

2. Scott Carpenter, 48 or 57 today, got his father's middle name and liked it so much that he prefers it to his own first name, Malcolm. Commissioned an ensign in 1949, he served as a fighter pilot in Korea in 1951, then volunteered for the space program. On May 24, 1962, he became the second American to orbit the earth in a space capsule aboard Aurora 7, a trip that took four hours, 56 minutes.

3. Kate Smith reaches 64 or 77 today. Born in Greenville, Va., she was singing in amateur shows at the age of 11 and made her stage debut in a 1926 musical comedy, "Honeymoon Lane." After CBS put her on its network in 1931, she became one of radio's biggest stars, nationally known for her rendition of the song, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain."

4. Mark Clark, 64 or 77 today, rose from a first lieutenant in World War I to commander in chief of United States Army Ground Forces in Europe in World War II. He made a secret mission to North Africa, preparing the way for its invasion, then commanded the Fifth Army in its recapturing of Italy and Rome. He was United Nations supreme commander in Korea, retiring in 1953.

Marin City Committee Abolished

By NELS JOHNSON

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, in a fiery meeting laced with angry outbursts from a small but vocal audience, last night abolished its project area committee, saying the group had mismanaged its affairs, failed to fulfill its goals and was inoperable due to internal dissension.

The action came amid a revelation that a preliminary federal audit had ruled as "ineligible expenses" a $1,905.91 bill for a three-day training retreat attended by eight committee representatives.

The board, backing recommendations by its executive director, Wallace K. Shepherd, and a board subcommittee, voted 4-1-1 to "dismantle" the 11-member area committee, a Marin City group formed last September to provide advice on redevelopment matters. Board member Richard S. Harding opposed the move and Reuben Kaehler abstained.

An audience of about a dozen residents —many of them area committee members — loudly protested the action, and instead urged the ouster of Shepherd.

Although the board majority appeared most concerned with what they agreed was a failure of the area committee to fulfill its goals, much of their attention focused on the findings of a Department of Housing and Urban Development audit of committee expenses.

The two-page document declared ineligible for funding expenses of $1,905.91, including a $1,500 fee for "pretraining consultations and interviews" with committee members by a Berkeley firm and a $405.91 fee for "meals and meeting rooms." The tab was incurred by six committee members and two committee staff at a committee training session held in March at the El Rancho Tropicana in Santa Rosa.

Services performed by Forbes and Smith Associates of Berkeley for the committee in Santa Rosa were "not in accordance with the type of service or expense the project area committee was authorized to incur" under the provisions of its contract with the agency, according to the audit.

The committee contract provides that its activities relate to contact with local residents, distributing information on agency activities, redevelopment testimony at public hearings and written analysis of redevelopment proposals. But the consulting services amounted to "personal interviews and consultations among six project area committee members," the audit said.

The audit recommended that the money be refunded to the agency project fund, that consulting contracts for the committee require previous approval from the agency, and that the committee be "considered for termination in relation to the closeout status" of the Marin City redevelopment project.

Shepherd, who described the unsigned report as an unofficial and "informal transmittal" of a HUD auditor following a three-week auditing of redevelopment agency accounts, predicted that an "official" audit would be sent to the agency in about three weeks and declared his hope that HUD management would revise the preliminary statement.

Shepherd, in a "reply to audit findings," said that although the funds were "improperly spent" only $405.91 of the training costs should be disallowed since the session "would have been a great benefit" if it had been properly administered and attended. The committee had submitted an outline of the training program to the agency but had apparently not followed that outline, he added.

Shepherd said he had issued the committee a 10-day notification of the end of its contract in accordance with the audit report, an action ratified by the agency last night.

Should HUD agree with the report of its auditor, the money will be taken out of the grant given the agency by the government, he said, adding that the $1,905.91 had already been paid. The fee, he said, was in addition to committee funding by the agency of about $1,100 monthly since September.

Committee members argued that agency staff had approved the training program and urged the audit be disregarded since it was an unsigned and preliminary document.

Board Chairman George H. Gnoss Jr. agreed that the auditor's report "doesn't have a great deal of bearing on what we do tonight," saying he was concerned that the committee had failed to provide analysis of redevelopment proposals, had demonstrated an inability "to get together to solve problems" and was not "performing the job as presently constituted."

Agency member James O. Quiett said the committee had been torn by "general dissension" and wasn't "functioning in proportion to the funding." Quiett and Collie B. Gaines, were appointed several weeks ago to explore committee inactivity and last night recommended the committee be abolished.

Other board concerns included lack of communication between the area committee and agency members, a lack of regular meetings and the appointment by the committee of replacements to fill vacancies.

The original agreement provided that the agency board appoint area committeemen from Marin City organizations and that an election be held within a year to choose permanent members for the committee.

Committeeman Nesbit Crutchfield, however, declared it would be "ludicrous" and expensive to hold elections "every time a member resigned" before the annual election. The original agreement, he said, includes no provision for replacement of committee members who resign.

The committee appointed Crutchfield and two others to fill vacancies in the wake of recent resignations.

Melvin Atkins, chairman of the Marin City Council, which represents tenants of public housing there, and a project area committeeman, read a committee statement urging the ouster of Shepherd and claimed Shepherd had failed to communicate with the committee or attend its meetings. "Wallace K. Shepherd, having time and time again demonstrated his inability and unwillingness to work with the citizens of Marin City, (should) be dismissed immediately as executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority. Crutchfield, who told the Housing board he was backed by more than 200 Marin City residents, said then that Shepherd had been derelict in his duties, permitted deterioration of public housing units, subsidized tenants not meeting statutory requirements and scheduled board meetings outside Marin City.)

The Redevelopment Agency voted to abolish the project area committee after a move by Harding to take no action failed for lack of a second.

Magee Lawyer Fined, Jailed For Contempt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert Carrow of Novato, court-appointed defense attorney for Ruchel Magee, was sentenced to 10 days in jail today and fined $1,000 for contempt of court.

Carrow had been cited on two counts of contempt during Magee's trial. The proceedings were declared a mistrial when the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

One count involved a remark Feb. 23 during cross examination of a witness. Carrow said, "Your honor, I submit to you that the trial is becoming a joke."

The second count involved two instances March 23 during closing arguments when Carrow was held to have violated court rules by informing the jury of the penalty for kidnaping for extortion, life in prison without possibility of parole.

Alvin Goldstein, representing Carrow, told Superior Judge Morton R. Colvin that Carrow's statements resulted from the passion of the proceedings, and an apology should suffice.

Colvin said an apology might suffice if he simply had attacked the court, "but he disrupted the orderly administration of justice."

Carrow, the former mayor of Novato, was sentenced to five days in jail and a $500 fine on each count. The sentences were made consecutive.

Goldstein said he would appeal the decision by seeking a writ of habeas corpus.

On Monday Carrow asked that aggravated kidnap charges against Magee, the San Quentin lifer indicted because of the 1970 Marin County courthouse gun battle, be dismissed. Carrow said retrial on the kidnap charges would constitute double jeopardy.

The jury in Magee's first trial voted 12-0 for acquittal on aggravated kidnaping but 11-1 for conviction of simple kidnaping. A mistrial was declared when the jury was unable to agree.

State Attorney General Evelle Younger previously announced the state would drop murder charges against Magee, 34, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis case, because of a vote 11-1 for acquittal by the jury.

Massed Choirs Will Present Novato Concert

The Novato High Choraliers and Music Theater Workshop and choirs of three elementary schools will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Novato High School gymnasium.

The elementary school choirs, 180 voices, from Pacheco, Pleasant Valley and Rancho schools, formed in February, will be giving their first public performance.

The massed choirs will sing a tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a special arrangement of "We Shall Overcome," by Roy Ringwald, arranger for Fred Waring.

The performance will be directed by John H. Enders, district music instructor, with Karen Woomer, contralto; Deborah Layne, soprano; and Paul DeWitt, bass, as soloists.

Call Made To Impeach Nixon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The three-state Central Area Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Monday urged Congress to begin impeachment proceedings against President Nixon.

The conference said the President should be impeached because of his budget cuts and impoundment of education funds and the "criminal break-in and bugging of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate apartments."

The conference represents 19 branches of the NAACP in California's Central Valley and the states of Nevada and Utah.

Petaluma Ready For Vote On Controls

It has been just over a year since the City of Petaluma adopted a growth-control plan limiting new residential building permits to 500 yer year. On June 12, Petaluma citizens will get a chance to vote on whether they wish to continue the restrictions.

The election issue is somewhat complicated by a construction industry suit in federal court challenging the constitutionality of the procedure. Nevertheless, it will be watched in a lot of places besides Petaluma.

And If Petalumans prove at the polls that they endorse the idea, we may expect other cities to try the same system.

PETALUMA WAS experiencing much the same problem with rapid growth that came earlier to Novato, San Rafael, and unincorporated Marin areas when the city council last spring adopted the growth-control ordinance.

It set up a citizen committee to evaluate all building requests and allot permits on the basis of those most desirable or creating least problems. New construction permits were split evenly between the rapidly growing east side and the slower-growing west side of the city.

Unavoidably, there were complaints that some projects were allowed which should not have been, and vice versa. On the whole, however, the committee apparently was both conscientious and fair.

HOWEVER, the biggest protest has come from outside Petaluma — from residents who will have no vote in the June 12 referendum.

Because of the strict controls in Petaluma, builders naturally turned to nearby areas, especially Cotati and Rohnert Park, in seeking to fill the demand for new homes and apartments.

The growth pressures that were creating problems in Petaluma thus were passed on to its neighbors.

This was brought out pointedly last week in a discussion at the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors' meeting on density to be allowed in the vicinity of Sonoma State College.

Officialys of the college and of Rohnert Park lined up together to urge extremely low-density zoning in the unincorporated areas surrounding the college. They wanted it limited to one home for every 10 acres.

Such zoning would, it seems inevitable, just transfer the pressures to Rohnert Park itself, to Santa Rosa — and back to Petaluma.

THE APPROACH in Petaluma has not been to deny growth by zoning, but to control it by limiting the number of permits issued each year. The thought behind this is that the city can cope with growth if that growth is held to a reasonable rate.

It seems to us that this makes more sense than such things as 10-acre zoning (or 60-acre zoning, as has been adopted for much of rural Marin). It makes sense because it recognizes the need both for housing and for the public facilities which should accompany new housing. It may delay an owner's development of his land, but it does not forbid it forever. It does not constitute "inverse condemnation."

And, while decisions of the permit board necessarily are somewhat arbitrary, they appear less arbitrary than the "zoning to extinction" device.

The Red-eyed Chirper

Do you have a red-eyed chirper in your garden? Many Marinites do. That's a rough translation of the Latin name for the rufous-sided towhee. It is red-eyed, is a chirper, and is rufous-sided. But the word "towhee" is imitative of the cry of a related species.

Higher Education Budget Figures Boggle The Mind

By EARL G. WATERS

The Legislature is reviewing, as it does each year, the budgets for higher education. The state's program is divided among the university and the state and community colleges. The figures involved boggle the mind.

The dilemma of the legislators is putting it all together. They never have before them full information as to all sources of finances for the programs. Adding to their confusion is the tendency of those in charge to keep shifting their operational standards. This makes comparisons between institutions, and from year to year, impossible.

EFFORTS TO COMPEL coordination among the three programs have failed. It costs more for state college education than for community colleges, and more than either for the university. For this reason the Legislature has attempted to direct undergraduates to the state and community colleges.

But, faced with startling predictions of enrollment declines, the university has engaged in an all-out battle for enrollment regardless of student needs or abilities.

It has acted to increase enrollments bv extensive recruitment, reduction of grade average requirements for admission, exceeding special admission limits, waiving tuition rather than lending it, and increasing student aid from funds not controlled by the Legislature.

THE EXTENT to which the university can flout the Legislature by resorting to other funds can be seen by the size of its endowments. In 1968 it was ranked as the eighth most heavily endowed university in the nation, excelled only by such schools as Harvard, Yale and Princeton. By 1971 these funds had grown to over $328 million. In contrast private schools like USC, Pomona, Redlands and Santa Clara were far below the $100 million mark.

Many of these endowments, like the one used to provide emoluments for UC President Charles J. Hitch above those allowed by state law, are "unrestricted" and can be used by the regents as they see fit.

For example, to enforce the restoration of non-resident tuition fees the Legislature cut UC's budget by $1 million. The regents merely replaced the funds with endowment earnings.

THE AMOUNTS of general fund money allocated for the 19-campus state college system and the nine-campus university are about equal, each being around $400 million. But the colleges have another $200 million and UC an additional $350 million from other sources. This does not include federal money for special projects.

The community colleges are budgeted for $215 million but they will also get more than $300 million from local property taxes. Altogether the 1973-74 expenditures for the programs will exceed $2 billion, capital outlay for buildings not included.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post's report indicates a seeming disregard by the university of the need to cut costs.

To Guard Garbage Can, Just Feed Raccoons

For as long as I've lived in Marin and knew of the raccoons living among us, I've also read of people that go to all kinds of trouble to secure their garbage cans.

I feed raccoons nightly and maybe three times nightly and have never had my garbage can disturbed. I shudder to think of them getting into some of the things that are thrown into garbage cans. This type of feeding certainly must have killed more than one animal.

They'll eat numerous things — dog chow, cat chow, crackers, cookies, bread, marshmallows, etc. For five cents a night, isn't it worth it to watch these intelligent, beautiful animals and to know that this night they didn't go hungry? It isn't their fault that we've taken all their land from them and they're forced to live among us.

Prefers Motorcycles To More Residences

I wish to reply to a letter written by Louise Gulick and published in the Independent Journal on April 19. Mrs. Gulick states Marin County has no obligation to subsidize motorcycling in the area. However she says she is in accord with activities such as bicycling, hiking, horseback riding, etc. She forgets that areas and trails are set aside for these activities with taxpayer funds.

The motorcyclists ask for a parcel of land which they will maintain and police themselves. It can be far away from living areas so as not to disturb. They ask nothing of taxpayer money. They wish land which has no other use at present!. . .

Incidentally, the motorcycles were removed from China Camp and can no longer ride there. But wait until the bulldozers start making their noise, leveling hillsides and knocking down trees.

Motorcycling is a good healthy outlet for young and old alike. Many families enjoy this sport together. Building more homes will create an influx of new people, many of them young and interested in motorcycles. Where will they go?

I for one would rather look up at the hills, scarred or not instead of rooftop upon rooftop of crowded housing.

School Coordinator Objects To Reporting

The I-J's coverage of the April 23 meeting of the Tam High School District's board of education was extremely distressing to me. It is beyond my comprehension how your article could be entitled, "Tam High Open Campus Plea Heard" and proceed to devote the first two-thirds of the column to an item which amounts to "should the kids be allowed to spend their time freely?" The board debated this question for all of 15 minutes. But the main agenda item of the evening was concerned with the survival of an entire school and took an hour and a half of the meeting. You neglected to print one word of the firm support for Meewah Mountain that was voiced by the board, chose to write about the only lukewarm response out of a repeatedly positive board reaction, and relegated the entire subject to the status of some secondary item that the board also listened to. Perhaps your columnist didn't notice that about 40 of the 50 or 60 community members at the meeting left after the Meewah Mountain presentation before the "open campus plea" was heard.

How can I or anyone else expect to really learn about the news from such biased reporting?

Bridge Barrier Plan Could Set Up Real Howls

According to the I-J of April 14, the directors of the Golden Gate Bridge have now decided to do something about a suicide barrier on the bridge, after 477 jumpers have gone over the rail.

This barrier is to consist of a series of pencil steel rods, extending up eight feet to a steel rail support.

The estimated cost, $750,000, with another $67,000 for design and wind-tunnel testing. Knowing how these characters figure, I would say this new idea will go into millions of dollars.

Furthermore, has this group given any thought to the harmonics of this idea? If not they better, because when the prevailing west winds start blowing through this giant harp it will sound like hundreds of banshees howling around the bridge.

On Nov. 2, 1964, I wrote Mr. T. D. Hardcastle, who was then one of Marin County's bridge directors, my idea of a suicide barrier, which consisted of a series of tee-iron bars extending up four feet from the top of the present railing, with the top foot bent inboard 30 degrees. These bars to support four strands of barbed wire, 12 inches apart, above the present railing.

This design would not need any wind-tunnel testing or high priced design engineers, but could be installed by any fencing contractor under $75,000.

Tom Hardcastle submitted my sketch to bridge engineer Arthur Jenkins on April 6, 1964, where it was dropped.

This rod idea now on the fire would be a simple matter for a person bent on suicide to squeeze through those rods and over.

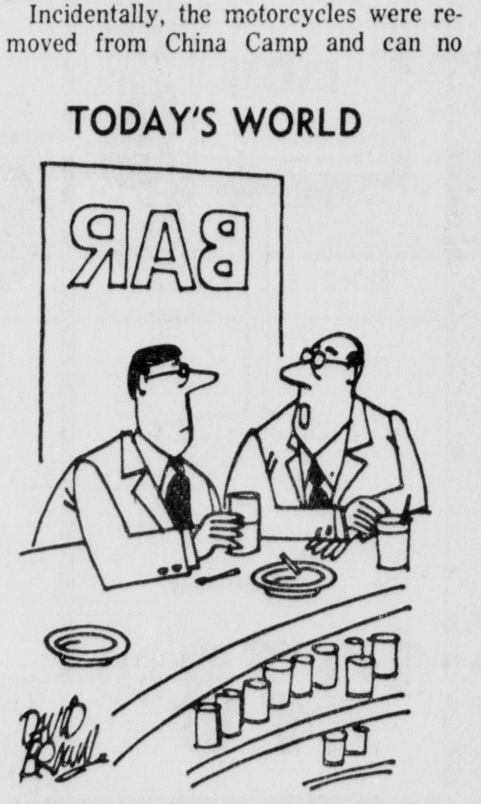
TODAY'S WORLD



"I was 48 years old before water pollution drove me to this sort of thing."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Elusive Chance For World Peace Must Be Seized Now

WASHINGTON — When drafting the momentous speech he made to the Associated Press editors last week, Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security affairs, took a long look at the road ahead. Within the next few years the principals with whom he has worked in formulating a policy of peace — Chou En-lai, Willy Brandt, Leonid Brezhnev — will have passed from the scene.

In Kissinger's thinking the coming three to four years will present the golden opportunity to knit together what has been started. It is an opportunity that may never occur again if this chance for peace slips away by default.

So to the editors in New York he proposed a new and comprehensive approach to Europe and Japan. "We deal with each other regionally and even competitively in economic matter, on an integrated basis in defense, and as nation-states in diplomacy," he said. He was preparing the way for the President's visit to Europe in the fall.

WITHOUT EXTENSIVE progress toward economic cooperation, that trip will be useless or even worse than useless. The text of the speech was given to the foreign offices of Europe shortly before its delivery. Kissinger was saying: Here is the broad outline of what could be a new chapter of understanding and common endeavor.

The hope is that within the next week or 10 days response will come from across the Atlantic and the Pacific, and the long and arduous process of working out economic ties can begin. The shadow cast over this hope even as he was speaking was the Watergate scandal and its impact at home and abroad.

In the question period following his prepared address, about a third of the questions dealt with Watergate. Another third concerned Vietnam and the rest were miscellaneous. Kissinger scarcely needed this indicator of where editorial interest lay, since it is reflected on the front pages of every newspaper.

Responding to the Watergate questions, he said what he has been expressing in private for some time. If we now indulge in an orgy of recrimination we shall certainly lose the chance to help lead the way to a generation of peace. President Nixon will be in office for another three and a half years and a President crippled or destroyed will serve in dreary futility through a prolonged feud with Congreee and the public.

THE VENGEANCE-IS-MINE theme is understandable. The arrogance of the White House has been intolerable, notably on the side of the German Mafia — Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Company. This arrogance has prompted the long unhappy weeks of denial and evasion.

It added up in many instances to rank deceit.

So now, Kissinger is saying, get the bloodletting over and let's get down to what this nation must do in the months ahead. Having known the principals at the top level, he has compassion for their personal tragedies. As far as Watergate is concerned, the President's security adviser knew nothing of the involvement of the men around the President until the main outlines of the story began to break.

EVERYTHING TURNS on continuing confidence in the United States. If Brezhnev comes here in midsummer, a foremost objective will be to achieve a breakthrough in the stalled negotiation in the second round of the SALT talks. Without intervention at the top, the talks in Geneva can go on, as did the session just ended, with wearying repetition of old and impossible positions from both sides of the conference table.

As for China, the elderly men in power look for stability and continuity from the United States. They want to see the relationship begun so fortuitously by the President carried on into an indefinite future.

James Reston in the New York Times compared the Kissinger speech to the address given by Sec. of State George C. Marshall at Harvard when he proposed the plan for rehabilitating Europe that was to bear his name. This may be overstating the case, but it seems to one observer better to overstate it rather than treat a masterful presentation merely in turns of the current conflict here at home.

The Marshall Plan, when the United States proceeded to distribute 2.5 per cent of our gross national income to restore war-wounded Europe, was America's finest hour. To achieve what Kissinger has proposed — hardly less than economic union with our trading partners — will, as he knows, be infinitely more difficult. So much has happened to America's strength in the world since that finest hour.

Forgotten Kingdom Of Sikkim Poses Problem For India

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The last time a major news reference service found reason to mention the chogyal (king) of Sikkim was in May, 1969 when he was included in a lengthy list of dignitaries attending the funeral of the president of India. So far as the chogyal was concerned it was not a headline of much eyecatching value.

New Yorkers perhaps heard more of him than most others since his queen is the American-born former Hope Cooke of New York where society gives more knee-bending deference to visiting royalty than often is bestowed upon them by their own citizens.

WHAT GIVES SIKKIM its importance is its location, nestled in the Himalaya mountains with Nepal and Bhutan on either side and with Tibet to the north and India to the south. It is an Indian protectorate and an important buffer against possible invasion from the north.

It attained special prominence in 1962 when China accused India of attacking Chinese positions from across the Sikkim boundary and then proceeded to humiliate India in a brief border war that same year.

The dispute flared again briefly in 1965, reaching the farcical stage when China accused India of "kidnaping" 800 sheep, 59 yaks and four men presumably assigned to look after them.

THE FOREGOING is offered as a quick thumbnail backgrounding last week's disclosure that Indian troops had occupied Gangtok, Sikkim's capital, at the request of the ruler.

Amid the highest mountains on earth, Sikkim provides some of the world's most awesomely beautiful scenery. Its climate ranges from Alpine cold to temperate to tropical. The wooded slopes of the outer ranges are covered with rhododendron and towering magnolias.

Politically, its 200,000 people in some 2,700 square miles offer a teacup-sized brew made up of the problems and contradictions common to the underdeveloped world with a few others thrown in.

AS A PROTECTORATE is a world in which India is a champion of independence for all, Sikkim is an embarrassment to the Indian government which nonetheless has shown no inclination to give it up.

Sikkim's 20-year-old treaty with India recognizes Sikkim as self-governing and autonomous but gives India control over communications, defense and foreign relations. The present king, Alden Thondup Namgyal, took over as a champion of representative government. Under his rule, literacy has increased from 25 per cent to nearly 50 per cent, government revenues have doubled, road mileage tripled.

But his is a divided kingdom. The native Lepchas make up but one fourth of the population. Nepalese make up the remainder and they are the ones now demanding reforms possibly including the King's abdication.

Would Candidates Seek Office If They Attended Meetings?

Candidates in the June 12 Petaluma city election are politicking vigorously, but they are curiously absent from public meetings.

Usually attendance at meetings of the city council, planning commission and school board rises rapidly after candidacy filing has closed. Presumably after a person has filed for an office, he or she feels obligated to start attending meetings to find out what's going on.

This year candidates are few and far between at the meetings, with the exception of incumbents and a few who have been following a particular board for months.

One wonders how many of the candidates would still aspire to hold the public office if they attended the meetings. Both the Petaluma City Council and board of education have had constituents shouting at them lately.

Some candidates haven't been to a meeting since their unsuccessful attempts two years ago. If they do bother to attend, they'll find times have changed.

SPRING SEEMS to have brought an avalanche of petition passing in southern Sonoma. In the past few weeks residents of Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati have been besieged by friends and neighbors circulating petitions for or against some public issue.

In Petaluma, residents of the Sunnyslope area spent weeks passing petitions in opposition to the subdivision planned by Arthur Condiotti. Despite the barrage of signatures, the subdivision was approved by the city council and disgruntled citizens are now talking about a possible lawsuit to halt the project.

Petalumans were also asked to sign petitions both for and against the K-Mart store proposed for Lakeville Highway. Although the Kresgo Co. amassed a great list of names by paying circulators, they also failed to win over the council.

School schedules have also produced petitions as parents have been furiously badgering their neighbors to sign documents in favor of year-around school. The next knock on the door is likely to be another neighbor with yet another petition in opposition. Some signed both to preserve friendships.

In Rohnert Park, the growth control question has caused residents to fire up copying machines to whip out petitions urging the city council to reverse its stand and establish a strict growth control policy.

Cotati residents may also join the procession soon as oldtimers seek signatures to oust the three younger members of the city council.

Nearly 600 Register As Capitol Lobbyists

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Nearly 600 persons, representing a range of interests from the giant ITT Corp. to a 92-year-old, self-proclaimed Capitol muckraker, registered as lobbyists this year, it was reported today.

In a directory of legislative advocates and organizations published by the legislature, 576 persons were listed as lobbyists. The total is 115 more than last year and amounts to almost six lobbyists for every state lawmaker.

Most of the lobbyists represent only one or two groups, but some, such as Robert J. Beckus of Sacramento, promote the interests of up to 16 organizations.

Among the names is that of Robert J. Simpson, who advocates simply the causes of Robert J. Simpson, which usually means denouncing government officials as "traitors" or worse.

The 92-year-old man has been a Capitol fixture for years, and by his count, has been arrested more than 190 times for walking his pushcart through the building with protest signs. He registered as a lobbyist for the first time this year but was still being arrested.

May Day

The glorious rebirth of nature at springtime inspires one universal activity: flower picking. In medieval Europe, in festivities that date back to Roman times, even lords and ladies arose with the sun on May 1st to "go a-Maying," and gather flowers and branches. Washing the face in May-day morning dew was thought to beautify the skin. The festivities would continue all day with singing and dancing around a decorated pole, the Maypole.

DO YOU KNOW — What importance does May Day have for international labor?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Peking is China's capital.

Detroit Provides The Answer; Emission Control For People

WASHINGTON — Detroit has had so much trouble meeting the Environmental Protection Agency's emission standards that it was given one year's grace, until 1976, to produce an engine which will not pollute the air. Even with the extra 12 months, the automobile companies insist they will not be able to meet the EPA deadline.

The auto manufacturers are so desperate that they are now submitting alternate proposals to Washington which they believe will take care of the air pollution hazard.

One promising plan I heard about was brought to EPA the other day by Huxley Barnstable, an automotive engineer who has been working on the emission problem for years.

HE TOLD ME, "It is absolutely impossible for Detroit to develop an engine which will meet EPA requirements by 1976."

"Then you're throwing in the towel?" I asked.

"Absolutely not. It's true that we can't build an engine that will cut down on carbon monoxide, but we believe we have developed a device which, when attached to a human being, will make it impossible for him to breathe the poisons we emit."

"That's fantastic!" I said.

"For years the automobile companies have devoted all their research to cutting down on pollution created by their engines. Only recently did we realize it was easier to invent a gadget to put on a person."

"WHAT IS IT?" I asked excitedly.

I tore the paper off. "Why, it's a gauze bandage with strings on it!"

"That's correct," Barnstable said. "You tie it over your nose and mouth when you go outside and it will cut the dirty air you breathe by 50 per cent."

"It's so simple," I said. "How did you scientists ever think of it?"

"It was really an accident," Barnstable replied. "One of our researchers was going through an old National Geographic and saw a photo taken of a group of people during a typhoid epidemic in Japan. They were all wearing gauze bandages over their mouths. It suddenly dawned on him that the bandage was the answer to air pollution in the United States."

"Leave it to the Japanese," I said.

"THE BEAUTY of it is that these bandages will cost the consumer only $1 while an anti-pollution device on a car would cost $300. We've not only solved the emissions problem in the United States but we've done it at a $299 saving to the car buyer."

"And they said Detroit has been asleep all these years!"

"What we have to do now is persuade the Environmental Protection Agency to make it a law that everyone in this country must wear a guaze bandage by 1976," Barnstable said. "Anyone who goes outdoors without his bandage would be subject to a fine or imprisonment, or both."

"It puts the onus on the public where it belongs," I agreed.

"OUR CONTRIBUTION to the Clean Air Act would be that you wouldn't be able to start your car until your bandage was tied over your mouth."

"I don't see how EPA could turn down your proposal," I said. "If this doesn't prove that the auto companies have gone the extra mile, then I don't know what will."

Member Of Angel's To Vacaville

A 25-year-old Hell's Angel, whose attempts to rob eight occupants of a Lucas Valley home ended in his own hospitalization, was sent yesterday to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville for 90 days of observation.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court decided he wanted a recommendation from the state Department of Corrections before sentencing Michael Lyn Tankersley of Santa Rosa on a charge of attempted robbery.

He was arrested Aug. 2 after an inept robbery attempt concluded with one of the victims grabbing Tankersley's gun and hitting him with it, according to sheriff's deputies.

They said Tankersley went to the house at 561 Idylberry Drive and demanded money at gunpoint, but, instead of cash, received a thrashing before deputies arrived. He was treated for scalp cuts at a local hospital, then jailed.

Salary Talks

The Petaluma Board of Education will hold a special closed session at 7 p.m. today to discuss teacher salary negotiations with Supt. Lesly H. Meyer.

Mill Valley Schools Seeking Fund Grants

Applications for state and federal grants totaling $85,732 were approved last night by trustees of the Mill Valley School District, according to Patsy White, secretary to Supt. James A. Collins.

Approved were requests for $24,115 for an early childhood education program at Tamalpais Valley School; $32,487 for a reading specialist program; $26,730 for a grant to disadvantaged schools, where a certain percentage of the children have parents with low incomes and $2,400 for library materials.

Mrs. White said the board also set machinery into motion for selecting principals for Marin Terrace and Alto-Edna Maguire schools.

A screening committee will sift 65 applications for the posts, she said. The committee will consist of three teachers from each of the two schools, two other teachers to be chosen by the Mill Valley Teachers Association, two principals at other schools to be chosen by Collins, the president of the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association Council, plus the P-TA presidents of the two schools, Trustee Thomas D. Spencer and Peter G. Palches, who will become superintendnet July 1.

A meeting with parents and the Marin Terrace staff probably will be held next week, the board was told last night.

Mrs. White said the board was also presented a preliminary budget of $4,534,000, an increase over this year's $4,347,000 spending program, but took no action.

Marin's Span Workers Top 1972 Payroll

Marin County residents employed by the Golden Gate Bridge District earned a total income of nearly $3 million in 1972, District Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring reported today.

The district's total 1972 payroll was $8,030,620 and personnel numbered 628 full and part-time employees, with 240 employees residing in Marin.

Of the total payroll, employees residing in Marin accounted for $2,743,730, or 34.2 per cent. Sonoma County was second, with employee income of $2,240,407, followed by San Francisco County with $1,588,317. District employees residing in other Golden Gate Corridor counties earned $1,458,166.

Of the total personnel employed by the district, the bus division led with 339, followed by the bridge division with 185; the district's management and administrative staff, 74, and the ferry division, 30.

Evening Family Counselor Hired

Additional scheduling is now available with the Family Service Agency in the Petaluma area because of the hiring of an evening family counselor, according to William C. Murray, executive director of the agency in Sonoma County.

Fredric M. Latty, who has had years of experience as a social workers with families, children and adults, is the new counselor.

Ross School Board Cuts $22,266 From Budget

A frugal Ross School District Board last night thinned down a proposed 1973-74 maintenance and capital outlay budget by $22,266 after inspecting Ross School at a workshop meeting.

Supt. Thomas A. Anderson said trustees started whittling the proposed $41,429 section of the preliminary 1973-74 budget, after considering a total of $36,524 proposed for maintenance and replacement of fixtures and fittings at the 32-year-old school.

"High priority" items totaling $20,770 was cut to $14,258, and "low" and "very low" priority items of $11,865 and $3,889 deleted.

The board decided it would spend money on painting some classrooms, repairing and rewiring and a new wall for the multipurpose room, replacing the old venetian blinds in two or three classrooms, new tile and carpet for two classrooms.

The board decided to get new tables and chairs for three classrooms, reported Anderson (the old 1941-era desks are sold locally as antiques as soon as they are replaced.)

Other approved expenditures included three teachers' desks — from the state surplus supply at $25 each.

Trustees agreed to spend $630 on resurfacing the blacktop sidewalk in front of Ross School, after hearing the Town of Ross had refused to pay, but said the school patio's surface would only be patched and sealed instead of resurfaced.

Anderson was instructed to investigate prices and alternatives for lockers for fourth, fifth and sixth graders, and to get a list of new audio visual equipment required.

The board left in the budget 15 new music stands, a geiger counter (for civil defense and for science classes) a collator for the office and parent teacher association use, filing cabinets, $650 rental purchase on a mathematic problem machine, and $1,800 on airconditioning for one classroom.

Shower Singing Competition Set

One of the organizers, Thomas Egan, said the competition is intended mainly "for the many quiet people who make like Caruso or Elvis Presley once water hits them between the shoulder blades."

Judges will listen for volume, lyric expression, range, rhythm and how well the sound of the voice blends with the sound of running water.

Ryan said contestants must agree not to hold Rutland or the local chapter of the Society for the Preservation of Barber Shop Quartet singing liable for injury or for "laryngitis and athletes's foot."

State's Junior Miss Heads For Alabama

The Novato Jaycees sponsored the local Junior Miss Pageant, and Lori said only one member of the Jaycees from Novato came to the state pageant held in Santa Rosa, while there were as many as 15 Jaycees from Simi Valley and 12 from as far away as Huntington Beach to support their candidates.

Lori and the North Dakota Junior Miss will be living with a family in Mobile for the two weeks they are there. Her prizes are a $1,000 scholarship, a pocket 30 Instamatic camera and the trip to Mobile. However, she has had to furnish her own wardrobe and much of that has been made by her sister, Lois.

On May 11, the final night of the national contest Ed McMahon will be commentator for CBS. The show will be on KPIX at 8 p.m.

Lori will wear a dress of white organdie over a crepe back satin slip, which her sister made.

Lori explained that this is not a beauty contest. The girls are judged on their poise, physical fitness, scholastic achievement and creative performing arts.

"I was a long shot winner," Lori said, explaining that she didn't place first in any single competition but was overall winner.

The Novato girl will be singing "Second Hand Rose" as her talent performance, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Gieleghem will be there to see her perform.

Black Poet Says 'Old Age' Has Changed Her Outlook

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — In her poem "Ego-tripping," Nikki Giovanni writes, "I am a gazelle so swift/So swift you can't catch me."

It is rare to become a successful poet before the age of 30, and the fact that Miss Giovanni is black and a woman makes her achievement all the more unusual.

Reared in a middle-class family in Cincinnati, and a graduate of Fisk University, Miss Giovanni is the author of five books of poetry and a biographical essay about her grandmother called "Gemini," nominated for a national book award this year. She also has received an honorary doctorate from Wilberforce University, and an award for outstanding achievement from Mademoiselle magazine. She now is an editorial consultant for Encore magazine.

NIKKI GIOVANNI

But gradually, as in her most recent book, "My House," she has turned toward more personal and universal themes and now deals with social ideas from a broadened perspective. Her poems now radiate black pride and woman pride — and also, most importantly, self-pride, that both depends on these categories and transcends them.

In an interview held after the reading, the slender poet, who in certain lights looks like a 16-year-old, attributed the change in her poetry to "old age."

"I think that I've had a logical growth, a logical progression. I don't know how long I could have kept writing the poems that I wrote, and I think that certainly my son's had an effect on my world outlook. Children have a way of softening you, I should think."

Miss Giovanni continues, "I'm not trying to say that I'm 80 — don't misunderstand — but a 21-29-year-old is very different from a person 30-39, and I don't like people who are 30 years old acting like they're 20. I don't believe in it.

"I THINK I'm now in what Victoria, (her press agent) and I call my 'love period,' " says Miss Giovanni. "Black poets traditionally don't write love poems ... But black people do fall romantically in love. I think I'm more interested now in exploring people than I am in exploring ideologies — mostly because I've explored the ideologies, and there's a limit. It's always going to come back to you — no matter who you are, no matter what you believe in — it's going to come back to you."

Miss Giovanni feels that love for the individual and love for humanity "go hand in hand ... But I don't think that you should ever confuse the two. I don't think you can ever approach a group passionately. There has to be some body.

When Miss Giovanni speaks of her 3-year-old son Thomas, her face softens and the extent of his influence on her life is obvious. Some of her poems she has written for and about him.

Miss Giovanni does not consider herself a feminist, in the current sense of the term. She sees the women's liberation movement as "very white, and I think that's probably as it should be. What black women have called drudgery white women are now viewing in terms of liberation. And certainly the issues of childcare centers ... and equal pay are not new ones, and they're not something we have forgotten. These have been constant problems in our community because our community is a female-based community.

SHE CONTINUED, "I'm sympathetic of course ... I think it has relevance to white women, and I wish them the best of luck. But I think it's going to be a long time before they have any black women involved in it or before black women and white women come together, because there's a lot of emotion.

As for black people in the United States, Miss Giovanni does not feel that conditions have improved and is "very pessimistic about the President.

She also points out that blacks, like white liberals, traditionally fear success, which they equate with corruption, and that they are "geared for failure." But her attitude toward the future of black people is not one of resignation or despair.

"I THINK that in terms of black people as a group it's out there. It's just that nobody's going to hand it to you. It's a lot of work. But if you want it, do it. The worst that can happen is that you fail. It is better to fail, I think, trying to do something than to fail because you say 'I'm gonna be cool. I ain't gonna try it.' You're still a failure."

"Where I sympathize most with men is that there's nothing in the system that says that they can be wrong. There's nothing that says a man can say, 'I made a terrific mistake, and I'm sorry,' or, 'That hurt,' and sit down and cry. And I would hope, speaking of the feminist movement, that it would give men the same space that they need. And I would hope that my son is enough of a man to be able to cry, to be able to be wrong, because once you can be wrong then you can be terrifically right. If you always have to be right, then you have to be safe which means you'll never do anything."

How Much Should Food Labels Tell?

NEW YORK (UPI) — What kind of information should appear on the labels of products bought in food stores? The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed telling the consumer the percentage of the recommended daily allowance (RDA) for an adult contained in the various constituents of the food product. Also listed would be nutrition information about the amounts of calories, protein, fat and carbohydrates.

However, Dr. Paul Lachance, professor of nutritional physiology at Rutgers University, contends that the average consumer cannot understand what this information means when she or he shops for food.

He made that point to the editors of the Sciences, journal of the New York Academy of Sciences.

In the article titled "Food for Thought," he said if the information on the label were related to individual meals rather than food intake per day, it might be useful to the housewife — or househusband or houseperson, as the Women's Movement likes to designate the keeper of the homefront.

Another point about all the information proposed for labels: a shopper will have to take a magnifying glass on food-fetching excursions.

Putting so much information on a label may further clog aisles of supermarkets with parked carts—as shoppers take time to read and digest the consumer information on the bottle or can or plastic tube or box.

There's another problem: how, oh, how will nutritional information be fixed to apples, bananas, tomatoes, potatoes, peaches, radishes, celery and such?

What about fixing same to meat packages?

As for the professor's contention that we're slightly incapable of understanding nutritional information, give yourself a test. Define vitamin. Tell the meaning of calorie. Then look meanings up in a dictionary.

If you were wrong, you're a nutritional dunce.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

She's Told To Count Flowers And Forget About The Weeds

RAP:

I've called this "The People Today," but I guess you know I'm aiming at one person, who seems to stand for them all.

It's hard for me to understand why everyone's the same.

They think the same and act the same and play the same ol' game.

Inside they're thinking evil thoughts and "conning" all the while!

Their hearts: a cup of stones, three cubes of ice and some black butter —

Oh, fellows are so blind to love they don't know that it's there.

Take my advice (unless you're sure) — "Get out of there, and fast!"

Cause what you think are warm kind words and soulful Jello-eyes,

They do you in, they'll win and win and then they'll leave you flat,

For he who wins the rat race is still a lousy rat! — COCOA WHO KNOWS (Age 15)

COCOA:

Your writing: good; your rhyming: fine; your pessimism: No!

DEAR COCOA:

Someone hurt you badly, but don't judge all by one guy's deeds —

It's said that she who counts the flowers forgets to count the weeds. —HELEN

P.S. What we mean in plain prose is: All but the very lucky meet one or two (or three or four) no-good rotten con artists in their lifetimes. And when you're down it's human nature to suspect everybody of being a rat. This feeling won't last long if you open your eyes and see that most people would rather help than hurt you. Give them a chance!

RAP:

My brother and I have always wanted a trail bike. Our parents were against it, still are, but a couple months ago my Dad made a deal: If my brother makes "Cs" in school and I make a "B" average, we can have the bike.

I can easily make "B" in everything but math. Right now, I'm pulling a "D" here. My brother has brought his grades up, so that makes me the guy that goofs up our summer. He's worked hard and he'll be pretty mad. I don't want to be the dummy with the fat lip, but is there any other way? — D.K.W.

DEAR D.:

Ask your math teacher for special help after class. If you bring your grade up to a "C" here, and pull "Bs" everywhere else, your father will surely relent — unless he has a basic fear of trail bikes and is looking for an excuse to keep you off one. (Note to Mr. .: If this is the case, you should have been more honest.) — HELEN

D.:

You say you pull easy "Bs" in other courses. So how about shooting for at least one "A"? Then even a "C" in math would bring your grade point average to "3" — a solid "B."

If you're really trying, your teacher should give you that half-point for effort. Hope he agrees with me. — SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel —or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

A Quiet Room Is Created Out Of Unused Bedroom

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

There's something rather desperate about that term all-purpose. It seems to reflect an anxiety to squeeze every centimeter of utility out of a particular product or space. We even expect our automobiles to be all-purpose, demanding seats that recline and trunk space that expands into the interior.

But the all-purpose room is a toughy. The moment you try to make it do something for everybody in the family, the space falls apart as a pleasing environment. It becomes a hodgepodge with or without people.

Here are some of the things we often try to put together in an all-purpose room: sewing, guesting, television viewing and music listening, reading and homework for youths and adults. If any three family members try to enjoy any three activities, you have mayhem in the manor.

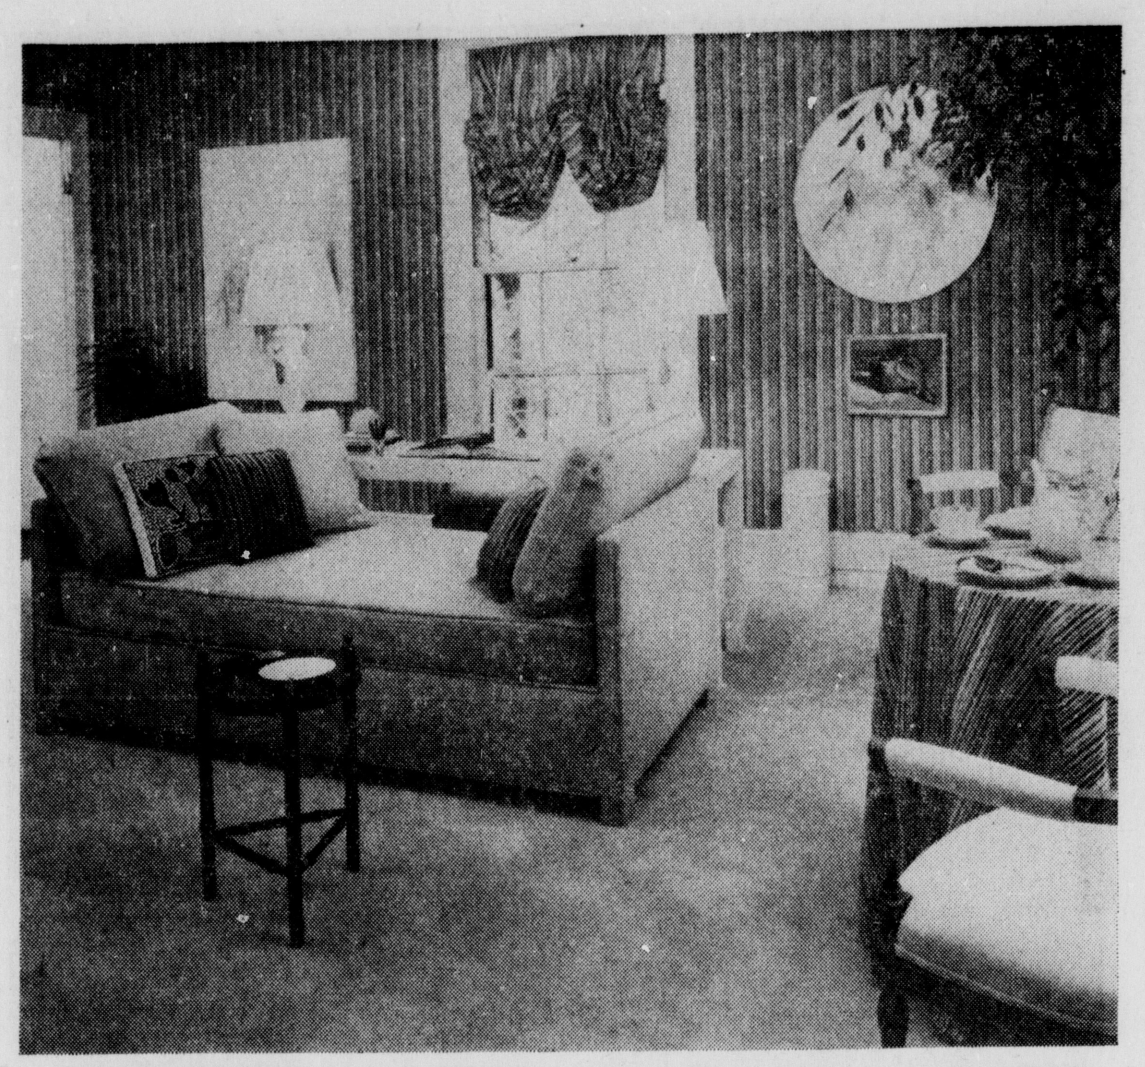
THE CLIENT'S daughter had graduated from college and moved to another section of the country. Now that her room was available, the parents asked designers Robert Newell and John Spicer Norwood to help create a room that could occasionally serve guests or their daughter on her infrequent visits yet allow them to enjoy the additional space for everyday activities.

Since the daughter had taken her twin beds and chests to her new apartment, the designers found a new all-upholstered daybed that they upholstered in wide-rib corduroy fabric. Instead of planting this daybed against a wall, they created an island arrangement — of bed and Parsons-type table — about four feet from one window wall. The table acts as a sofa-back table, a library table for reading or paperwork and as a surface for the client's sewing machine. When the room is housing a guest, that same table is in a comfortable position to hold lamps, bedside radio, clock, books, tissues and whatever.

When the guests are gone, the lady of the house can stretch out on the daybed for reading sessions or hours with her needlework. She and her husband can stop for a mid-Sunday tea and snack as a bright change of scenery from the breakfast room.



QUIET PLEASE: As an antidote to all the exterior noise, this cheerful, converted bedroom provides a quiet spot for quiet activities. "Bright Dream" nylon plush carpeting by Burlington House adds its own bit of acoustical control to this sleep-sitting room.

THE OVERALL color quality is one of warm sunlight. Burlington House plush carpet, is a melted butter color and costs about $7 a yard. Inexpensive seersucker fabric has been applied to the walls, used to create "balloon" curtains and stitched to pillows. Another length has been hemmed by the owner to create a washable table cover.

It's become a quiet, contemplative room, filled with light and sun, but one that can handle a portable TV when the need crops up. It has added a new dimension to this couple's lifestyle — one that gives them an extra cushion against noise pollution.

Mammography Is Recommended

"There is no question in my mind that mammography should be used for every woman who presents herself to a physician to be reassured of the nonexistence of breast cancer," said Dr. William B. Hobbins, general and thoracic surgeon, of Madison, Wis.

Moreover, the use of mammography annually to screen all women over the age of 30 for breast cancer is urged by Dr. Hobbins in a report on a seven-year study of the X-ray technique, published in "Chronic Disease Management."

The most striking results were observed in a group of 114 women who were biopsied and among whom, 19 carcinomas were discovered for a rate of 16.6 per cent, he said. None of these breasts had evidenced any defect upon routine examination.

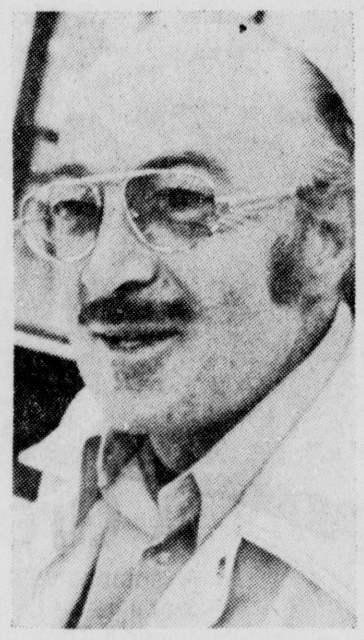
Audience Potential Of 40 Million For Concert

By PAUL LIBERATORE



HAROLD BOXER
Tapes Marin Symphony

More than 40 million persons are expected to hear tonight's musical salute by the Marin Symphony Orchestra to the Organization of American States, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year.

Of course, all 40 million of them won't be at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building for the 8 o'clock concert featuring conductor Carmen Dragon and soprano Claudia Cummings.

The concert, which will include music by composers from five OAS countries, will be taped by the Voice of America for broadcast in 24 countries, primarily in Latin America, as part of a year-long tribute to the OAS.

The Marin Symphony Association has announced that all seats have been filled for the free concert, part of a series of musical programs sponsored by the OAS Department of Cultural Affairs.

"Choosing the Marin Symphony had a great deal to do with my interest in presenting the musical life of a country from its grass roots level, which I think is more representative of the cultural life of its people," said Harold Boxer, music director of Voice of America.

Boxer, in Marin to coordinate the taping, said the Marin Symphony ended his search to find a community orchestra with the standards of musicianship required to perform a difficult program.

"It is a tribute to the Marin Symphony that it can handle it," the 54-year-old director said. "And it is a tribute to the community's music-making, which keeps the orchestra alive."

The tape is to be broadcast in about two weeks, Boxer said, then rebroadcast by local radio stations in Latin America and in Europe, bringing its potential audience to well more than 40 million.

The concert will include "An Outdoor Overture" by Copland, "Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5" by Villa Lobos, "Lyric for Orchestra" by Sommers, "Glitter and be Gay" by Bernstein, music from the ballet "Estancia" by Ginastera, "New England Triptych" by William Schumann and three traditional Mexican songs.

The Voice of America, Boxer noted, has been broadcasting for 30 years and currently produces about 1,000 hours a year of musical programs.

It was born during World War II as a part of the Office of War Information and is funded entirely by congressional appropriations.

Although he described the organization as "bare bones," Boxer said it has not suffered any "massive slash" in its budget and has no more problem getting money than any other organization in times of government cutbacks.

The OAS, the oldest of international regional organizations, grew out of the International Union of American Republics established in 1890. The official charter governing the OAS was signed in Bogata in 1948.

A grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund provided most of the concert's financing, Boxer said. Other contributors include Standard Oil Company, Musicians Local 6 and the Marin Symphony Association.

Ex-Convict Ordered To Vacaville For Diagnosis

A 34-year-old ex-convict, who disarmed a Corte Madera policeman during an attempted burglary last year, was ordered yesterday to undergo 90 days of diagnosis at the state prison system's Vacaville facility before sentencing.

The recommendation of the Department of Corrections was sought by Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court, who must sentence Paul Manuel Barros of Castro Valley on a felony grand theft charge.

Barros, also known as Hoss Barrows, was arrested in October, five months after a Corte Madera officer surprised men trying to steal copper pipe from the Marin Municipal Water District Corporation Yard.

Officer David Zehnder said that on May 12 he saw the pair loading $620 in copper pipe into a car, but was disarmed by Barros while the other fled on foot.

Michael Lopez, 30, of no fixed address, was arrested near the yard after a struggle and pleaded guilty to grand theft, but Barros escaped.

Barros also pleaded guilty despite the threat by Menary of almost certain return to prison. The judge dismissed a felony count of assault with a deadly weapon in return for the guilty plea March 12.

Leonardo Film Set Tomorrow

Production Facility Coordinator Hired

Carter was selected from among 67 candidates and will assist executive director Leon G. Kalimos in the development of programs, facilities and grounds. He will be paid $1,008 per month.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1973 with 244 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American architect and engineer Benjamin Latrobe was born May 1, 1764.

On this day in history:

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York City — 102 floors, a total height of 1,250 feet.

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson predicted the day will come when the United States has a woman chief executive.

A thought for the day: American humorist James Thurber said, "You might as well fall flat on your face as lean over too far backward."

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Tax Windfall Is Announced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California cities and counties will get $19 million more than expected during the current fiscal year from gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees.

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy also said Monday that the city-county allocations in 1973-74 would increase by $30 million from the $335 million in projected revenues going to local governments in fiscal 1972-73 from highway users taxes and motor vehicle license revenues.

Flournoy said increasing sales of gasoline and diesel fuel indicate city-county allocations of highway user taxes for 1972-73 will be about 4.4 per cent higher than originally estimated.

ONE HURT

Stand-Up Cyclists In Crash

It was certainly a case of "Look Ma - No Hands!" yesterday morning as Erik and Scott Von Hendrickson rode down Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur standing on the seats of their motorcycles with their hands outstretched.

Unfortunately, reported Larkspur police, it was very nearly a case of "Look Ma - No Head!" as well.

At 8:30 a.m., Erik Von Hendrickson, 18, of 127 Manor Road, Fairfax, fell from his motorcycle on Magnolia Avenue near Hillview Gardens. Police reported that Scott Von Hendrickson, 17, of the same address, was unable to stop and ran into the first rider's head.

Erik was taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was today reported in satisfactory condition with a head injury, and multiple scrapes and bruises.

Larkspur police said "many witnesses" had reported seeing the two cyclists riding in town standing on the seats of their machines.

Prize Nominee

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — A church action group known as the "Cologne Movement" has nominated Sister Teresa, 60, a native of Albania, for the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize. The Catholic sister has been working in India for more than three decades. An Archbishop spokesman said the nomination was in recognition of her numerous actions of aid to war victims and care for the poor.

Post Attacks Reagan's Tax Limitation Program

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Charging the plan ignores "economic reality," Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has warned Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed tax limitation program could cause sharp local tax increases if enacted.

Reagan, responding to Post's criticism, said Post had "embraced the policy positions of those free-spending leaders in the legislature by whom he is employed."

In a report yesterday to the Legislature, Post — the Legislature's nonpartisan fiscal adviser — said if Reagan's proposal had been adopted in 1966, the governor's currently proposed $9.2 billion budget would have been cut back by 25.5 per cent or $2.5 billion.

"Such a reduction would in effect eliminate all of the existing direct property tax relief programs and in addition require a 30 per cent curtailment in state support for local schools," Post said.

In urging the Legislature to reject the governor's plan along with Reagan's bill to dispose of the state's projected $852 million tax surplus, Post said under the limitation program, "It is almost inevitable that reductions in state expenditures will be shifted to local governments and cause increases in local property and sales taxes."

Reagan, in a statement issued by his office, accused Post, who frequently differs with him over tax policy, of choosing to "abandon the interests of the taxpayers."

The governor said Post and his staff have made "horrendous errors" in the past, including forecasting in 1971 that the state would face a huge budget deficit. Reagan noted the state has a big projected budget surplus.

"For one who has been so wrong in his prediction to again parrot the precursors of misery and ruin who only oppose our efforts to cut taxes, but also have consistently urged higher and higher spending levels, is very difficult to understand," Reagan said.

Under the governor's program, both in a proposed ballot initiative and a constitutional amendment introduced in the Seante, a permanent lid would be set on the amount of taxes the state could collect. The ceiling could be raised only with voter approval.

The measure would permanently cut taxes by 7.5 per cent, and reduce the total tax burden of Californians by 20 per cent over the next 15 years, Reagan has said.

But Post told the lawmakers it would be "imprudent" to enact Reagan's bill to refund the surplus to income and sales taxpayers or any other measure which significantly reduced the initiative's limitation base next year. Assembly Democrats are sponsoring their own refund bill.

Rites For Indians Delay Peace Parley

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A new wave of uncertainity hung over the long standoff at Wounded Knee today as American Indian Movement militants prepared to bury their dead.

Resumption of talks between federal negotiators and AIM leaders apparently were stalled until completion of funeral services for two slain men. No exact time for the services had been announced.

Chief federal negotiator Kent Frizzell said that one crisis passed without major incident Monday when the body of Frank Clearwater, 47, a militant from Cherokee, N.C., was permitted on the Pine Ridge Reservation by the Oglala Sioux tribal government.

The tribe relaxed an earlier court order and permitted the body to be brought to the reservation for a one-day wake. It was to be removed today possibly to the neighboring rosebud reservation for burial.

AIM leaders had earlier insisted upon burial of Clearwater's body at Wounded Knee but the tribal government vetoed this because Clearwater was not an Oglala Sioux.

The body of Lawrence Lamont, 31, Pine Ridge, a member of the tribe, was to be buried at Wounded Knee with the government restriction that the burial part be limited to eight to 10 close relatives.

Frizzell and an assistant negotiator, Richard Hellstern, said they ready to meet with AIM leaders Dennis Banks and Leonard Crow Dog—possibly today. But it appeared the controversy over funeral arrangements might delay for a third day the resumption of the talks.

"I still think we are running out of time," Frizzell said, "but I don't like to set deadlines or issue ultimatums in a situation of this type."

Retirement Is Seen As A New Beginning

EDWINA CODONI
"I live every day as though it's my birthday, as though it's the last day of my life."

Edwina Codoni, veteran San Rafael educator who will leave the city's school system next month after 37 years of service, sees her retirement as the beginning of a new life.

When the energetic, 61-year-old Miss Codoni leaves her office as principal of Coleman School for the last time June 15, she will immediately begin preparation for a year-long vacation that will take her from Hawaii to the Phillipines, Australia and New Zealand.

On her return to Marin, she expects to do public relations work — "perhaps for an airline" — and, in 1975, make a bid for a seat on the San Rafael Board of Education.

"I could stay for another five years at Coleman, but after 40 years in the teaching profession . . . well, that's enough for one job," she said. "I've got so much else to do.

"I live every day as though it's my birthday and as though it's the last day of my life . . . but I have many miles to travel and many things to see before I go to sleep."

Miss Codoni, the daughter of a pioneer Marin County family, was born in Point Reyes Station in 1911. Her father, a bookkeeper, later became a car dealer in San Rafael, and the family moved to the city when she was four.

She attended the old B Street and E Street schools and was a member of the fourth graduating class of San Rafael High School. After graduating from the teacher's college that is now California State University at San Francisco, she began a search for work as an educator.

"It was the Depression and there were no jobs," she recalled. "I walked through many a cowpasture to find a job as teacher." She finally landed a job in 1933 as the teacher of a one-room school in the Natividad District of the Salinas Valley, a post she left in 1934 to teach ranch children at Pierce Point School at Point Reyes.

After two years in West Marin, Miss Codoni began her 37-year career with the San Rafael School System, becoming a teacher, and later principal, at the B Street School. She has taught in almost every San Rafael school since, and been a full-time principal for the past 28 years — the last nine at Coleman.

Looking over her career in education, Miss Codoni said things haven't really changed that much since she first entered a classroom 40 years ago.

The open classroom technique "is the same as we had with the one-room rural school," she declared. And the new math? "Two plus two still equals four."

Although she lauded the flexibility and freedom now afforded many teachers, she criticized the habit of some administrators of "jumping on the educational fad bandwagon before we understand what it is." She also called for more communication between parents and teachers, and more community involvement in the school system.

The flood of textbooks issued by the state is virtually useless, she said, because neither teachers nor students have time to read them all.

And she is wary of the practice of segregating so-called "educationally handicapped" students from the "more able learners," claiming that children are their own best teachers.

She does, however, favor the closing of several small neighborhood schools in San Rafael, as has been mentioned by the school board, because "we have to be practical . . . and we may be able to give the children a better education in a little larger school."

Things have become too stuffy in the educational world in recent years, she said, pledging that if she is elected to the school board in two years, "we won't be having meetings with a lot of people" where an elite group does all the talking. Smaller meetings where everyone is given the chance to speak are more productive, she said.

Miss Codoni, who said she always wears a wide array of jewelry because "children love color," said future plans also include tending her rose garden at home on Hillcrest Drive.

None of her time will be spent idly, she said. "It's been a beautiful life."

The veteran educator will be honored at a retirement party at 6:30 p.m. June 9 in the Grand Ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Another Bond Call Is Likely On Novato Creek

Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board members indicated this morning they will call another bond election, probably in November, to finance a Novato Creek flood control project.

A $4.5 million bond proposal for an undefined project received a 63.9 per cent favorable vote at the polls April 17, short of the required two-thirds.

Director William W. Wright said at a joint breakfast meeting with the Novato City Council that the next bond measure should specify a "definite project."

The type of project to be proposed will be decided after a series of hearings starting with one by the Army Corps of Engineers, tentatively scheduled for later this month.

The corps has been planning a federal-local project that "fits the needs and desires" of the community.

Councilmen and directors also discussed the problem of upstream residents throwing debris in Novato and Warner creeks, hindering the flow of waters.

The council and the board set another breakfast meeting at 7 a.m. June 5 at the Alvarado Inn.

Cigarette Tied To Accident

A 22-year-old Petaluma man was hospitalized Sunday night with multiple scrapes after his car ran off the road and hit a tree when he bent over to pick up a lighted cigarette he had dropped.

Lonnie R. Rolford, of 741 Mountain View Avenue was released yesterday from Hillcrest General Hospital. Police said he was thrown from his car in the 8:10 p.m. accident on Petaluma Boulevard North near Cotona Road. The car landed in a culvert, officers said.

Four Receive Degrees At BYU

George James Jett of Mill Valley received his master's degree. Rosalyn Ann Struck and Peter Brian Yorke, both of Novato, received bachelor's degrees. Marlise Brown of San Rafael received an associate degree. Graduation was April 20.

Meet Postponed

Tonight's scheduled meeting of the Reed School District board has been postponed to next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Del Mar School to reestablish a two-week gap between sessions, the district office announced. The meetings got out of sequence because no session was held April 17, election day.

A Solution Offered In Water Fuss

Albert Bianchi, representing the McCarthy Co. in its fight to get water for a planned 292-unit project opposite the Marin Civic Center said in a letter he wanted the matter discussed "before (it) . . . escalates into full-scale litigation."

The McCarthy Co. has filed suit to force the district to provide water for the project. A Marin judge April 18 ordered the district to do so or appear in court to explain why it shouldn't.

Bianchi explained the project to board members yesterday and suggested four criteria for judging the project and others:

Does it provide the maximum public benefit; is it compatible with existing uses in area; has it received favorable reaction from planning agencies and does it conform with the proposed countywide plan?

Bianchi said he thinks the project meets those criteria. After his plea, directors held a 30-minute closed session to discuss the McCarthy court case.

Put over to the board's meeting next Wednesday was consideration of a $1.63 million claim by the company. Such claims, usually a prelude to civil suits, routinely are rejected by government agencies.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

TIME — Granted 90-day time extensions on pipeline extension agreements with Jerome Meislin for Los Colindas Unit 11, Terra Linda, and with Securities of America for Shelter Ridge Unit 3 in Mill Valley.

PIPE — Approved replacing 300 feet of two-inch pipe along Poplar Drive west of Wolfe Grade in Kentfield with six-inch pipe.

GROUP — Recommended that the advisory committeee to improvement district expand the role and membership of its environmental advisory subcommittee.

San Anselmans Hurt In Wreck

Two San Anselmo men were injured yesterday following an accident on Bolinas Road, Fairfax police reported today.

Arnell R. Etherington, 26, of 45 Fernwood Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition today with cuts and bruises in Marin General Hospital. Brian Popazivanov, 26, of the same address, was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken rib.

Popazivanov was a passenger in a car driven by Etherington that was smashed broadside by a car driven by Thomas Poksay, 16, of 7 Devonshire Drive, Novato, according to police.

Film On Flying Is Planned

Joe Mugnaini, artist, author illustrator and teacher of drawing, will show his film, "Icarus, Montgolfier and Wright" at 1 p.m. Friday in Room 1002, Stevenson Hall, Sonoma State College.

The film, which Mugnaini made with science fiction writer Ray Bradbury, is an animated color story of man's struggle to fly.

After the film showing, Mugnaini will be available for questions, and refreshments will be served in alcove of the college commons.

Terra Linda High Junior Top Law Day Essayist

Three Marin County high school studets have been named winners of the annual Law Day Essay Contest sponsored by the Marin County Bar Association.

First prize of $75 went to Christopher Perry, 15, of San Rafael, a junior at Terra Linda High School. Shelly Stidham, 16, also a junior at Terra Linda High School, captured the second place award of $50 and Caroline Linse of Larkspur, a 16-year-old sophomore at Redwood High School, received the $25 third place prize.

The youngsters were to receive the awards for their essays on "Youth and the Law" during a luncheon today at the Alvarado Inn in Novato.

Perry's essay deals with the conflict between youth and the older generation over the sometimes violent methods young people may use to bring about change in society.

Perry suggests the most effective way of bringing about peaceful change is through political action.

"If a greater proportion of elected officials, and especially those in influential positions, are under 40," he writes, "and youth turns to initiatives and propositions instead of the gun and the bomb, youth can change the law — hopefully for the better."

Miss Stidham's essay also involved the division or generation gap between the young and older in America, especially over the issue of legalizing marijuana.

She calls for youth and older persons to examine the hypocrisy in their own positions to form a united effort for social-change.

"Once we can accomplish this," her essay says, "the truly important social issues such as the revamping of our economy and the end of racial strife won't seem nearly as distant."

Miss Linse suggests that young people under 18 be given more say in forming the laws and policies that affect them.

Her essay questions the reasoning behind spending millions for war instead of education, allowing large companies tax shelters while they pollute the environment.

"Laws and opinions toward young people have to change before our opinions are altered," she writes. "It is not an easy task to make us feel positive towards law. It would be much easier if we didn't have so much energy and vitality. Put our energy and vitality to use, let us know what we can do to change and better the laws."

Essays were assigned by English departments at the two schools.

Fire Advisers Want Nonactive Existence

The Corte Madera Citizens Fire Department Improvement Committee last night decided it would like to continue in existence but not hold regular meetings.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said the group recommended the town council retain its services, but indicated it would meet only on call from its chairman, councilman Robert J. Flahive.

Bartels said the committee endorsed a five-year plan for the fire department prepared by Chief Frank L. Nelson, but emphasized it's a long-range document.

Nelson recommends moving the fire station headquarters to a site near the present California Highway Patrol building east of Highway 101. Since Corte Madera is a one-fire-station town, stated Nelson, a station by the freeway cloverleaf would make runs to any location in town "acceptable for adequate response."

If the headquarters isn't moved from its present location on Tamalpais Avenue next to the town hall, Chief Nelson suggestes remodeling the substation on Paradise Drive, east of the freeway, to give east side coverage.

Bartels said the committee approved the 63-hour work week schedule for firemen which went into effect Nov. 1, when the fire department began round the clock shifts. The committee also suggested firemen undertake fire prevention work by instructing home owners on Christmas Tree Hill on fire precaution measures.

First Name Misspelled

SAN MATEO (UPI) — The name of A.P. Giannini, the Bank of America founder, is misspelled on postage stamps scheduled to go on sale June 27.

Claire Giannini Hoffman, the banker's only daughter, was surprised Monday when the misspelling was pointed out to her and remarked that she had "never even noticed."

Security In North Block Is Tightened

Two inmates of the "honor block" got into a fight with crude weapons, according to Lee DeBord, information officer. One of the weapons recovered was a sharpened screwdriver and the other a sharpened brass rod, DeBord said.

Neither inmate was hospitalized because the wounds were superficial, DeBoard said. The fight was broken up almost immediately by guards who saw it about 2:30 p.m.

The inmates involved are Rudolph Van Whitley, 26, of Los Angeles, serving five years to life for rape and armed robbery convicted in August 1969, and Eddie Wilson, 33, of Alameda County, serving five years to life for armed robbery.

They were the 21st and 22nd stabbings this year at the prison.

DeBord said that the cell block housing 395 inmates had been an "honor block" giving the inmates much more freedom. It was returned to regular "mainline" status which is much more restrictive, DeBord said.

The North Block has been the scene of four stabbings this year, including two in cells, he said.

Prison officials are investigating smuggling of drugs into the prison, DeBord said.

"There is a chance that drugs were an underlying problem in yesterday's stabbing, but now it appears to have been a personal thing," he said.

Groups that apparently are involved in the violence are the "Aryan Brotherhood," a white racist group and the "Mexican Mafia," he said. There is another group at the prison, the "Nuestra Familia" or "New Family," but they have not been involved in violence recently, DeBord said.

DeBord said that 18 members of the "Aryan Brotherhood" have been locked in segregated cells during the past week.

Talk Scheduled On Sentry Dogs

Andrew Mills, Hamilton Air Force Base veterinarian, will talk about sentry dog training at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow at the base, a session sponsored by Marin County 4-H Clubs in conjunction with the Marin County Veterinarians Society.

Final sessions in the veterinary science series will be at 10 a.m. May 19 at the Guide Dogs for the Blind, Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, when Dr. Michael R. Kluse will tell about the guide dog program.

Marin Duo In Ballet Big Leagues

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The orchestra had finished tuning and David Roxander. standing in the wings waiting to make his professional ballet debut, was terrified.

He was 17 and a long way from his hillside home in Corte Madera. This was the National Ballet of Canada, Rudolf Nureyev's troupe, and Roxander had a part in "Swan Lake."

At about the same time last fall, Jane Thelan of San Rafael, at 18 the youngest member of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet by two years and in her first season with the company, was offered the leading role in a new ballet — an unusual occurrence for a ballerina in her first season — and admittedly felt the pressure.

Roxander and Miss Thelan, former dancing partners in the Marin Civic Ballet, are home in Marin, training and studying for their second seasons in professional ballet.

Both plan to attend the Eighth Annual Pacific Regional Ballet Festival scheduled May 9 through 12 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael. Considered the most important event of the year in nonprofessional ballet, more than 600 dancers, teachers and ballet directors will participate in three days of master classes and seminars, climaxed by the performance of the Gala Ballet at 8 p.m. May 12.

Both said it was their training under Leona Norman, director of Marin Civic, and their experience in regional festivals that helped sustain them in their first seasons in the big league of ballet.

"It was the most terrifying experience of my life," Roxander said of his first appearance in "Swan Lake." "There was this incredible fear that took place in my body."

(Roxander is known in Marin as David Roxander White, but had to drop his last name for professional purposes to avoid confusion with another member of his union named David White).

In all, he danced in about 150 performances of that ballet last year, and "that's a lot of nights to be scared."

Only a few months before, Celia Franca, directress of the National Ballet of Canada, had snatched him from the ranks of the San Rafael company after seeing him dance in a videotaped preview of a new ballet by Norbert Vesac, a choreographer and teacher at the Marin Civic.

Appearing in last year's Pacific Regional Ballet Festival, he also had been seen by Robert Joffery, head of the Joffery Ballet in New York, who offered him a spot in the Joffery "corps de ballet."

But he chose the national ballet because he preferred its classical orientation and because it had Rudolf Nureyev.

"I had a lot of apprehensions about meeting him," White said of Nureyev," because of what I had heard about his temperament and about what a bastard he is to work with."

And while Nureyev was often aloof and sometimes moody, he wasn't the scowling master the young Roxander expected.

"Rudy helped me a lot. He was truly concerned with my development as a dancer."

It was by Nureyev that Roxander was presented his biggest triumphs and one of his most crushing disappointments.

A member of the company for only two weeks, Nureyev picked him to dance two solos in "Sleeping Beauty."

He rehearsed for three weeks to learn a solo in the "pas de cinq" section of the ballet, and another part called "cats."

He had been custom fitted for two costumes at a cost of $300 each, special shoes were dyed to match his outfits and everything was ready. "The heart especially was ready," he said.

"He told me I was too young and too small and he took the parts away, just like that, and it was never discussed again."

After his initial disappointment and with the assurance of Nureyev that the decision had nothing to do with his ability as a dancer, Roxander took it philosophically.

"I trusted him," he said. "I believed in him and that made it easier. He didn't want me to be this baby star who was a big hit at 17 and burned out by 20."

But there were other parts and he was dancing every day and learning and maturing when he suffered his second setback, an injury during the first act of "The Nutcracker Suite."

He was executing a "tour de l'air" — a movement in which he leaps into the air raising his legs and grabbing his ankles and spinning around twice before touching the floor — when a muscle cramped in his leg and he came down on the toe of his left foot, tearing 15 ligaments.

He was told to take three weeks off to recover, but came back in one, and primarily because he didn't allow enough time for his injury to mend, he said, he reinjured the foot two months later and was out for the season.

But he showed so much promise in that first season that he was offered a contract for next year and he now is taking classes and practicing at the Marin Civic Ballet School, preparing to leave for Canada in June.

Roxander is the son of Jody and Ralph White, his mother a former ballerina with the Bay Area Civic Ballet, which later evolved into the Marin Civic, and his father a former professional actor who still appears with local theater groups in Marin.

Jane Thelan credits her 11 years of training with the Marin Civic and the experience and stage presence she absorbed during the regional ballet festivals with helping her through her first difficult season with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

She had just finished a term at the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada last June when she applied for a spot with the royal ballet.

She was told there was no opening, but at the end of August two dancers were injured and Arnold Spohr, director of the royal ballet, called her to Winnipeg.

Within two weeks she was offered a contract with the leading role in a new ballet by Vesac, "What to do Till the Messiah Comes," a rare break for a "corps girl," a rookie, to jump into a solo role.

"It bugged people who had been there for a while," she said. "But I had to prove myself, not to the others, but to myself."

And there were other pressures. "The whole trip of living alone was almost as trying as the dancing itself. There was no family, no friends. You've got yourself and that's it."

But Miss Thelan, a graduate of San Rafael High School, and the new ballet received good reviews and she later was presented one of five women's parts in "Scriabin," a ballet by John Neumeier of Germany.

"I have a better idea of what I am shooting for," she said. "And I have a better idea of who I am, not just 'Jane the dancer.' "

Like Roxander, she prefers dramatic parts.

"I get more fulfillment dancing with the soul, not just with what my body can pull off."

Living at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Thelan, and taking classes at the Marin Civic preparing for next season, she admits that she is sorry college and a dance career are incompatible. "I don't want to be just a dancer and only know theater, dance and the arts."

When she stops growing as a person, then she said it will be time to quit dancing and go on to something else. But the road to the royal ballet was not an easy one, and she said quitting is a long way off.

She bagan dancing at 4, in class where children learn the fundamentals of movement, and kept insisting that she wanted to be a ballerina.

At 7 she was in classical classes with Leona Norman at the Marin Civic, and confesses that during her years of training there were times when she wanted "to hang it up."

"I am a perfectionist and sometimes it was all so frustrating," she remembered. "I think it was the fear of failure, of not making it. I thought, why don't I just creep out quietly?"

But she stayed with it and now is looking forward to her second season, which will include tours of Israel, Greece, Cuba and South America.

Many of the dancers in this year's festival — the first time the event will be held in Marin County — will be trying to follow in the footsteps of Jane Thelan and David Roxander.

The event is sort of minor league world series for amateur dancers and, scouted by officials of professional troupes, a possible springboard to professional careers.

This year the Marin company, judged in 1972 as one of the five major nonprofessional troupes in North America, will be one of a few select companies to perform in the Gala Ballet, having been chosen in judging in March.

Ballet watchers also will be able to see young hopefuls in a free pas de deux class at 3:45 p.m. May 11 at the veterans building.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Alcohol, as Medical Problem, Causes Much Illness, Death

Statistics on alcohol consumption are frightening. Of the 90 million Americans who imbibe, it is estimated that 12 per cent are heavy drinkers. The yearly nationwide per capita average is 30.3 gallons of liquor, wine, and beer. Alcohol is our most abused drug and the cause of America's largest "untreated, treatable illness." It is now a major factor in suicides, automobile and other accidents, and injuries and death due to violence. It causes cirrhosis of the liver, the fifth leading cause of death among men from 25 to 64 years of age. Drinkers also run the risk of developing a variety of diseases that cut 10 to 12 years off their lives.

WHAT CAN be done about it? It is a real hot potato so far as the government is concerned. Our politicians are not about to revive anything that smacks of prohibition. They conveniently have trouble determining whether alcohol is a beverage, food, drug, medicine, poison, anesthetic, liniment, or germ killer. Obviously, most of us regard alcohol as a drug, and as such, the sale of alcoholic beverages could be regulated, advertising controlled, or warnings listed on the label.

We wonder what would happen if it were subjected to the same types of tests that were used to incriminate the cyclamates and many other chemicals. Oddly, we have a law that makes it mandatory to list the side effects of therapeutic drugs, but none that covers the most dangerous and abused of them all.

ALCOHOLISM IS expensive to treat and the results are disappointing. Medical Tribune published some terrifying statistics from the Karolinska Hospital (Stockholm) where a followup study of 200 alcoholic patients was conducted. During an eight-year period, 44 died, 60 became chronically ill, 40 were still on booze, and 56 appeared to be cured. This is a poor record considering that Karolinska is one of the world's great medical centers.

For those who regard alcoholism as a disease, a death rate of 22 per cent and a 30 per cent incidence of chronic illness are excessive.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

FACE SCRUBBERS

G. F. writes: Automatic face cleansers are advertised widely and have become quite popular. It seems to be the ideal gift for the woman who has everything. Is a woman taking a chance in using this kind of appliance?

REPLY

These appliances are safe for the normal skin, but I doubt if they are more effective than a washcloth, soap, and water. It is difficult to get a brush that cleans "deep" without causing considerable irritation to the skin. There is no harm in giving this to a woman who has everything, but it is not an essential piece of equipment for people who need to wash their faces.

CHEMOTHERAPY

J. M. writes: Just what is chemotherapy supposed to do for the patient?

REPLY

Cure, relieve, or control disease. Chemotherapy means treatment with chemicals. In contrast, physiotherapy is treatment via physical means — heat, massage, and ultraviolet rays. Chemotherapy is widely used in cancer, where it prolongs life even though it may not cure. The use of antibiotics in the treatment of infections is now an established method of cure.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Z'berg's Plan For Saving Lake Tahoe

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg has introduced legislation designed to save the Lake Tahoe from developers by spending $20 million in state funds to purchase private lands.

The Sacramento Democrat, who led the 1967 fight to protect the lake from overdevelopment, Monday also proposed restructuring the membership of the California half of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency so local government representatives no longer would have the controlling votes.

The measure (AB1944) would apply strictly to the California half of the bi-state lake, and would have no effect on the Nevada side. It would be financed from the state's onetime projected $852 million budget surplus.

Z'berg, chairman of the Assembly Natural Resources Committee, noted that the California-Nevada Tahoe Regional Agency, created by his 1967 legislation, has adopted a master plan for controlled development of the scenic lake basin but told a news conference it is in "jeopardy" unless private lands are purchased and made public.

"There is no way that the plan can work without purchase of key sections of land," Z'berg said. "And, to make it stick, large amounts of property have to be acquired and put in public ownership."

He said one candidate for possible purchase by the state would be the Kings Beach area at the north end of the lake where condominiums are being built.

In addition to appropriating $20 million, the bill would create a five-member California "Tahoe Conservancy Agency" empowered to acquire both public and private funds for the purchase of land at Tahoe and to contract with other public agencies for the land's actual management.

DRUG BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill permitting the advertising of prescription drugs has won the endorsement of an Assembly committee despite a warning that such promotion could increase drug abuse.

The Assembly Health Committee Monday approved the bill by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, designed to make it easier for consumers to compare prices of prescription drugs. The measure was sent to the Ways and Means Committee on a 5-1 vote.

The measure (AB684) would require pharmacists to post the prices of the 100 most frequently prescribed drugs and permit advertising of prescription drugs in newspapers, radio and television.

Citing a recent study by his staff, Moretti said there was "complete chaos" in the present pricing system for prescription drugs. He said there was "no means available for the cost-conscious consumer to easily obtain price information on his prescription drug purchase."

Testifying in opposition was Rosalyn King, a pharmacist consultant for government agencies, who warned the promotion of prescription drugs "contributes and possibly enhances the incidence of drug dependence, misuse and abuse."

MAIL LISTS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three bills to ban or greatly restrict state and local governments' ability to sell mailing lists of California citizens were introduced Monday in the Assembly.

Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Napa, submitted the toughest measure (AB1918), which would outright prohibit state and local agencies from selling mailing lists.

Dunlap also introduced a less sweeping measure (AB1919), giving citizens the right to have their name removed from any state or local government mailing list by notifying the California attorney general.

The third measure (AB1863) was introduced by Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-La Puente, and deals exclusively with the Department of Motor Vehicles. It would prevent the department from selling any mailing list without receiving a waiver from each person involved.

A CHALLENGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has been challenged by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti to a series of television debates on the governor's proposed ballot initiative to limit taxation.

An aide said Reagan had not read Moretti's written debate "invitation," issued Monday, and withheld comment.

Moretti, a contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year, suggested the debates be held between now and June 15. To qualify for a special statewide election Nov. 6, the measure must obtain the signatures of 520,000 voters by June 27.

Moretti, who opposes the proposal, told Reagan in a letter the debates would help voters be "fully informed of the potential effects of this far-reaching change in the financial relationships between state and local government."

Another Reagan aide reported that $142,000 has been contributed so far by citizens to help finance the initiative campaign organized by the "Californians for Lower Taxes." He said 120,000 petitions have been issued for distribution but reported he did not know how many persons had signed them.

Under Reagan's proposed constitutional amendment, a permanent ceiling on total state taxes would be imposed. It could be lifted only by a vote of the people. Reagan says the total tax burden would be reduced by 20 percent over a 15-year period. The income tax would be cut permanently by 7-½ per cent.

EXCAVATION

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $110,000 bill to finance an archaelogical excavation of a prehistoric Indian village at the site of the proposed new governor's mansion has reached the Senate floor.

The bill, endorsed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, was approved Monday by the Finance Committee on a 12-0 vote.

Sen. Alan Short, D-Stockton, said he feared the proposed excavation really was "an insidious effort to stop construction of the mansion."

"You can poke along the American River and find anything you want," he said, voicing doubt over the value of Indian relics at the site.

Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento, author of the bill (SB441), noted some Indians were against excavation or construction on the site, arguing that either move would destroy an ancient Indian burial ground.

Drake's Voyage Celebration Wins Approval

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Assembly gave final legislative approval yesterday to a concurrent resolution aimed at commemorating Sir Francis Drake's circumnavigation of the globe 400 years ago.

The lower house concurred in Senate amendments to the resolution (ACR 35), sponsored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The resolution paves the way for creation of a commission that would plan plays, parades, pageants and other public events marking Drake's trip around the earth, which included a stop at Marin County.

All funds would come from private or corporate donations.

Long Agenda Before Trustees

The Marin Community College District board will approve a district policy on faculty selection at its meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the Science Building at College of Marin.

Trustees have deliberated on whether students should have a voice in hiring instructors for nearly a year. Students want to be on the faculty selection committees, while faculty members have mostly disagreed. Supt. John A. Grasham has recommended student participation.

Trustees also will decide whether to approve a separate ethnic studies department at the college. Such classes at the moment are scattered through various departments.

Other items on a long agenda include changes in the structure of the certificated salary schedule and in sabbatical leave requests.

Plea Made To Felony Charge

An 18-year-old Vacaville youth yesterday admitted to feloniously leaving the scene of an auto accident last August 13 in San Rafael.

Eugene Milton Paine entered the plea in Marin Superior Court after Judge David Menary Jr. and the district attorney agreed he would spend no more than 120 days in jail. Sentencing was slated for June 4.

The illegal flight followed a collision in which Paine's car went through a red light at Fourth and Second streets and smashed into a vehicle driven by Jacklyn Askew, 20, of San Anselmo, who was hospitalized with cuts and scrapes.

Law On Smog Devices Goes In Effect Today

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Starting today, Bay Area owners of 1966 through 1970 model cars must install a new smog device if the car is being registered in California for the first time, or if it is being traded or sold.

Starting July 1, all 1966 through 1970 models, whether being retained by their present owners or not, must be so equipped according to a time table based on license plates, according to the State Air Resources Board.

The time table compels installation during July for cars with plates whose last number is 1; during August for plates ending with 2, September for plates with 3, October for 4, November for 5, December for 6, next January for 7, next February for 9, next March for 9 and next April for 0 and for plates with letters only.

Application of the smog control regulation to Bay Area vehicles marks the start of phase 2 of a program that began in Riverside County Feb. 1 and on April 1 was extended to Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties.

Phase 2 includes the nine Bay Area counties in the program.

1966 through 1970 year models had exhaust emission controls installed at the factory, but these systems controlled only carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons. They did not control oxides of nitrogen, which is a primary ingredient in the formation of photochemical smog. The substance reacts with hydrocarbons in sunlight to produce the smog.

State Air Resources Board tests indicate the new control devices will cut these emissions by from 43 to 53 percent.

Owners may have the devices installed at any state-licensed smog device installation and inspection station, designated by a large blue shield. (Information on what vehicles are exempt is available at these stations.)

The seller is responsible for paying for the installation. By law, the device and the installation charge must total no more than $35, plus tax on parts only. Owners can install devices in their own vehicles, but the job must be inspected anyway and certified in good operating condition at a licensed station.

Whether a car owner installs his own device or not, he must obtain a certificate of compliance from a licensed station — and he must obtain and display a windshield sticker indicating compliance with the program. A red sticker indicates the car is exempt and a blue sticker indicates it is equipped with a device. The sticker must be displayed on the inside of the windshield on the passenger side in the lower right hand corner.

Compliance with the program will be a condition of registration of the motor vehicle in the 1975 license year.

18-Year-Old Fined $500 On Charge

A youth, who broke into a San Rafael sporting goods store to steal an outboard motor, was fined $500 yesterday immediately after pleading guilty.

No time in jail was part of a plea bargain between William Edward Petro, 18, of Santa Venetia and Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court. The District attorney recommended three months in jail.

Petro also was ordered to pay during three years of probation $165 restitution to the Western Sport Shop and $250 for the legal services of the public defender.

Petro and a 17-year-old companion were arrested Dec. 29 after a witness told police the pair smashed a window of the store at 902 Third Street and took something.

Traced through his car's license number, Petro was arrested with the stolen boat motor in his car, San Rafael police said.

The theft was his first scrape with the law, and probation officer Sarah Deming concluded it probably would be his last. "There is nothing in the defendant's past record which would indicate a propensity toward antisocial or criminal activity," she wrote in a preplea report.

America Said Named For British Sheriff

NEW YORK (UPI) — America was named for the high sheriff of Bristol, England, in the late 15th century, not for Amerigo Vespucci, according to Britons promoting Bristol's 600th anniversary.

According to Ted J. Rawlings, managing director of the anniversary exhibition scheduled for this summer, said there is strong support in England for the idea the new continent was named for Sheriff Richard Americ.

The theory goes that Americ was chief financial backer of the voyages of Italian-born explorer John Cabot. Cabot discovered Newfoundland in 1497 and named the new land for Americ, the theory goes.

Historians generally attribute the name of America to Amerigo Vespucci, the Italian navigator who discovered South America on a 1499-1500 voyage and returned there in 1501. The name America first appeared in print on a map of South America published by Martin Waldseemuller in France in 1507.

Drop Shown In Rate Of Gonorrhea

Gonorrhea appears to be on the decrease in Marin while the number of syphilis cases appears to be climbing, county health officials have reported.

The figures, released as part of venereal disease awareness month which ended yesterday, show 1,561 cases of gonorrhea reported in 1971 and 1,382 cases in 1972.

So far this year, officials said, 267 cases of gonorrhea have been reported in Marin.

Syphilis, the more dangerous of the two venereal diseases, climbed from 73 cases reported in 1971 to 90 cases in 1972. This year, 21 cases have been reported.

According to Dr. Warren Ketterer, head of the Bureau of Venereal Disease Control in the state Health Department, statewide figures show both diseases are dropping. He gave no figures, however.

He credited the drop to improved public and school information programs, a 60 per cent increase in the sale of condoms and private physicians examining women for symptomless gonorrhea when doing pelvic examinations.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Balanced Portfolio Is Best For Widow

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What investments would you recommend for a widow in the late forties with $150,000? I have additional income and no special need for this money at this time. — S.T.

A. You are fortunate to have been left in such a secure financial position. While preservation of your capital is an important consideration, your portfolio should have a potential for appreciation. For this reason I have attempted to achieve a balance among the selected securities. For stability, I suggest that you buy $20 thousand each of Federal Land Bank 7.30s of 1982 and Federal Home Loan Bank 7.15s of 1977.

These bonds, which are issued by two government sponsored banking corporations, are not federally guaranteed but are considered second only to Treasury bonds in terms of security. Another feature is that, interest, while taxable by the federal government is not subject to state, municipal or local tax. This $41,000 investment will return $2,863 in income annually, a 7.0 per cent return.

For the remainder of your funds a list of seven common stocks, selling at 12 to 14 times earnings, offers strong growth potential. The first, unlisted American Express, is an international travel, insurance and financial concern. Buy 300 shares at a cost of approximately $17,500. With $19,000 a 150-share investment in American Home Products (NYSE) is recommended. This drug and consumer product company has a five-year compound growth rate of 13 per cent annually. Heublein (NYSE) is the leading U.S. producer of vodka and premixed cocktails. A 300-share investment should work out well over the long term.

Kerr-McGee (NYSE), an integrated oil producer, appears well situated in view of the energy crisis. Buy 200 shares. A more speculative issue, Lomas & Nettleton Financial (NYSE), has projected a 20 per cent increase in earnings for the year to end June 30. Buy 1,000 shares at about $14,000. A 200-share block of Union Pacific Corp. (NYSE), a rail and natural resource issue, plus 150 of medical, drug and consumer products firm Warner Lambert (NYSE), will round out your common stock portfolio valued at about $107,000.

Import Quotas About The Same

SYDNEY (UPI) — At the turn of the century, American-Australian trade had developed to a point where the United States supplied about 13.8 per cent of Australian imports while Australia supplied about 7 per cent of its total exports to the United States.

Today, the United States furnishes about 25 per cent of Australia's imports while taking about 12.5 per cent of its total exports.

Stocks Cut Early Loss, Level Off

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market made a sharp recovery from earlier losses on the New York Stock Exchange today, then leveled off to close mixed to slightly lower. Trading was only moderate by the close.

A report around 1:30 p.m. that President Nixon will meet with his economic advisers and with his labor-management committee and then make a statement on the economy sparked investor enthusiasm. A White House spokesman said he did not know if the statement would contain any new moves to curb inflation.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By WAT TAKESHITA

Nick's Cove Bar, Restaurant Will Change Hands This Week

Nick's Cove restaurant and bar north of Marshall, a West Marin landmark for 40 years, will be sold this weekend to a couple from Danville, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Gibson.

Mrs. Dorothy Matkovich, who has operated Nick's Cove for 22 years, said she plans to retire and move to Petaluma, where her daughter lives.

Gibson, the new owner, was a landscape gardener in Danville. He and his wife Ruth have moved to Nick's Cove and will operate the restaurant and bar under the same name. The Gibsons also bought the Sea Galley, a takeout seafood restaurant at BodegaBay, about two months ago.

Nick's Cove bar was established in 1933 by Nick Kojich. When it was destroyed by fire in 1950, Kojich's nephew, Andrew Matkovich and his wife Dorothy Matkovich built the existing building and went into partnership with Kojich. The Matkoviches bought out Kojich in the early 1960's and have run it ever since. Kojich died in 1967 at age 80. Mrs. Matkovich has been running Nick's Cove alone since 1969, when her husband passed away.

Return Of The Giants

With the Giants playing exciting baseball and leading the National League West by 3½ games over the Reds, I am very curious to see the number of fans drawn into Candlestick Park in the Giant's homestand which opens tonight against the Pirates.

As we've heard before, San Francisco fans will back a winner, but won't walk across the street to see a loser. Last year they had a loser and they stayed away in droves. I don't want to put a hex on the team, but the Giants really look like a winner.

THE 1973 YOUNG GIANTS won their 18th game on April 28. The 1972 Stumbling Giants won their 18th game on June 11. I know the '72 season was late in starting because of the players' strike, but San Francisco missed only five dates. So the comparison is still astounding.

By the time San Francisco had managed to win that 18th game last year, they had already lost 39 and were in last place, 16½ games behind. This year the Giants had lost only five games by the time win number 18 came along.

Another astounding thing is that the Giants are winning with an eight-man pitching staff and some may even call it a six-man staff. Of the 10 roster pitchers, left-handed reliever John Morris has been out of action since April 10 with a broken thumb on his pitching hand and right-handed starter Tom Bradley has been on the shelf since April 17 with a cracked bone in his right ankle. Don Carrithers has pitched only one ineffective inning the first month and it's very obvious manager Charlie Fox fears using Sam McDowell unless absolutely necessary. That leaves six.

AND, EVEN IN the face of Sports Illustrated's latest trivia question (which major league relief pitcher led his team in home runs the previous season?), I cannot list Dave Kingman as one of the Giant pitchers. I have heard Dave say, "I will not pitch again."

And the injury situation is not looking any better since Fox announced on the team's return from the very successful road trip that Bradley would not pitch for at least three weeks. Eventually, although Fox is trying desperately to avoid it, help will have to be called up from the Phoenix farm club. Frank Reberger, who enjoys the commute from Mill Valley to San Francisco much better than the one to Phoenix, would be the first logical choice when Fox finally flashes the SOS sign.

The team's top hitter, Garry Maddox, has missed a few games with injuries and might miss the three-game Pirates series because of badly bruised ribs. No. 2 hitter, Ed Goodson, has missed some games with injuries. All this and the team has won 18 of 24 games.

The Giants drew 106,620 fans to the season's first homestand of nine games and that is 1,167 less than the first nine games of 1972, a year in which the club took a financial bath. But this team is worthy of many more eyes staring down at it.

I HOPE ALL THE publicity which is showering upon the Young Giants doesn't go to their heads. Chris Speier was the cover boy of the Sporting News last week and Sports Illustrated this week and if he can beat the double jinx by bashing a home run or two and coming through with those timely hits and fielding gems, my hat is off to him.

It's no secret many of the Young Giants don't agree with the traditional ways of Fox, but they are not showing it on the field. And that, my friends, is professionalism.

NBA Lakers Tabbed In Opener Tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — After over a decade of hard luck and close calls in the National Basketball Association playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers for once find themselves in the favored position in the league's championship series, which opens here tonight with Los Angeles meeting the New York Knicks.

For the opening game at the Forum before a capacity crowd of 17,505, the Lakers were listed as four-point favorites and they were 9-5 at Las Vgas and 8-5 in Reno to win the series.

Nearly forgotten are the six times in the 1960s that the Bill Russell-led Boston Celtics tripped the Lakers in the championship series. Their 1970 loss to New York in seven games is also a thing of the past.

Tonight the Lakers take the floor as the defending champions against a team they defeated in five games last season for their first NBA crown since they came West from Minneapolis in 1960. Largely due to the home court advantage, the Lakers are rated as slight favorites to repeat as league champs.

"I guess you can say the law of averages has caught up with us," said guard Jerry West, who has been a part of all of the Lakers' near-misses as well as their one moment of glory last year.

"We didn't get a lot of breaks for so many years. Now we are starting to get them," he said after New York defeated Boston Sunday to give the Knicks a spot in the championship series and the Lakers the home court advantage.

"I think we would have beaten the Celtics," said West. "I think we can beat any team. But the home advantage means a lot—especially if there is a seventh game."

The Knicks started fast in game No. 1 here last year by routing the Lakers 114-92 for their only series victory, and Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman is wondering if his team's inactivity since their last games six days ago might produce the same type of opening game.

"I'm a little worried about the layoff," he said. "I don't like to have a team of mine go that long between games. New York might be a little tired after their tough series with Boston but they should be sharper than us—at least in the first game."

After Tuesday's opener, and a second game here Thursday night, the series picks up in New York's Madison Square Garden for games Nos. 3 and 4 next Sunday and Tuesday. Game No. 5, if necessary, will be played at the Forum on Thursday, May, 10, and game six would be in New York on Sunday, May 13. The series would return to Forum on Tuesday, May 15, if it goes the full seven games.

Old Vets Lead Young, Resurgent Giants

SAN FRANCISCO — Would the San Francisco Giants, with the best record in baseball, be even contenders without Juan Marichal and Willie McCovey healthy again.

"Go ask Charlie Fox. It's his team," growled Houston manager Leo Durocher after McCovey ruined his Astros with three home runs in a recent two-game series here.

Fox, whose Giants are back from an 8-2 road trip to face the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight, listened to the question and used diplomatic wording to say maybe.

"I can't make any comment. I might make some of the other guys feel bad. Or I could hurt Marichal and McCovey," he said.

The Giants, who finished fifth in the National League West last year, lead the division now by 3½ games over the defending champion Cincinnati Reds.

Marichal, the 34-year-old right-hander who was 6-16 in 1972, has four of the team's 18 pitching victories this season. McCovey, who missed half of last season because of injuries, has come back to slug five homers and drive in 14 runs in the first month of 1973.

But the team has been billed as "The Young Giants" since tickets went on sale last winter.

Center fielder Gary Maddox, 23, and third baseman Ed Goodson, 24, were the leading hitters in April, with averages of .392 and .338. Young veterans Bobby Bonds, 27, and Chris Speier, 22, helped McCovey in power hitting by adding eight homers and 27 RBIs.

Jim Barr, 25, Jim Willoughby, 24, and tonight's starter Ron Bryant, 25, are working with Marichal now in the starting rotation. Tom Bradley, 26, has been out since April 17 with an ankle injury.

Bradley, a right-hander obtained from the Chicago White Sox in a big midwinter trade, Monday was declared out of action for at least three more weeks when a crack was found in his ankle bone.

"No cast will be necessary and he'll be able to work out. But, I don't expect him to pitch again until our next road trip," Fox said.

Fox says he realized in spring training that Marichal and McCovey were going to hold back the Giants' youth movement somewhat. He couldn't have been happier.

Marichal had winter back surgery and McGovey had a metal pin removed from the arm he broke last season.

"I was convinced after about Juan's third game in Arizona that he was okay. He had his high kick back, he was throwing from over the top and he wanted to throw every day between starts," Fox recalls.

"I watched him a lot. It was too good to be true. I got so I was watching him even as he walked around. I was afraid he'd trip on a pebble or something."

But Fox and his Giants aren't afraid anymore. The young team is on top — and, with veteran help, they plan to stay there.

Meanwhile, the San Francisco Police Department is send-

Raiders, 49ers Face Tough Skeds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders both get acid tests in a hurry this season as the 49ers open the season at Miami Sept. 16 and then the Super Bowl Champs come to the Coliseum for the Raiders' home opener Sept. 23.

For those with short memories, Miami was the first team ever to sweep through a 14-game National Football League campaign and playoffs unbeaten last season.

Coach Dick Nolan of San Francisco did not seem too disturbed about the opener at the Orange Bowl but he was unhappy that the 49ers would go from the sunny climes of Florida into chilly Denver for their next game.

He also noted that the Prospectors play four division champions out of six. They themselves were No. 5 five and they don't meet the Raiders. But they face Washington, Green Bay and Pittsburgh, in addition to the Dolphins.

Oakland, which saw its season end on a miracle Pittsburgh touchdown by Franco Harris in last year's playoff, have to open at Minnesota, come home to face Miami and then call on Kansas City.

"Those three are the toughest we've ever had to open the schedule," said Raider coach John Madden.

The 49ers schedule: (preseason): July 28—New England at Canton, Ohio; Aug. 6—At Cleveland; Aug. 11—New York Jets at Tampa, Fla.; Aug. 19— San Diego; Aug. 26—Denver; Sept. 1—at Oakland; Sept. 7—at Los Angeles.

Regular season: Sept. 16—at Miami; Sept. 23—at Denver; Sept. 30-Los Angeles; Oct. 7—at Atlanta; Oct. 14—Minnesota; Oct. 21—New Orleans; Oct. 28—Atlanta; Nov. 4—at Detroit; Nov. 11-at Washington; Nov. 18—at Los Angeles; Nov. 26—Green Bay; Dec. 2—Philadelphia; Dec. 9—at New Orleans; Dec. 15—Pittsburgh.

Oakland's schedule (pre-season): Aug. 5—at Minnesota; Aug. 11-Dallas; Aug. 18—Los Angeles at Berkeley; Aug. 25—Minnesota; Sept. 1—San Francisco; Sept. 8—at Buffalo.

Regular season; Sept. 16—At Minnesota; Sept. 23—Miami; Sept. 30—at Kansas City; Oct. 7—at St. Louis; Oct. 14—San Diego; Oct. 22-at Denver; Oct. 28—at Baltimore; Nov. 4—New York Giants; Nov. 11—Pittsburgh; Nov. 18—Cleveland; Nov. 25—at San Diego; Dec. 2—at Houston; Dec. 8—Kansas City; Dec. 16-Denver.

NFL SCHEDULE

Miami To Open Against 49ers

NEW YORK (UPI) — West Coast opponents will play a key role in the world champion Miami Dolphins' run for National Football League records this season.

According to the 1973 National Football League schedule released Monday, the Dolphins, who last season became the first team to go through an NFL season unbeaten with a 17-0 record, could tie a record on Sept. 16 when they open at home against San Francisco and set one and tie another the following weekend when they take on the Raiders at Oakland.

A victory over San Francisco would tie the NFL record for consecutive victories at 18, set by the Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and again in 1941-42. A victory over Oakland the following week would give the Dolphins the record for consecutive wins and tie the record of 18 consecutive regular season triumphs, also set by the 1933-34 Bears.

Nineteen games will be televised nationally during the season, including 13 Monday night games. Both Super Bowl clubs — Miami and Washington —will be in action on national TV on Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 22).

Charges Fly In Cage Aftermath

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — After a wild ending resembling last summer's fiasco in the Munich Olympics Monday night, representatives of the United States and Russian basketball teams unleashed a barrage of charges which also recalled last summer's hysterics.

The visiting Russian team, composed of nearly the same squad that won that controversial Olympic final 51-50 for the gold medal, continued their bruising brand of basketball and edged the U.S. All-Stars 78-76 to even the series at one game apiece.

"I disagree," responded U.S. Coach Bob Cousy. "Swen is not a dirty player.

"I have instructed my players to be as physical as they can be," Cousy said, "but we do not know how to be as physical as international rules will allow."

Tom Henderson of Hawaii, who played on the U.S. Olympic team, said, "They are very physical under the boards. I consider them a dirty basketball team but that's their style of play."

The United States took a slim 41-40 lead into the locker room after a bruising first half in which Coursy received a technical foul for protesting a call. Ron Behagen of Minnesota was ejected from the game in the second half for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Ernie DiGregorio of Providence got the U.S. team off to good start by firing in the first five points in the game before Russia fought back to take a 16-9 lead. The score was tied 10 times in the contest.

Ivan Dvorni paced the Soviets with 16 points before he fouled out with only 43 seconds gone in the second half. Aleksander Salnikov, a 6-6 forward, then got hot and tossed in 14 points in the next 13 minutes to give the Russians a 68-61 lead with 7:30 to play.

Oxley scored two quick layups to help bring the Americans back to a 70-70 tie with 5:58 remaining. The lead changed hands until Russia went on top for good at 78-76 with less than a minute to play.

DiGregorio, who ended with 15 points, came down and missed a 25-footer with 30 seconds left and then threw a pass out of bounds after the U.S. had recovered possession. The Soviets lost the ball again with one second remaining, setting up Oxley's final shot.

The series picks up in Albuquerque, N.M. on Wednesday night and moves to Indianapolis on Saturday, New York on May 7 and Baltimore on May 8.

Terra Linda Golfers Take Over Loop Lead

Terra Linda High School moved into temporary sole possession of first place in the Marin County Athletic League golf standings with a 191-197 victory over Redwood at Meadow Club yesterday.

Terra Linda improved its MCAL record to 6-1 and opened up a one-match bulge on Redwood (5-2). Novato and San Rafael, also part of a four-way tie at 5-1 prior to yesterday, clash today at Indian Valley.

OAKLAND ON ROAD

A's Odom To Pitch; Blue Rejoins Mates

Combined AP & UPI

"We hope Vida will be ready to pitch next Sunday in Cleveland. We'll try to get him one inning of relief work before then," said Williams.

If Blue isn't ready to start in Sunday's doubleheader, the A's may have to call up a pitcher from their Tucson farm club. Dave Hamilton, who won six games for the A's last year, is the most likely candidate and Chuck Dobson, sent to the minors after arm surgery, is a possibility.

Odom was the starter April 19 in Kansas City in a game the A's lost 16-8. Since then, the world champions have given up no more than four runs in a game and have won 6 of 10 outings.

Although the two clubs have comparable records, Milwaukee's 9-9 has the Brewers in second, a half-game out in the muddled American League East while Oakland's 9-11 puts the A's in next to last place in the more spreadout A.L. West.

PREP OF THE WEEK

One Man, One Coach Rule In Effect For Tom Cronin

By LEW CODDINGTON

Going through your entire varsity athletic career with only one coach has an advantage — after awhile, it becomes very easy to understand instructions.

The last two times Marin Catholic High School baseball coach Dave Gonsalves has sent pitcher Tom Cronin to the mound with orders like "get 'em out," Cronin has responded with a no-hitter and a two-hitter.

The two-hitter came Saturday night as the Wildcats beat San Rafael, 4-0, to keep the Bulldogs from moving into a tie for first in the Marin County Athletic League. It lowered his earned-run average to 0.66, best in the league, and earned him Independent-Journal Prep of the Week honors.

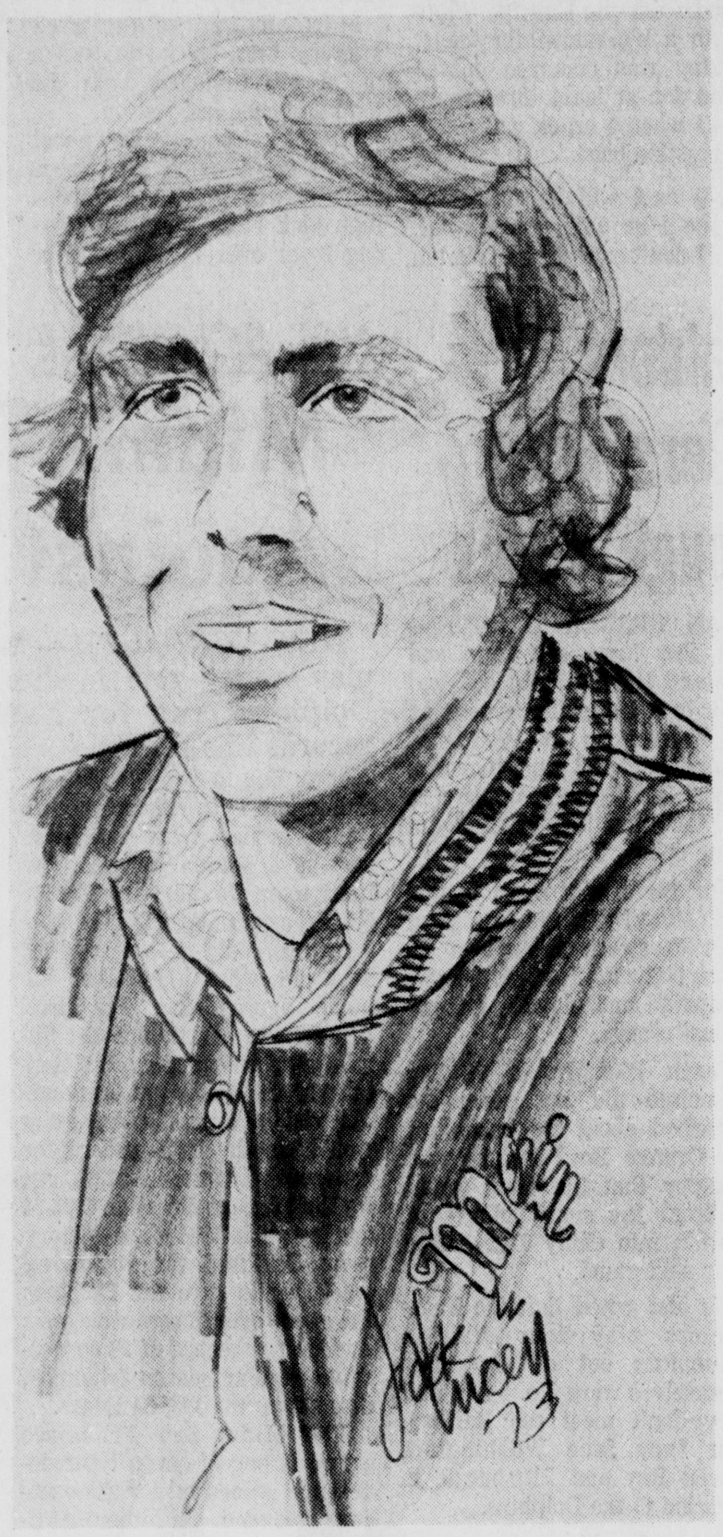
The no-hitter came the Saturday before, in the Soquel Boosters tournament down in Santa Cruz County, and naturally put him on the all-tournament team.

This is Cronin's first year on the varsity baseball team. Last year, he played junior varsity baseball, where his coach was Dave Gonsalves. He has played two years of varsity basketball — under Dave Gonsalves. He played one year of freshman basketball —under Dave Gonsalves. Since he is a junior, he will be back at both sports next year — expectedly under Dave Gonsalves.

Cronin first started playing baseball in the third grade. "Everybody was doing it, and my dad (Leo, a Fairfax lawyer) sort of pushed me into it," he explains.

His first pitching appearance was not exactly auspicious. "I got stuck in when we were losing, 15-4," he says. "My first pitch hit the umpire, who was dusting off home plate. I was nervous." He has improved since then, and this year has a 5-2 overall record and a 2.43 earned run average inflated by the fact that he gave up eight runs in the first inning he pitched. He has allowed three earned runs in his last 44⅓.

"Last year his breaking pitches were his best, but this year it's his fast ball," says Gonsalves. "He's really challenging the hitters. He's going to get better and better."



TOM CRONIN

"He's really challenging the hitters," says his coach, who has seen him enough to know. "He's going to get better and better."

(Independent-Journal sketch by Jack Lucey)

When not playing baseball or basketball (he was starting center on the Wildcats' surprising winter contenders), Cronin gravitates to the outdoors, liking to camp, fish and hike. "I'd like to go into forestry or conservation in some way," he says. "something in the mountains."

He intends to major in forestry or its equivalent in college, probably would continue to play baseball, but might drop basketball due to overlapping seasons. He has not yet made up his mind as to which college he will attend.

When he does show up on a collegiate diamond, however, he'll probably look around and half expect his coach to be Dave Gonsalves.

IN STANLEY CUP FINALS

Black Hawks To Come Back, Canadiens' Bowman Predicts

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman, with one victory in the Stanley Cup finals under his belt, predicts the Chicago Black Hawks will "come back and be hard to stop" in tonight's second game.

The Canadiens scored an easy 8-3 victory over the Black Hawks in Sunday's series opener, including four tallies in the final period.

"The Hawks will regroup," Bowman said. "They'll sell themselves that Sunday was just one game and even though we forced them to give up that early 2-0 lead, they know that they're in the finals and teams like that never get down.

"They were so strong against the Rangers that they'll come back and be hard to stop."

Montreal's all-star goalie Ken Dryden echoed the sentiments of his coach. "A team like Chicago will come back and won't let those eight goals bother them," Dryden said.

"They usually play with a difficult style to defense against and I'm sure they'll use it in the second game and play differently than they did in the opener."

Dryden, who as a rookie two years ago led his team to a Stanley Cup victory against the Black Hawks, said he felt Chicago did not use its basic style Sunday.

"From now on they'll play tight and just wait for their breaks," the netminder said.

Although the opener was expected to be a goalie's battle, there were few outstanding defensive moves. Dryden allowed two of the first three shots against him to score and Black Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito, who boasted a 1.55 goals against playoff average going into the finals, fell apart in the third period, allowing four quick goals.

Defenseman Bob Murdoch, who sat out the opener, is expected to dress for tonight's game. However, veteran rear guard Jacques Laperriere is hospitalized with a broken nose and severe groin injury. He is not expected to play for the next few games.

"I'd like to use twelve forwards to match up against their four lines," Bowman said. "But it all depends on the momentum of the game — that's the important thing for us."

After tonight's game the clubs will move to Chicago for game three on Thursday and game four on Sunday afternoon. If a fifth game is necessary it will be played in Montreal May 8.

Supervising Police Capt. Jeremiah P. Taylor said the team, which will include plainclothesmen, would "protect citizens, survey conditions and determine what additional protection may be needed inside."

There have been many complaints of robberies and assaults in the stands since the season started.

And on April 18, concessional and program employes Union Local 468 threatened to set up a picket line at the stadium gates unless more protection was provided.

Lamar Signed By ABA; Cleveland Gets Brewer

Combined AP & UPI

SAN DIEGO — The American Basketball Association has its first draft choice in the fold today. Dwight Lamar signed yesterday a multi-year contract with the San Diego Conquistadors for an amount estimated at $600,000.

Lamar, who led the nation's collegians in scoring as a sophomore and junior, also had been drafted by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association.

As a senior last year, he dipped from his usual 36 points a game to only 28.9, concentrating more on playmaking and defense.

The Southwestern Louisiana University prospect denied rumors he had agreed to go with the ABA before the draft.

"I'm very happy to be playing in San Diego," Lamar said. "I'm pleased with the area and pleased to be playing for a coach like K. C. Jones, who will help teach me defense."

More Basketball

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association yesterday announced the signing of their No. 1 draft choice, Jim Brewer of Minnesota. Brewer, 6-9, was the second man chosen in the NBA draft. He was also drafted by the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Boxing

LOS ANGELES — Mexican welterweight Isaac Quintas, who crumpled to the canvas after losing a gruelling 10-round fight last week and was rushed to a hospital for brain surgery, is "improving steadily" at County-USC Medical Center.

Quintas, who underwent a three-hour operation to remove pressure from a blood clot on his brain early Friday morning, was taken off the critical list and removed from the intensive care unit yesterday. Hospital spokesmen said Quintas could possibly be released in two weeks.

Football

LOS ANGELES — Marty Brill, star halfback on Knute Rockne's undefeated Notre Dame football teams of 1929 and 1930, died yesterday at St. Vincent's Hospital from a heart attack. He was 67.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The St. Louis Cardinals announced today that quarterback Gary Keithley of the University of Texas at El Paso, the team's second-round draft choice, had signed a long-term contract.

Keithley, 22, is a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder who led the Miners in total offense and punting last year, completing 57.2 per cent of his passes for seven touchdowns and punted 70 times, averaging 42.6 yards per punt.

Baseball

NEW YORK — Jerry Koosman, a lefthanded pitcher for the New York Mets, has been named National League player of the week for the period of April 23-29, it was announced today by league president Charles S. Feeney.

Koosman pitched two complete game victories during the week, both on the road, and currently boasts a 4-0 record with a 1.06 earned run average.

Golf

NEW YORK — Lanny Wadkins, winner of last weekend's Byron Nelson Golf Classic, has moved into fourth place in the Professional Golfers Association weekly money winnings list with $75,682.

Non-Derby Hopeful Heads Lineup For Derby Trial

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Mr. Prospector headed a field of six scheduled to run today in the $20,000 added derby trial stakes at Churchill Downs but the speedy colt was prepping for the Preakness Stakes on May 19 rather than next Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby.

"As far as I'm concerned he's headed for the Preakness but I can't speak for the owner," said trainer Jimmy Croll who does plan to start Royal and Regal in the first of the Triple Crown races.

"Mr. Prospector is a nice colt but he hasn't been tested yet. I had no intention of bringing him here at all after he missed 10 days of training in Florida because of a fever. That threw him off schedule. He couldn't run in the Hutcheson and, because he missed that race, he had to miss the Fountain and Youth and then the Florida Derby," said Croll.

Gold Bag, Settecento, Crimson Falcon, I'm Guaranteed and Blue Chip Dan complete the field for the mile race. Vodika was scratched from the trial and the derby because of an attack of colic.

Only Gold Bag and Settecento were likely to come back in the Kentucky Derby.

"He called me a thief when he said 'the only way they can beat Secretariat in the Wood Memorial is to steal it,' " Martin said.

"That means Sham can't beat Secretariat unless I do something bad. Let me tell you, my reputation on the race track is a million percent honest. It was very cheap to say that about me," Martin said.

But Laurin denied he was referring to Martin but only expressing his confidence in Secretariat's ability, a confidence that was shaken when Angle Light won the Wood Memorial with Sham second and Secretariat third.

He, like Martin, was ready to settle the matter on the race course and said he not only was afraid of Sham but of "all of them."

That included Angle Light, also trained by Laurin; Knightly Dawn, also trained by Martin; Twice A Prince, Restless Jet, Impecunious, Warbucks, My Gallant, Shecky Greene, Our Native, Starkers, Navajo, Forego, Royal And Regal, also trained by Croll, and Gold Bag and Settecento from the trial field.

Trainer Lou Goldfine does not want to start Shecky Greene, winner of the Stepping Stone Purse on Saturday, but owner Joe Kellman may insist upon it. Forego may come out if he does not work satisfactorily either today or tomorrow or if the track is muddy on Saturday.

IN ABA PLAYOFFS

Leonard Lauds Gilmore

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore scored 29 points, grabbed 26 rebounds and blocked seven shots to help the Kentucky Colonels whip the Indiana Pacers 114-102 here last night in the American Basketball Association Championship series.

The two teams are tied at one win apiece in the best-of-seven competition.

But the 7-foot-2 giant says he has to do better.

"When we go up to Indianapolis for our next game Thursday night, I know I've got to get a few more rebounds, take a few more shots and take a few more charges," he said after the game at his locker. "I know that's what it's going to take to win."

Kentucky Coach Joe Mullaney credited the Colonels' simple "bread and butter" offense for the victory — getting the ball inside to Gilmore or Dan Issel and watching them put it in the hoop.

Issel had 28 points and 12 rebounds Monday night.

"It may not look very attractive, but it's what we do best," Mullaney said. "We tried freelancing during the first three weeks of the season but when that didn't work, we went back to our old standby of getting the ball in to the two big men.

"This is one of the things that should work to our advantage because Indiana doesn't try to force you out of your normal patterns the way Carolina and Virginia did in our earlier playoffs," he added.

The Colonels lost Rick Mount, their outstanding outside shooter, in the second quarter when he limped off the court with a sprained ankle. It reduced their backcourt corps to two fulltime guards — Louis Dampier and Jim O'Brien — with swingmen Walt Simon and Pierre Russell for use in an emergency.

"I hope we'll have Rick back by Thursday night," Mullaney said.

First Day Anglers After The 'Big One'

When trout season opened last Saturday most of the first day anglers were kids all looking for that "big one." Warden Russ Ild and I started the morning off by checking the Paper Mill Creek areas.

The first angler checked with a limit, the biggest fish being a fat 10-incher, was Ted Kemp of San Rafael. His age is 10 and he was a happy kid. His dad Ed and his big brother Rich had four to go for their limits.

WE THEN CHECKED the Taylor Park hole where we had planted the 30,000 yearling salmon and the 10,000 yearling steelhead a month ago. We had been worried that the fish hadn't gone to sea as they should have, to return in two years as 10-pound adults. Our worries were for naught. Ten anglers and most of them were kids, were having their problems catching the very few fish that hadn't left. Just about all had gone to sea. That's good news for the salmon and steelhead anglers of the future.

We had checked about 36 anglers with most of the fish being somewhat small. We spotted this old time angler working the deeper potholes under the brush on Paper Mill Creek near Lagunitas, and near the deeper submerged rocks. The angler was Joe Bianchi of Forest Knolls, a guy who started fishing with me when I was a kid. He was putting his past youthful knowledge to good use. He had one fish that measured about 13 to 14 inches, and some others that were respectable sized trout in any man's league.

You just can't beat that old know-how. No steelheads were checked though with so much rain, most of the big spawners had ample water for their return trip to the sea.

PLANTS OF catchable sized trout are scheduled through this week at Rodeo Lagoon and Bon Tempe, Lagunitas, Phoenix and Stafford reservoirs. In Solano county, Lake Chabot will be stocked. In Napa county Hennessey reservoir has plants scheduled. Also in Sonoma County, Lake Ralphine and Spring Lake, and in Mendocino county, Cleone Lake and the East Branch of the Russian River.

Several other seasons will be going full swing this week because tide is right. Starting Wednesday at 5:52 a.m. (DST) there will be the start of a series of the first big minus tides of the season. Next Saturday the minus tide will be a whopping -1.6 at 8:25 a.m. and Sunday a-1.4 at 9:19 a.m. These are prime abalone and clam tides, and the rock fisherman and eel poke polers will have their days right for them. You should carefully check the Sport Fishing Regulations booklet from Section 51 through 58 for closures of areas and certain species of sea life.

FOR INSTANCE, Duxberry Reef has closures on many types of sea life. Estero De Limantour and the Point Reyes Headlands are reserves where no forms of marine life can be taken. The laws on tidal invertibrates are also more restrictive in state parks and in the Point Reyes National Seashore Recreation Area. Bolinas Lagoon, though full of clams, is still closed by the state and county health departments.

On May 1, the annual quarantine on mussels goes into effect. This year could be a particularly dangerous one for the red tide and its effects on mussels. The red tide danger doesn't affect the muscle meat of abalones, but it is recommended that only the white parts of the clam meat should be used. The stomach contents of clams should be considered dangerous. The flesh of all fish is considered to be perfectly safe.

SALMON FISHING has still been a hit and miss propositon. Party boat loggings for March show that 9,684 salmon were landed for that month compared to figures close to 30,000 last year in March. Only 144 stripers and 32 sturgeon were logged. It really proves that March, with its heavy winds and big runoffs of rain, was a tough month for the bay and ocean anglers. Some 6,338 rockfish were logged, so I guess Jach Ellis the skipper of The Blue Horizon party boat was on the ball.

Green Light On At Indy 500 Practice

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The green light was on at practice for the May 28 running of the Indianapolis "500" as the 180 miles per hour speed limit was lifted about noon Monday.

Most of the drivers expected to have the horsepower and skill to crack the 200 m.p.h. barrier for one lap have yet to shake down their cars.

But the mounts of three-time winner A.J. Foyt, Houston, and the stable of Vel's-Parnelli Jones, which includes two-time winner Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., and 1969 race victor Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., were expected to arrive at the track today.

Since the track opened last Saturday, only four drivers have been over 180 m.p.h.,and two of them, Mike Hiss, Tustin, Calif., and Mike Mosley, Clermont, Ind., paid $25 fines for exceeding the temporary speed limit imposed by chief steward Harlan Fengler.

Mosley had top Monday, 184.955, with Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., just behind at 183.599. Bettenhausen's speed came in the new McLaren built car for Penski racing teammate Bobby Allison, the Nascar ace from Hueytown, Ala. He has been shaking the car down for Allison.

Allison, who is a rookie at Indianapolis because he has never driven in the Memorial Day classic, reached 181.087 as he finished the fourth and final stage of his rookie test.

Mosley, who was fined Saturday for exceeding the speed limit, still owns fast time at practice a lap over 185-plus.

Joelle In The Swim At Lowell

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joelle Soanes has made swimming practice more fun for the Academic Athletic Association, which until recently was restricted to males.

The 17-year-old Lowell High School senior was permitted to swim in practices and noncompetitive meets after she applied to varsity coach Bill Feiling in March.

A suit was nearly filed with the California Interscholastic Federation which prohibited girls from competing with boys. The CIF, however, changed its rule, effective July 1, to allow coed competition—even in football.

For Miss Soanes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Soanes, the rule change comes too late. She'll have graduated and plans to pursue a career in the health field.

However, she doesn't regret practicing with 30 boys three times a week and her presence apparently didn't affect the team.

"The boys were really nice," she said. "They always rooted and clapped for me and were quite encouraging."

Slump Troubles Braves' Aaron

By DAVID MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron is fighting back the panic, but we can't hide the concern.

If this were 10 years ago, or even five years ago, Aaron would laugh off a .125 batting average as "just a slow start."

But Hank Aaron is 39 years old and the lurking possibility that he may not be able to hike that meager average very much is no laughing matter.

The one saving grace has been that Aaron is still hitting home runs and if he continues to close in on Babe Ruth's record, few will worry about that batting average.

Through the Braves first 20 games, one-eighth of the way through the season, Aaron had five homers and a career total of 678, 36 shy of the Ruth record.

The Braves, who need Aaron's homers to hypo sagging attendance, point out that in five previous seasons when he had five homers in that span, he wound up with from 38 to 47 for the entire year.

Aaron, who came into this season with a 19-year major league batting average of .311, admits he is "embarrassed" by his early season failure.

But he is not convinced that the slump will continue. He feels that he may have taken it a bit too easy in spring training and thus is "behind schedule."

Anyway, Aaron, who had 3,000 hits as his prime goal until he reached that mark a few years ago, is now concentrating on catching Ruth.

"I don't know that I will ever hit .300 again, or even .270," said Aaron who hit .265 last season after batting .327 the year before.

"But I'm convinced I can still drive in runs and still help this ball club," continued Aaron who has said he would "not want to hang around when I no longer contribute. Given a choice between hitting .300 or catching Ruth, I'll go for those 714 homers every chance I get."

Opposing clubs, aware that Hank Aaron is strictly a pull hitter, have been using an exaggerated shift to cut off hits through the left side of the infield.

This is the same sort of thing designed more than 20 years ago against Ed Williams and, like Williams, Aaron refuses to hit to the opposite field to break it up.

"It would mean changing my entire hitting style," insisted Aaron. "It would mean bringing the bat back down where I could control my direction with a loss in power.

"I really wouldn't hit anything like that.

"I'm simply unwilling, at this late date, to sacrifice my power and take a chance on a new hitting stance just because other teams are shifting on me," said Aaron. "That's what they would like me to do."

Aaron insists he isn't letting the pressures attendant to chasing Ruth's record affect him.

"I don't mind all the interviews, all the questions," said Aaron. "Actually, people have been very kind to me. I suppose being in Atlanta gives me an advantage in that regard over the problems Roger Maris faced in New York the year he hit 61 home runs.

"I can see, with so many people coming at you in New York, where it might get you down. It's not that way in Atlanta.

PRO CIRCUIT PEACE

Gal Netters Back Pact

SEA PINES, S.C. (AP) — The off-the-court contest between the Virginia Slims circuit and the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association is apparently over. And the results have opened the way for future on-court contests between the likes of Billie Jean King and Chris Evert.

The World's Professional Tennis Players' Association announced Monday that the players on the Virginia Slims circuit had approved an agreement with the USLTA by which the remaining 1973 Slims circuit tournaments would be sanctioned.

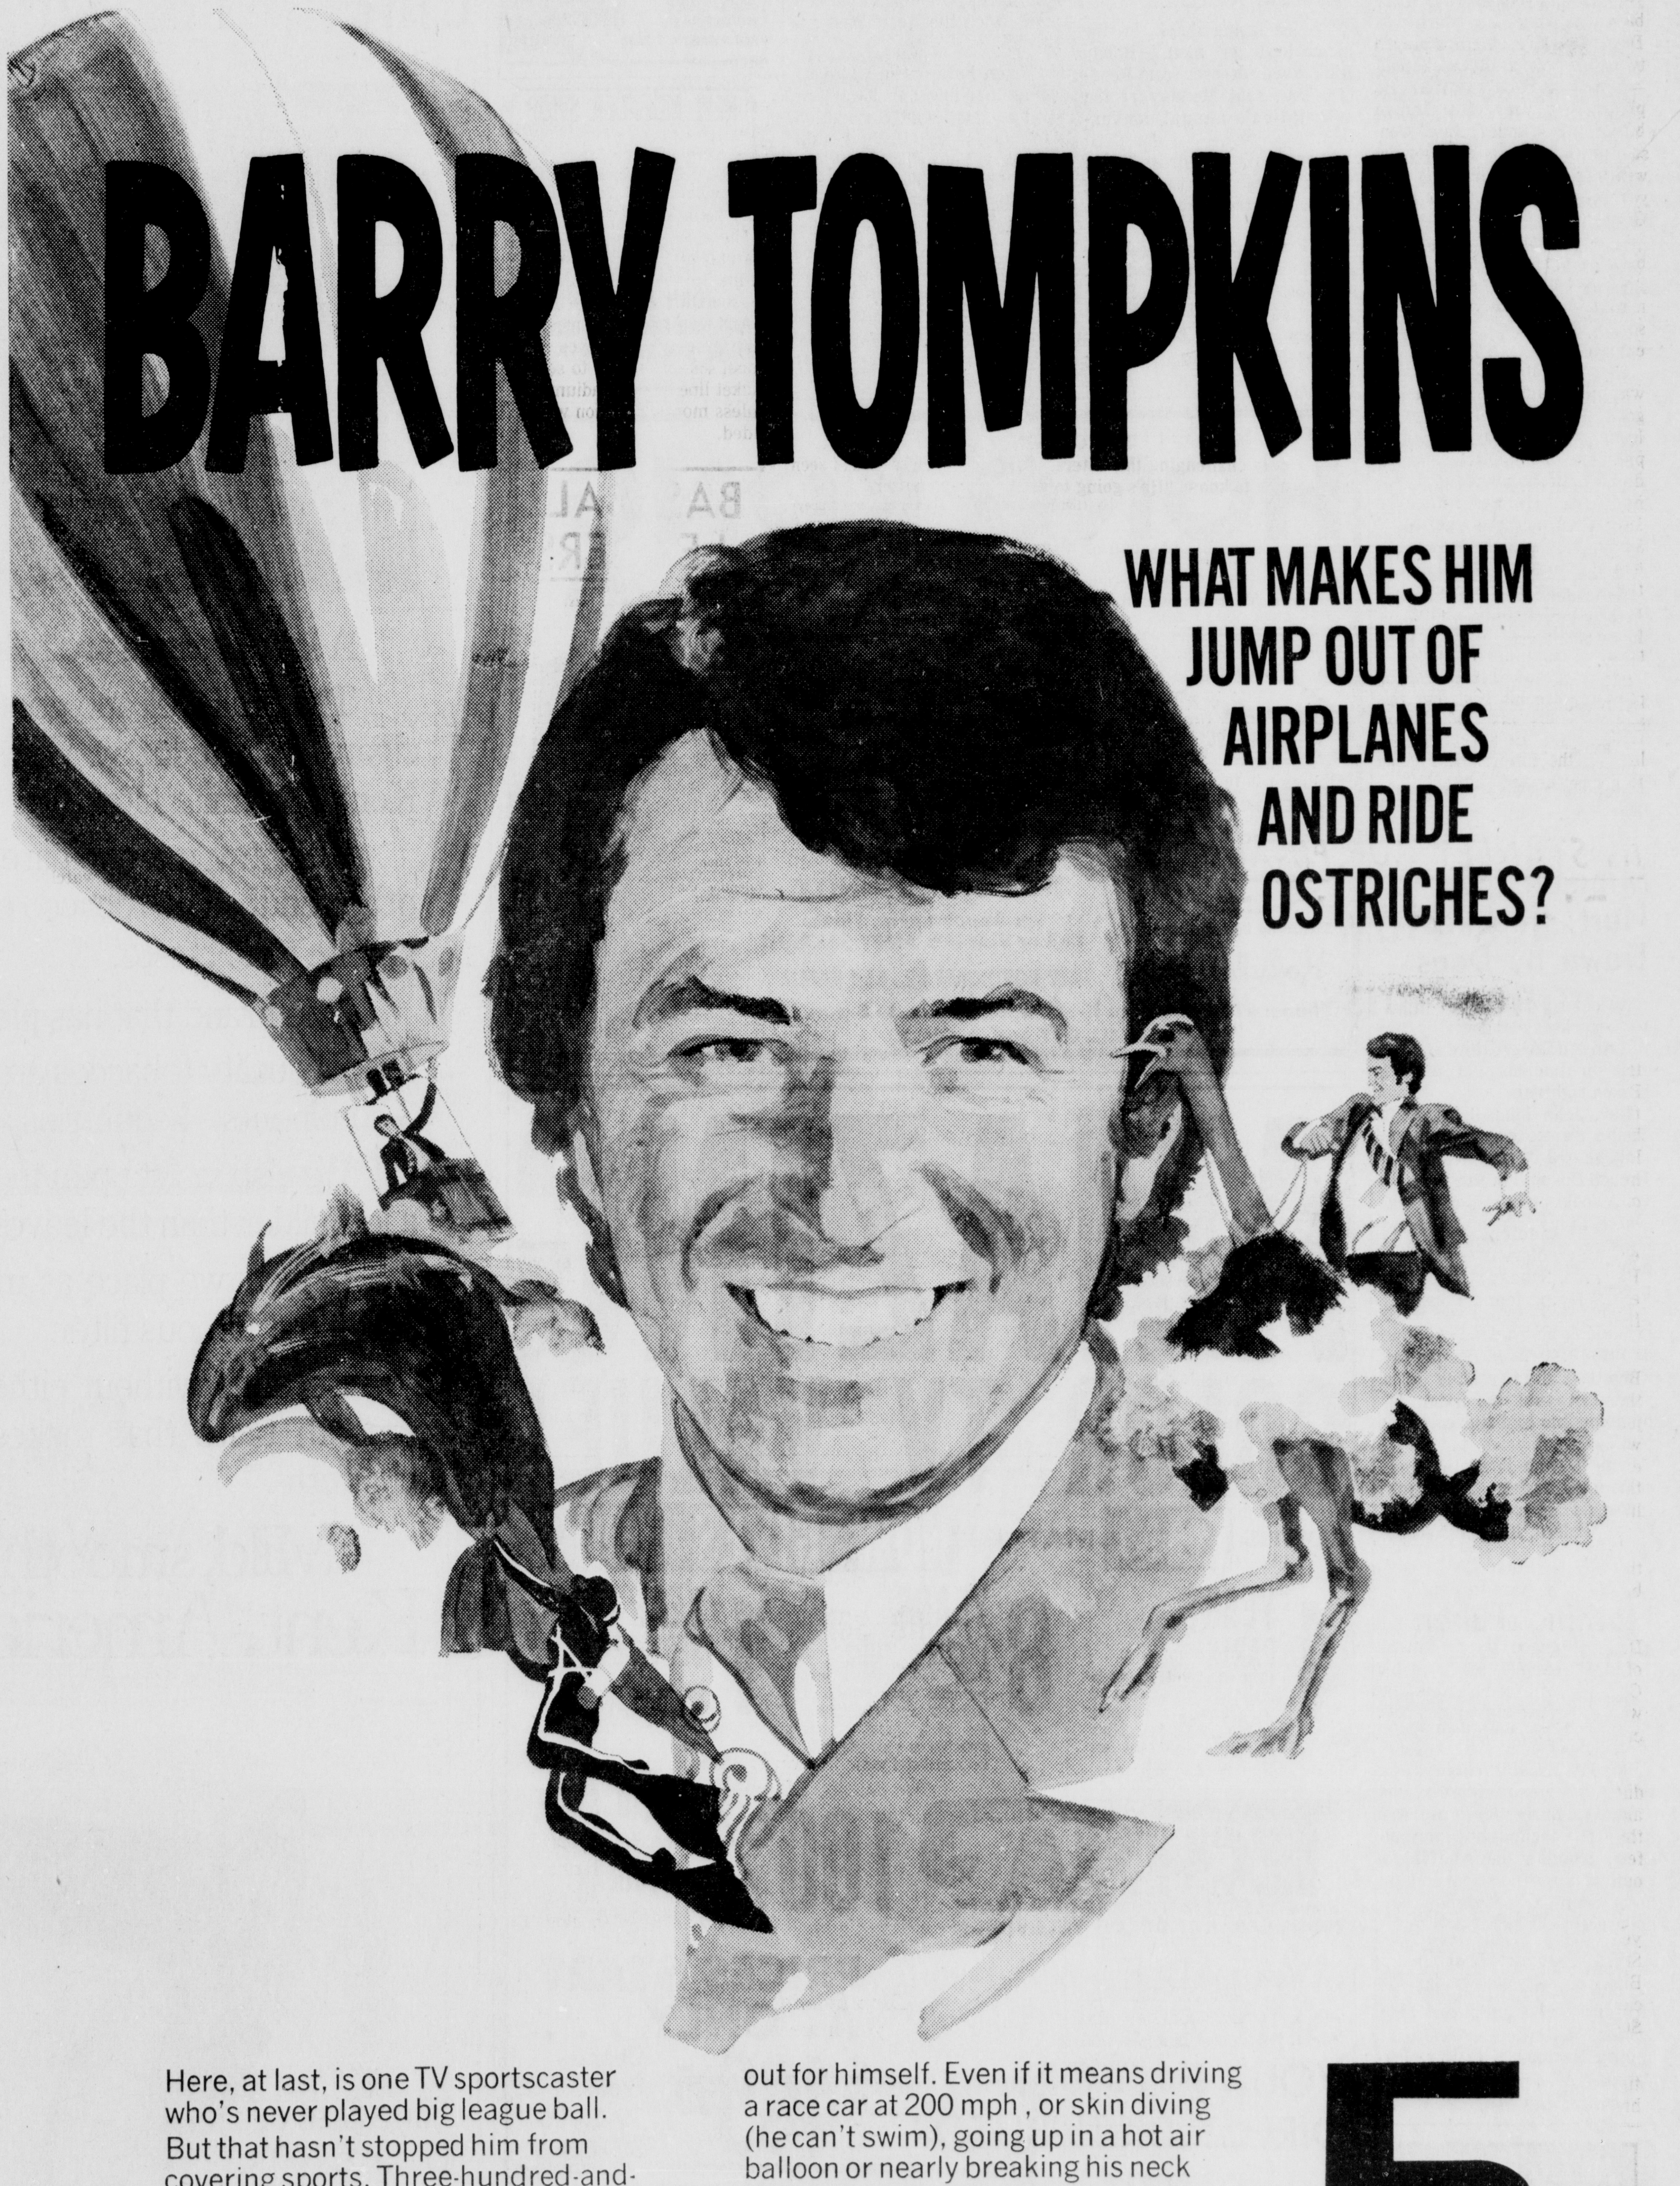
About 60 circuit players would be eligible to compete in the national championships including the French Open, Wimbledon, and Forest Hills, and the circuit would be sanctioned within the 1974 USLTA schedule.

Because the Virginia Slims circuit had been declared ineligible by the USLTA to compete in those events, the younger USLTA players such as Miss Evert and Evonne Goolagong had been unable to compete against Virginia Slims veterans such as Mrs. King, Francoise Durr and Nancy Richey Gunter.

"We are delighted that it has been possible to work out this agreement," Mrs. King said. "As players, we are glad now to have this opportunity to participate in all the tournaments."

Wednesday Action

The gymnasium at Drake High School in San Anselmo will be open for adults on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9:30 instead of Tuesdays, it was announced today by Bob Fitzhenry, physical education department chairman at Drake.



BARRY TOMPKINS
WHAT MAKES HIM JUMP OUT OF AIRPLANES AND RIDE OSTRICHES?

Here, at last, is one TV sportscaster who's never played big league ball. But that hasn't stopped him from covering sports. Three-hundred-and-sixty-three different sports so far, including log rolling, curling, and river rafting.

Tompkins has this thing about finding out for himself. Even if it means driving a race car at 200 mph , or skin diving (he can't swim), going up in a hot air balloon or nearly breaking his neck riding in an ostrich race.

If you want all of the sports news, you better watch Barry Tompkins.

Proposed Tax Reforms Said Ineffective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional liberals are complaining that the administration's n e w tax proposals fail to close any existing tax "loopholes" benefiting the rich.

They said such loopholes allow corporations and the rich to escape paying $60 billion in taxes each year.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz promised that the White House would consider any anti-loophole proposals Congress can devise, but he refused to propose any on his own initiative.

Shultz's chief proposal—presented to Congress Monday— was to increase by a modest $800 million the taxes that are paid on income which benefits from preferential treatment in the tax code—loophole income.

Under his plan, a doctor with $100,000 in taxable medical income could use the "paper losses" provided by tax shelters - hobby farming or real estate, for example—to shelter from taxation only $100,000 of income. There is no limit today to how much a taxpayer can benefit from tax shelters.

An example Shultz provided in his testimony Monday before the House Ways and Means Committee cites a taxpayer with oil investments, plus $175,000 in earnings, and $100,000 in profits from sale of stocks.

Under current law, his taxes would be $45,358—a tax rate of 16 per cent, or about the same rate as a $10,000-a-year secretary pays.

Under the change Shultz proposed, the tax would be $64,620—a rate of about 23 per cent.

Shultz also proposed what some saw as a new loophole—a tax credit of up to 12 per cent for investors in firms which explore for domestic sources of oil.

"I'm surprised," said Rep. William J. Green, D-Pa. He said the Treasury had ignored "tremendous inequities" uncovered by the committee in hearings which started early in February.

"The mountain has roared and produced a mouse," Green said.

"Tax reform, my eye!" said Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., in a statement which promised a floor fight.

Minister, 87, Hurt; Knocked Down By Dogs

An elderly Mill Valley minister was knocked down by two playing dogs yesterday and sent to the hospital with a broken right hip.

Rev. John Pennell, 86, of 71 Thalia Street, was reported in satisfactory condition today at French Hospital in San Francisco. A spokesman said a pin was placed in his fractured hip during surgery yesterday and he is doing "as well as can be expected."

Police said Pennell was walking along Sunnyside Avenue about 10:40 a.m. yesterday when two dogs playing in a yard ran onto the sidewalk, bumping into him and knocking him down.

Pennell, who is semiretired, sometimes assists at the Holy Innocents Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera, his granddaughter said.

Nothing Taken From School

Mill Valley police said today whoever broke into Tamalpais High School over the weekend apparently didn't take anything.

Police also said they have yet to learn what was taken from the office of Don L. Dimitratos, city director of parks and recreation. His office at the Community Recreation Center, 180 Camino Alto, was ransacked Sunday.

Yemeni Airliner Crash Kills Several Government Officials

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Yemeni airliner crashed in a remote region of South Yemen late Monday, killing the country's foreign minister and 24 other government officials, Beirut Radio said today.

The other officials included South Yemen's ambassadors to the Soviet Union, Britain, Iraq, Lebanon and Somalia and the South Yemeni representative at the Arab League, the broadcast said.

The radio said an official statement issued in Aden announced the crash.

It did not give the cause of the crash.

The radio, quoting South Yemen Information Minister Abdallah Al-Khamiri, said the plane went down while on a domestic flight about 290 miles north of Aden.

That placed the crash in desert country in the extreme northeast of South Yemen, not far from the Saudi Arabian and Oman frontiers.

The official Aden statement did not say how many persons were aboard the plane or whether any survived the crash.

Beirut newspapers said the ambassadors killed in the crash were summoned to Aden recently for one of their normal periodic consultations with the foreign minister.

South Yemen has the first and only Marxist regime in the Arab world. It became independent Nov. 30, 1967, after 128 years of British rule.

Last autumn, South Yemen clashed with the Yemen Arab Republic, its large neighbor to the north, in three months of border fighting. Under an agreement signed with north Yemen in Libya last November that ended the fighting the two countries agreed to work towards unification.

Bridges Says His Union Is No Longer Satisfied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — West Coast longshore leader Harry Bridges warned Monday that his union is ready to strike for cost-of-living pay hikes and against federal wage controls in next eight months.

Bridges, 71, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), told its 20th biannual convention "the principle we must operate on now is that we are never satisfied."

He announced a change in union policy on contract lengths and cost-of-living clauses for negotiations in the next eight months on contracts covering longshoremen, warehousemen and pineapple and fruit packing workers on the West Coast and Hawaii.

"From here on in, we're not going to allow any long term contracts unless the rank-and-file allows it," Bridges said. "We're going to build into contracts in the future cost-ofliving increases.

"We've always avoided that in the past as a matter of principle. But we don't want to give the idea that we're satisfied with what we've got now. The principle that we must operate on now is that we are never satisfied."

'Clean Look' In Hair Seen

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Long hair is on the way out—the clean look is back in. At least that's the word from the Pennsylvania Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association.

"Long hair and dress styles which looked as if the clothing had been borrowed are out," he said.

Rick, who was the only American to win a silver medal at the world "Olympics" of hair styling in Spain last fall, said the new cuts will be cut with scissors. Razor cuts are out, he said.

Take away your filter and what've you got?

That's all well and good. The filter is an important part of your cigarette. (We know. We give you the most famous one of all: the Kent Micronite filter.)

But how many cigarettes have something to say about the other end? The tobacco end. The part that gives you what you smoke for... taste.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

24 quality tobaccos are blended into each Kent. And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find them.

We also insist upon the lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent. They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top of the plant.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobacco as we do on our famous filter.

Because without either one, we couldn't give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Kent. America's quality cigarette.

SMILING NIXON — President Richard M. Supervisors Kill Merger Proposal

Plan To Consolidate Departments Axed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County Supervisors, under intense political pressure, moved swiftly today to kill the county administrator's controversial proposal to consolidate the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation.

The move came at the outset of the board's public hearing and drew a 4-to-1 vote from supervisors and sighs of relief from some members of the audience, which totaled about 150 persons.

However, supervisors agreed to spend a portion of the afternoon session discussing their own ideas or reorganizing the three departments short of full consolidation.

The board's move to scrap Administrator John F. Barrows' proposal came at the urging of Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who said "it was a mistake" to direct Barrows to develop the reorganization alone.

He said the three department heads involved — Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Planning Director Werner Von Gundell and Parks Director Pierre W. Joske — should have been included in mapping out the reorganization.

Furthermore, he said, the board failed to instruct the three department heads to meet with Barrows after the proposal was finally submitted last month.

"As a result, there is ill-will among the three departments involved, which is sadly unfortunate," Giacomini read from a prepared statement.

"As a result, we have received a phenomenal amount of public outcry on the issue, and

Brandt, Nixon Begin Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon gave West German Chancellor Willy Brandt a relaxed, informal White House welcome today and they immediately began two days of talks.

Brandt drove from nearby Blair House to the south side of the White House where Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers greeted him, standing on a short red carpet.

During the first minutes of the welcome it had the trappings of a state visit, including honor guards lining the driveway and U.S. Army trumpeters, but the atmosphere was warm and relaxed.

On the morning after removal of three top aides because of the Watergate bugging case and what he acknowledged was a difficult broadcast speech to the nation, Nixon appeared to be in a cheerful mood.

He chatted with news photographers and cameramen while waiting for Brandt —who was 10 minutes late. He later joked with Brandt about the chancellor's unsuccessful fishing trip on Chesapeake Bay Monday.

While talking with Brandt, Nixon gave him a half embrace. Then, with his hand over Brandt's shoulder, they slowly walked down the driveway toward the West Wing of the White House.

As they were strolling to his office, he placed his arm around Brandt's shoulder a second time.

The President in his speech Monday night, accepting the responsibility but not the blame for Watergate, mentioned his talks with Brandt as well as his forthcoming summit conference with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, as examples of the "larger things" to which he wants to turn his attention now.

Nixon and Brandt, in addition to this morning's session, will dine together at the White House tonight and confer again Wednesday morning before the Chancellor addresses the National Press Club.

It was announced Monday that Presidential Adviser Henry A. Kissinger would meet Friday in Moscow with Soviet officials to discuss arrangements for the Brezhnev visit to Washington, which is tentatively scheduled to take place in late June. Nixon also has invited French President Georges Pompidou to meet him somewhere in the Western Hemisphere prior to the Soviet-American summit.

Nixon and Brandt were expected to discuss a whole range of measures being taken to end the cold war in Europe and deal with the Soviet Union on a more cooperative basis. The President mentioned particularly the proposed discussions with the Soviet Bloc to achieve mutual reduction of armed forces along the Iron Curtain. He said that, if successful, these would materially reduce the U.S. military budget.

He also cited other issues of critical importance, the second round of Soviet-American talks on limitation of strategic nuclear weapons, the "difficult task of maintaining peace in Southeast Asia" and the situation in the Middle East.

The Nixon-Brandt talks also are expected to deal with the President's idea for a "new Atlantic Charter," unveiled last week in a New York speech by Kissinger, and trade problems.

FBI Guards Aides' Files Following Nixon's Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI agents moved into the White House today to safeguard presidential papers in offices of three top aides to President Nixon who resigned yesterday in the Watergate case.

Government spokesmen described it as an orderly procedural step that reflected in no way on those leaving.

But White House officials said the move was decided on at a high level meeting yesterday after consultations between Elliot L. Richardson, named by Nixon to take command of the Watergate investigation and to be new attorney general, and acting White House legal counsel Leonard Garment.

"The FBI is safeguarding the files so that a precise strict procedure is established regarding access and removal of any White House papers," officials said.

Nixon fired his White House counsel John W. Dean III yesterday and accepted the resignations of his two most trusted aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

He also pledged in a televised speech to the nation "there will be no whitewash in the White House" of the Watergate affair and ordered a fresh investigation of administration involvement in the burglary and bugging of Democratic headquarters last June.

The Senate special committee investigating Watergate was summoned to meet in a closed session Wednesday and the Watergate grand jury met late this morning to discuss their separate, future courses in looking into the scandal.

In a quick development, the Senate passed by voice vote a resolution urging the President to name a special independent prosecutor to oversee the government's Watergate investigation. A similar resolution was introduced in the House.

The proposal is not binding on Nixon. The President said in his speech last night he had authorized Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor if he felt it necessary.

Nixon said in his speech last night he had authorized Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor if he felt it was necessary.

The appearance of the FBI agents at the White House itself and at the adjacent Executive Office Building was the first overt manifestation of Nixon's announced determination to get the full facts of the Watergate scandal.

The agents, wearing visitors' passes, were seen near the offices of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean. Others were posted near the mailroom of the Executive Office Building.

The White House said the FBI action was an "orderly procedure to maintain presidential papers and in no way reflects on the integrity of the departing advisers —It's a procedural step."

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, "The purpose of this procedural step is to make sure all appropriate steps are taken to oversee all files." He said the FBI was instructed to "physically protect the file," describing the move as "a strict safeguard procedure to protect all documents."

Ziegler would not say why Secret Service agents or White House police were not used.

Nixon appeared to be in a relaxed, smiling mood when he publicly welcomed West German Chancellor Willy Brandt to the White House late this morning.

That was in contrast to the noticeable tenseness he showed last night while delivering his speech.

The President told the nation he accepted full responsibility for not recognizing the gravity of the Watergate case after it broke June 17 with the arrest of five men at Democratic national headquarters with bugging equipment in their possession. He said he was misled by subordinates.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman reportedly resisted temporarily Nixon's decision that they should resign from the powerful

A Proposal To Hike Bus Fares Rejected

The Marin County Transit District board today unanimously rejected a staff recommendation that local bus fares be increased 10 cents to cover next year's expected operating deficit.

The board's staff also said the number of intracounty bus routes could be cut as another means of reducing the expected $82,000 deficit but that also was rejected.

"To reduce the number of routes at this time would be going backwards," Wornum argued, adding it was the intent of the proposed countywide general plan and previous county policy to encourage bus use and discourage auto use.

Wornum, who also serves on the Golden Gate Bridge District board from which the county contracts its bus service, suggested the board consider a tax rate increase election. His idea, suggested last month, drew no response.

Instead, the board agreed with board member Robert A. Roumiguiere to delay further discussion until July budget hearings when it will consider whether to fund the deficit out of the district's $250,000 reserve.

Aid Plan Excludes N. Viets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon sent Congress today a $2.9 billion foreign aid bill including $632 million to rebuild war-torn South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, but seeking no funds at all for North Vietnam.

Nixon described the measure which would increase current foreign aid levels by $300 million as "the absolute minimum prudent investment" needed for the free world's development and prosperity.

Nixon said in a message to the House and Senate that he was not requesting any money for North Vietnam because he said the Communists were violating the Paris cease-fire accords. He said if Hanoi adhered to the agreement he would propose American assistance for reconstruction and development in North Vietnam.

When the Vietnam peace agreement was negotiated, both sides mentioned that the United States would contribute to repairing damage caused by U.S. bombing in North Vietnam. There has been considerable opposition in Congress to any large aid plan.

The President requested $1 billion in development assistance to the world's poor nations, and $1.3 billion in military aid to friendly nations along with the $632 million "for the reconstruction effort in Indochina," other than North Vietnam.

The President insisted that the aid program was vital to America. He told Congress: "Successful development by friendly nations is important to us both economically and politically.

"Economically, many of the developing countries have energy resources and raw materials which the world will need to share in coming years. They also could represent larger markets for our exports.

"Politically, we cannot achieve some of our goals without their support. Moreover, if essential needs of any people go entirely unsatisfied their frustrations only breed violence and international instability.

"Thus we should recognize that we assist them out of self-interest as well as humanitarian motives."

No foreign aid authorization bill passed Congress last year because of a dispute between the Senate and House over proposed riders to legislate an end to the Vietnam war and to impose other restrictions on the use of the assistance funds.

Nixon said passage of a bill this year is vital to the international "Nixon Doctrine of Shared Responsibilities."

By GEORGE NEVIN

An immediate halt to all new water connections in the Marin Municipal Water District was unanimously ordered yesterday by district directors. (Another water district story, page 17.)

At the same time, board members agreed to push ahead with seeking new sources of water to head off a threatened shortage, but said it may be years before these sources can be tapped.

Citing an imminent crisis in water supply, directors enacted a temporary moratorium on new water connections of any size and promised a permanent freeze to replace it in a few weeks.

The door was left open, however, to granting exceptions via variance procedure.

Director Jack R. Felson said possible exemptions might be given to single-family homes to be built by their owners, low and moderate cost housing and those projects on which planning now is under way.

An overflow crowd of about 50 persons jammed the hearing room at the water district's Corte Madera headquarters. Most of those who spoke allied themselves with the development and building trade and opposed the moratorium.

It was the third time a freeze on connections had been before directors. On the two previous occasions, last June and again in February, the board had declared a threatened water shortage but stopped short of a connections freeze.

The seating of Dr. L. Martin Griffin on the board provided the impetus for the moratorium. The board had been deadlocked on the subject, with Dr. Ronald T. Stafford and Felson favoring it and John W. MacPhail and John L. Martinelli Jr. opposing it.

MacPhail abandoned his opposition to the moratorium in exchange for a pledge from the majority of three that they would support a bond issue in November to develop new sources of water.

MacPhail noted Griffin's election to the board on April 17 after a campaign taking a strong conservationist stand and pledging to vote for such a moratorium. MacPhail pointed out that had broken the deadlock on the board and said he might as well go along with the new majority.

Martinelli abandoned his opposition to the moratorium without comment.

Snag On Widening Of Road

An environmental impact report on proposed realignment of Lucas Valley Road from Mount McKinley Road to Big Rock finds that two of four possible routes are unacceptable, Marinwood Association president Michael Laughlin reported today.

The report, prepared by Environmental Science Association of Burlingame in connection with a county proposal to widen Lucas Valley Road, was aired before about 70 members of the Marinwood and Lucas Valley homeowners associations last night, Laughlin said.

Laughlin said the report was a preliminary "environmental impact assessment" of the proposed improvement and added a final impact report will be presented by the firm to the county within two weeks.

Laughlin said the preliminary report rejects two routes that "go about one-quarter mile further north" and vary widely from the present course of Lucas Valley Road. These proposals, according to the report, would require more grading, cutting and filling than two other possible routes that "go along the same general route" as the present road.

Realignment of the road using the northern routes would cost about $2 million, while realignment using routes similar to the existing road would cost about $1.6 million according to county figures, he said.

Routes deemed desirable by the report would require some cutting and filling aimed at widening the shoulders of Lucas Valley Road and softening curves, he said.

Audience members wondered whether any alteration of the road is necessary, but were in general agreement that following the general contour of the

Police Chief Klemme Turns In Resignation

Novato Police Chief Allen V. Klemme resigned today citing disagreements with City Mgr. Charles A. Brown over department operation and policy during the past several months.

Klemme's resignation, to become effective on appointment of a new chief, was predicted last week by the Novato Police Association's attorney, J. D. (Pat) Burdick, after a closed meeting with the city council.

Until he departs, Klemme will work on earthquake and disaster programs. Lt. R. Richard Courier, as acting chief, will be in charge of the day-to-day operations of the department.

In his letter of resignation submitted to Brown, Klemme said the disagreements they have had "are not easily reconcilable."

"It has become clear to me that to resolve these disagreements would be disruptive to the future effectiveness of the department and the city. Although it would be consistent with my character to remain until these disagreements have been overcome, such a course of action would not be in the best interest of the city," Klemme said.

Brown, in a separate statement, said the reason for the resignation and his acceptance is that "during the past few months, mutual respect and confidence has diminished to the extent that it has been decided for the best interest of the city of Novato that the chief resign," Brown said.

(Under the city's city manager ordinance, the city manager has the power to hire and fire department heads.)

Brown said that he has investigated "a number of personnel problems" in the police department, but has found it one of the finest police departments in Marin County. "Many of the high standards of this police department have been achieved during the past three years under the direction of Chief Klemme," he said.

Klemme said his more than three years as chief have been rewarding and that he wishes "every success in maintaining the excellence of the Novato Police Department."

Controller Order Blamed For Crash

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. (UPI) — The April 12th mid-air collision that took the lives of 16 space agency officials and Navy crewmen occurred because both planes were instructed to land on the same runway, the joint Navy-NASA investigation board announced today.

"There is no evidence," the report said, "that either pilot or the (control) tower personnel were aware of the pending collision."

Most May Day Celebrations Center On Day Off, Parades

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Strikes marred May Day celebrations in some countries, but much of the world marked the equivalent of Labor Day today with parades and a day off work.

In Moscow, thousands of persons jammed Red Square to hear Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev pledge to seek better relations with the United States and Japan and to help overcome "Europe's bloody past."

Following his brief speech, more than a million Muscovites ranging from factory workers to athletes paraded through Red Square as Brezhnev and other Communist party leaders looked on from atop the Lenin Mausoleum. Like most of the Eastern bloc, the Soviet Union abolished the military aspect of the May Day parade years ago.

In Japan, millions of labor union members turned out in peaceful demonstrations and rallies and heard their leaders call for the ouster of conservative Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, blamed for escalating costs of living.

The demonstrations coincided with a poll published by Japan's largest newspaper claiming that popular support for Tanaka's policies had slipped drastically in the wake of the worst transportation strike in Japanese history last week that paralyzed the nation's economy.

While flags fluttered and millions relaxed, many British and Spanish workers stayed home for another reason—they were on strike.

Spain's biggest industrial plant, a Barcelona automobile plant, was shut down by a walkout of 24,000 workers protesting increased social security payments.

In Britain, union officials said between one and two million workers struck for 24 hours to protest government curbs on pay raises.

In Paris, thousands of high school students were expected to join traditional leftwing marches. The students have been aroused by a government abolition of their military deferment.

In Rome, unions organized a traditional march from the Colosseum to the square in front of St. John's Basilica, which is Pope Paul VI's church in his role of bishop of Rome. The Pope planned to mark the day, celebrated by Roman Catholics as the feastday of St. Joseph, by greeting pilgrims and tourists at the Vatican.

In Israel, minor work stoppages were planned during the day. Rightwing groups called for abolishing May Day observances in newspaper advertisements reading: "The red flags that wave will be the flags of Israel's enemies and of those who plot the destruction of the state."

In Havana, thousands of workers and students were expected to march in May Day celebrations winding up with a speech by Premier Fidel Castro.

Cuban radio broadcasts heard in Miami said a 21-gun cannon salute would signal the start of the parade by 133,000 persons, among them 17,000 rural high school students.

There was no mention of army troops, indicating that Cuba would again follow the pattern of recent years— emphasizing political slogans and banners while omitting military hardware and soldiers.

The New China News Agency, heard in Hong Kong, said millions of Chinese waving red flags and banners attended public celebrations, but it did not say if Mao Tse-tung was among them.

In Cairo President Anwar Sadat said today that American peace plans for the Middle East were deceptive and cautioned Soviet leaders against accepting them.

Sadat did not announce any measures to break the Middle East deadlock, but reaffirmed his earlier declarations that a state of "total confrontation" against Israel has started.

He spoke at a May Day rally at the Nile Delta industrial town of Mehalla El-Kobra, about 70 miles north of Cairo. The speech, which lasted nearly two hours, was broadcast live by radio and television.

Shortly before Sadat spoke a left-wing Arab organization with members all over the world called for mass demonstrations against American interests in the Middle East on May 15, Beirut press reports said.

Rogers Says Nixon Has Right To Bomb Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers has handed the Senate a 14-page document claiming constitutional legitimacy for the bombing of Cambodia and denying that the U.S. flag has again been committed in Indochina.

After months of delay, Rogers furnished the Senate Foreign Relations Committee an explanation of how—Rogers says—President Nixon can legally continue bombing in Indochina without congressional consent, now that all U.S. ground troops and prisoners of war are home.

Since North Vietnamese are violating the Jan. 29 cease-fire agreement that the administration has negotiated, Rogers claimed the administration can undertake military action to give Hanoi an incentive to uphold the agreement.

Those who argue that air strikes must cease because of the Constitution are saying the Constitution "contains an automatic self-destruct mechanism designed to destroy what has been so painfully achieved" at the negotiating table, Rogers said.

Rogers steadfastly denied that, by bombing in support of the Lon Nol government in Cambodia, the United States is undertaking a defense commitment that will prevent it from leaving until insurgent forces have been defeated.

The strikes, he contended "do not represent a commitment by the United States to the defense of Cambodia as such but instead represent a meaningful interim action to bring about compliance" with Article 20 of the peace agreement barring North Vietnamese and other foreign troops from Cambodia.

But as long as they remain there, they threaten "the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people, which is guaranteed by the agreement."

Senators who have questioned the President's constitutional authority to continue bombing in Indochina were handed Rogers' statement during a hearing Monday. They asked Rogers to return later to discuss it in detail.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Threat To Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A federal mediator hopes to bring both sides together late this week or early next week in an attempt to settle a strike that could delay the scheduled May 14 launch of the Skylab space station.

There have been no negotiations between 130 striking tracking station workers and the Bendix Field Engineering Corp., since last Thursday. A spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) said both sides are far apart in a pay dispute.

A Test Boycott?

SYDNEY (UPI) — The president of Australia's biggest trade union said today he hopes an international labor group will threaten France with a worldwide trade and transport embargo to prevent French nuclear tests in the South Pacific.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU), said he attended a meeting of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) in Mexico, where it was agreed that each member country would decide what action it will take in the event the French tests take place.

Train Sabotaged

SAIGON (UPI) — Saboteurs blew up a freight train about 25 miles east of Saigon yesterday and government troops killed 13 Communists in fighting in the Central Highlands, the Saigon command said today.

President Nguyen Van Thieu told leaders of his newly formed Democratic party that President Nixon assured him the United States would "retaliate" if the Communists broke the Vietnam cease-fire.

Thieu, who conferred with Nixon in the United States in early April, also said he is working on a plan to overcome postwar unemployment in the country and said he will shake up his government and its civil service "along military lines" within a week. He did not elaborate on his reshuffle plans.

A Talk Of War

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State William H. Sullivan said today North Vietnam must decide soon either to adhere to the cease-fire agreement or go back to war.

"Hanoi knows what we expected from them," he said. "I think they will have to make a choice soon as to whether they are going to have a full and faithful implementation of the agreement or whether they will take the path that leads back into the unfortunate military situation that we hopefully ended by signing the Jan. 27 agreement."

Sullivan's statement and statements by the North Vietnamese raised doubts that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger would be able to hold talks in Paris in mid-May with Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho as envisaged by the White House. The Sullivan talks were to have laid the groundwork for this meeting.

Raids Resumed

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. Air Force Phantom jets resumed bombing raids around Phnom Penh today after a one-day respite, striking targets field reports placed about five miles east of the capital.

The raids were aimed at targets in marshes where Communist troops retreated after a 1,500-man government force routed them from the east bank of the Mekong river.

Martial Law

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government declared martial law in Buenos Aires and five provinces last night after leftwing guerrillas assassinated a retired admiral, the fifth high-ranking military man slain by guerrillas since a March election meant to return the country to civilian rule.

Demand For Independent Watergate Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Republicans and Democrats agreeing that the Watergate scandal will remain a major issue for months to come, leaders of both parties demanded today that a special, independent prosecutor be named to oversee further investigation.

"Watergate is far worse than Teapot Dome and the worst is yet to come," Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., considered a possible 1976 Republican presidential candidate, said in proposing a Senate resolution calling for an outside prosecutor.

In announcing yesterday the departure of four top-level administration aides because of steadily unfolding Watergate disclosures, President Nixon named Elliot L. Richardson — now Attorney-General designate —to take over the investigation. In his broadcast speech to the nation last night, Nixon said he had told Richardson he could name a supervising prosecutor if he felt it warranted.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., an early Democratic presidential candidate in 1972 who often supported Nixon policies in Vietnam, said Richardson's credentials were unquestioned but that the prosecutor should be "removed from anything political."

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., noted that Richardson "has been on the Nixon team from the beginning so the appointment of a truly independent man is essential."

Percy, in a joint interview with Buckley and two other GOP senators on NBC-TV's Today Show, said "the underlying principle" of his resolution is that "the executive branch should not investigate itself."

In a separate interview, Jackson said Nixon should have directed Richardson to appoint a special prosecutor —"far removed from anything political," adding:

"At this point in time, the best politics is no politics. That applies on the Democratic side; that applies on the Republican side. The American people feel that the institution of the presidency, the White House, has been badly tarnished in this go-round."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., for a short time the 1972 Democratic vice presidential nominee and like Jackson a former prosecutor, said that a key matter in prosecuting the case in the future is to give the prosecutor authority to grant immunity to witnesses with major information.

John W. Dean III, White House legal counsel fired by Nixon in the shakeup, has been reported in published accounts as seeking immunity from prosecution before agreeing to give testimony before the Watergate grand jury about his knowledge of the bugging.

Nixon said in his broadcast that the first he knew about the bugging was news accounts received while resting last June 17 in Florida following his Moscow summit trip. Most Democrats and Republicans alike have said they take Nixon's word for it that he had no prior knowledge.

However, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., called for formation of a special House committee to look into the matter.

"I am not saying we should move to impeach," Moss said. "I am merely saying we should be prepared. The House has the responsibility to set up the machinery so that if there is a move to impeach, we should be ready."

He added, "Before we even suggest impeachment, we must have the most uncontroverted evidence."

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., one of the more outspoken House members, said the House should investigate whether there are grounds for impeachment.

Any impeachment of the President is initiated by the House, which must formally vote to impeach. The Senate is then required under the Constitution to conduct a trial —with the Chief Justice presiding —of the President.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd, W.Va., said a special Watergate prosecutor must be appointed at once "to avoid any suspicion of a whitewash" by the White House.

"The administration must not investigate itself," Byrd said.

Republican Sen. William Saxbe, Ohio, critical for months of Nixon's handling of Watergate, was not satisfied by last night's television address. "I am very sympathetic with his position of trying to get things done with the difficulties he has," Saxbe said. "But I don't know any more about the Watergate than I did."

Congress' initial reaction is important because how Congress and the nation accept Nixon's explanation that he was misled and poorly served by overzealous aides can determine much—whether Nixon himself will retain effectiveness or "credibility" during the remaining three years of his term.

Before Nixon spoke, Percy said Nixon could restore his "credibility" but "it depends on everything he says and does, particularly in the next few days."

Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., said the next few months "will make it clear whether or not there was prior knowledge" by Nixon of the illegal plans to disrupt the Democrats.

Following the speech, some Republicans applauded.

"Most statesmanlike," said George Bush, GOP national chairman.

"A most courageous act," said House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich., who a few hours earlier had issued a statement pointedly noting "that no Republican member of Congress was in any way involved in the Watergate affair."

"The President once again has shown that in a time of crisis his stature as a man stands tall," said GOP Senate Leader Hugh Scott, Pa. Scott earlier told a news conference that on March 22—the day after Nixon said he first learned of the Watergate coverup—he met with the President and was convinced he "did not know."

Democrats were less charitable.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. Mass., the House Democratic leader, said Nixon in his speech admitted "that there have occurred payoffs, bugging, cover-ups, denials, fraud, lying, bribes and break-ins."

Watergate Web Wraps Papers Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Pentagon Papers trial, once expected to close this week, instead has become tangled up in the Watergate web.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne Monday ordered a "broad" probe into governmental investigations of Daniel Ellsberg, referring to such an investigation that had been conducted "directly out of the White House."

The judge has already ordered the justice department to tell him everything it knows or can possibly find out about a charge that two of the convicted Watergate conspirators burglarized the offices of Ellsberg's psychiatrist while they were White House staff members.

And the judge revealed in open court that he himself had met at the Western White House with President Nixon and aide John D. Ehrlichman — who resigned Monday because of the Watergate scandal — to discuss a possible job for himself in the government, later revealed to be that of director of the FBI.

The judge said he told Ehrlichman he would not discuss any such appointment while he was sitting in judgment on Ellsberg. He said that he had met Nixon "for one minute or less, we merely exchanged greetings."

The judge made the statement in open court, with the jury out of the room, in response to published reports of a "secret meeting" and an inquiry from defense lawyers, he said, to make sure there was "no misunderstanding" of the incident.

Polls Patrolled In Mayor Vote

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (UPI) — John R. Johnson is running for mayor today, and he wants to be sure no Irish travelers vote for his opponent.

One reason for the concern is that opponents charged that 26 Irish travelers were brought to Morristown to register as voters by a friend of Buda. The registrations were voided by the Hamblen County Election Commission after it was discovered the would-be voters gave as their residences either a burned out hotel or a poolroom.

The group eventually was escorted out of the state by sheriff's deputies.

Wage-Price Control Authority Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After much fussing and fuming, Congress has given President Nixon authority to control wages and prices for another year.

Final congressional passage came late Monday afternoon, and Nixon signed it into law just two hours before the Economic Stabilization Act would have expired at midnight.

The bill extends until April 30, 1974, Nixon's discretionary power to control the economy, a power he is using now only for the relatively mild Phase III controls on the processed food, health, construction and petroleum industries, and a ceiling on meat prices.

The legislation was passed after weeks of Democrat-Republican infighting and confusion. At one time, the House Banking Committee had reported out a bill that would have rolled all prices, interest rates and rents back to Jan. 10 levels and placed them under a ceiling.

The final bill, however, contains no freezes, rollbacks or rent controls, although it does contain some significant amendments that were strongly opposed by Republicans and by some Democrats.

The major amendments in the compromise bill would:

—Make public the information that companies with more than $250 million a year in sales must give the Cost of Living Council to justify price increases of 1½ per cent or more on major products.

—Allow Nixon to allocate petroleum products in shortages.

—Change from $2.75 an hour to $3.50 an hour the definition of substandard earnings, which are exempt from wage-price controls.

—Make it clear that the authority in the bill could not be used as an excuse to impound funds appropriated by Congress.

The final vote was 267 to 115, with the pro and con votes spread among both Democrats and Republicans. Some 153 Democrats and 114 Republicans voted for the bill while 58 Democrats and 57 Republicans voted against it.

Republicans had said earlier that they would oppose the bill because of the restrictive amendments, but any substantial opposition faded after the White House passed the word around that the bill was acceptable.

Sex Traps Eyed To Kill Moths

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said it would set up traps with a sticky substance known as "sectar" in a 77-acre experimental apple orchard.

Hopefully, the scientists said, the destructive moths — in search of mates—will "home in" on the substance and become stuck.

Mass Murder Suspect Declared Harmless By Doctors Last Fall

SANTA CRUZ, (UPI) — Two days after mass murder suspect Edmund Kemper III dismembered a Berkeley high school student, two psychiatrists declared him harmless, Dist. Atty. Peter Chang reported yesterday.

Chang discussed the psychiatric report prior to Kemper's arraignment on charges of murdering his mother, her friend and six hitchhiking coeds in the past year.

Kemper, 24, a 6-foot-9, 280-pounder who killed two grandparents nine years ago, was ordered held without bail by Municipal Judge Donald May, who set May 21 for the entering of a plea.

Attorney Roland Hall of Santa Cruz, representing Kemper, asked Judge May to issue a "gag order" preventing law enforcement officers from discussing the case. May told the lawyer to prepare an order after Hall agreed to Chang's request "to be reasonable about any new developments."

The gag order was sought about two hours after Chang told a news conference that Kemper had confessed to the eight murders.

The district attorney also disclosed that Kemper was examined by two psychiatrists last Sept. 17 and declared in "excellent psychiatric health" and absolutely no danger to anyone.

Chang quoted Kemper as saying he had killed Aiko Koo, 15, a Berkeley high school student, on Sept. 14 and dismembered her body the next day, burying parts around Santa Cruz County.

"Two days later, Kemper went to Fresno, where he was examined by two psychiatrists, both of whom diagnosed him as no longer being a threat to society," Chang said.

Enrollment Is Up At Sonoma State

At a time when many colleges and universitites are beginning to have drops in their enrollment, Sonoma State College has 450 more students this spring than last year at this time, according to college officials.

College officials say they hope to keep enrollment at 5,250 for the fall semester, since school facilities were designed for 4,600 full-time students.

Harold Soeters, dean of admissions and records, said the school already has received 4,250 applications for the 2,100 spaces open in the fall.

He added, however, that "we plan to accept another 500 applications before the application period is closed."

Students may still apply in many majors,'' he said, but no applications are being accepted for junior transfer students in nursing, psychology and undeclared majors, nor any for undergraduate majors in counseling and guidance, teaching credential programs and psychology.

Among the majors still open to new applicants arebiology English, art, music, philosophy, anthropology, history, political science and sociology.

Bee Rustling Jumps Sharply

Bee rustling has doubled this year, according to the State Department of Food and Agriculture.

The department said Monday that beekeepers had 558 colonies stolen during April, bringing the yearly total to 684— more than double last year's 319. Each hive is worth about $30.

The increased bee thefts were attributed to higher honey prices and a strong demand for rental of bees for pollenization purposes.

FBI Guarding Files; Nixon Gives Report

posts they held as part of the President's innermost guard.

The Washington Post quoted close advisers to Nixon as saying the two went to Camp David Sunday to tell him they did not want to resign, but he felt they should despite their close relationship. Dean's resignation was requested —meaning he was fired outright.

Nixon said he had invested full authority for the Watergate investigation in Richardson, and he would leave up to him whether to name a "special supervising prosecutor" to assist.

Nixon said he accepted the responsibility for the Watergate affair because in any organization "the man at the top must bear the responsibility."

Nixon, brushing away tears, stopped by the White House press office, where reporters had asked literally thousands of questions about Watergate during the months, after the 24 minute address and said: "Just continue to give me hell when you think I'm wrong."

Favorable reaction poured in from Republicans, who had joined in harsh criticism of Nixon's handling of Watergate as the case wore on. But several members of Congress continued to call for a special prosecutor chosen by someone outside the administration.

Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, said: "I don't know any more about Watergate than I did. I don't know why people resigned or were asked to resign." Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., said the House should investigate whether there are grounds to impeach Nixon.

In his telecast, he imputed no wrong-doing to Kleindienst, Haldeman and Ehrlichman—but gave no such assurance about Dean.

Nixon said that during the 1972 presidential campaign his overriding concern was the goal of "bringing peace to America and the world." He said that at the time of the bugging he was getting a few days' rest after his summit trip to the Soviet Union.

He said he immediately ordered an investigation. He said he discounted press stories about Watergate because he was getting "repeated assurances" that no members of his administration were involved.

"Until March this year, I remained convinced that the denials were true and that the charges of involvement by members of the White House staff were false," Nixon said.

He said "new information" came to him that there was a "real possibility" that some of the charges were true, and on March 21 he personally assumed responsibility for a new inquiry.

"I believed the reports I was getting," Nixon said, referring to an early investigation of Watergate conducted for him by Dean, which denied further White House involvement beyond two low-level aides arrested soon after the bugging.

Nixon implied that the persons involved in Watergate did so out of zeal, a belief that what they were doing was right, and because they were reacting to "the excesses or expected excesses of the other side."

"For the fact that alleged improper actions took place within the White House or within my campaign organization, the easiest course would be for me to blame those to whom I delegated the responsibility to run the campaign. But that would be a cowardly thing to do.

"I will not place the blame on subordinates—on people whose zeal exceeded their judgment, and who may have done wrong in a cause they deeply believed to be right," Nixon said.

"In any organization, the man at the top must bear the responsibility. That responsibility, therefore, belongs here, in this office. I accept it.

"And I pledge to you tonight, from this office, that I will do everything in my power to ensure that the guilty are brought to justice, and that such abuses are purged from our political processes in the years to come, long after I have left this office."

Already Watergate has resulted in the departure of perhaps as many as 10 persons. Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell resigned as campaign manager two weeks after the bugging, claiming personal reasons.

Former deputy campaign manager Jeb Stuart Magruder resigned as assistant to the commerce secretary last week, and acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III quit. Nixon's appointments secretary, Dwight L. Chapin, and special counsel, Charles W. Colson, resigned earlier this year to take jobs in private industry.

All have been linked in one way or another with alleged espionage and sabotage during the 1972 campaign.

Richardson apparently will take over from Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen the direction of Nixon's inquiry into Watergate. Petersen had been given the assignment only last week after Kleindienst removed himself, citing the same reason he did Monday — his personal and professional relationship with persons who may be involved.

Several investigations are underway into Watergate in addition to Nixon's inquiry. The Senate established the Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities earlier this year, and it is expected to begin open hearings—with the cooperation of Nixon aides promised—about May 15.

The federal grand jury that indicted the seven men who already have pleaded or been found guilty of conspiracy has been hearing witnesses for several weeks. And the Democrats have filed a $6.4 million civil damage suit against the reelection committee and have been taking deposition from persons linked with the case.

As he neared the end of his address, Nixon appeared anxious to put Watergate behind him and move on to "work that cannot wait, work that I must do."

"It has claimed far too much of my own time and attention," he said of Watergate.

Nixon cited the visit of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, the next Soviet-American summit later this year, the seeking of a mutual reduction of forces in Europe, the maintenance of peace in Southeast Asia and the Middle East and "vital work to be done right here in America."

He mentioned "a good job for everyone who wants to work," controlling inflation and other goals. At about midnight on Christmas Eve during the bombing of North Vietnam, he went over these goals, he said.

He urged new standards, rules and procedure for future elections, saying: "In recent years the campaign excesses that have occurred on all sides have provided a sobering demonstration of how far a false doctrine can carry us. The lesson is clear. America, in its political campaigns, must not again fall into the trap of letting the end, however great that end is, justify the means."

it is apparent that there is growing ill-will among the people of Marin who are lining up behind one department or another, and there is growing ill-will among the people toward county government."

Giacomini, however, agreed there are areas of each department that could be better organized and he suggested the board spend its time discussing them.

"So, it is in a spirit of positive cooperation — to broaden all outlooks — and to try and eliminate the negativism I sense, I move that the consolidation as proposed by the administrator. . . be rejected."

His motion was seconded by Supervisor Michael Wornum but drew opposition from colleague Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who said he was "philosophically in agreement" but any discussion of the three departments should include their possible consolidation.

Giacomini suggested "we discuss problems and possible solutions toward improving cooperation and perhaps some consolidation among these departments on a lesser scope."

He drew support from Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Robert A. Roumiguiere. Arrigoni cast the lone dissenting vote.

The discussion of a limited consolidation and reorganization "on a lesser scope" was expected to run into the afternoon.

The large audience attending the board's morning session necessitated removal of the sliding wall which separates the supervisors' meeting room and that of the planning commission.

ROAD

present road is most desirable, he said.

Although the county claims that improvement of the road will result in future saving through decreased maintenance, residents "were not convinced of any savings in light of the initial cost of the improvement," he said.

The impact report also said that though noise pollution will increase, air pollution will remain about the same because of improvements in auto emission devices.

The county has viewed Lucas Valley Road as a possible major route to West Marin, Laughlin said, adding the road's current capacity of about 1,600 cars daily would be doubled by the improvement.

Turfing Due Review Tonight

The Fairfax School District board will consider the Deer Park School turfing project when it meets at 7:45 p.m. today in White Hill School.

Neighbors have loudly opposed the project, saying it will create added traffic congestion along Porteous Avenue, open the door for Little League activities on the school ballfields and spark potential development of nearby watershed lands.

The board will also discuss district goals for 1973.

TRACY LYNN DAVENPORT
Vanishes in San Rafael

6-Year-Old Girl Object Of Search

San Rafael police, having spent hundreds of hours searching for a 6-year-old San Rafael girl who vanished Friday on her way to kindergarten, today declared that all attempts to locate any trace of the child had proved fruitless.

"We have no idea whether this is a kidnap," drowning or simply a lost child," said Deputy Chief Thomas L. Stephenson, urging citizens with any knowledge of the child to contact police immediately.

Tracy Lynn Davenport left the home of her grandmother, Evelyn F. Allen of 737 Francisco Boulevard, at 11 a.m. Friday for Bahia Vista School and hasn't been seen since, Stephenson said.

He described the child as black, about four feet, six inches tall and wearing short pigtails and a black and blue Hawaiian ankle-length dress.

More than 50 policemen and explorer scouts from San Rafael Post 303 have repeatedly scoured the Francisco and Canal areas in an attempt to find the girl, but have had "absolutely no luck," he said.

About a half-dozen officers continued today to search the city for the youth, he added.

HEW Denies Occupancy Of Center

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has refused to let the Sausalito Arts Center remain at Bayside School beyond July 15, the school district board was told last night.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said a committee of the board met with HEW officials Friday to ask that the arts center be allowed to remain at the school until Oct. 12.

But the department, in a letter received yesterday, turned down the request, Lindberg said.

The board terminated the occupancy of the arts association April 16, after it was told to do so by HEW. The land on which the school sits was given the district by the U.S. government on condition it be used exclusively for educational purposes.

After a closed session, the board agreed to rehire Lindberg next year at a salary of $24,500 and Armando Renzullo, principal at Bayside School, for $21,000. Lindberg's current salary is $23,000 and Renzullo, $19,095.

The question of buying playground equipment for Bayside School was referred to the board's faciliites committee, consisting of Dr. Warren K. Hansen and Douglas B. Martin, Lindberg said.

Trustees also approved applications for $110,809 in state and federal funds for a variety of programs, including early childhood education, three disadvantaged children programs and a library materials program.

Court Date For Comedian's Son

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Andrew King, 18-year-old son of comedian Alan King, is scheduled to appear May 30 for a court hearing on charges of possession of small amounts of marijuana and hashish.

The hearing, in Nassau County District Court, will determine if there is sufficient evidence to hold him for grand jury action.

Young King was arrested May 14 after his father told police his son had taken one of the family cars without permission. The youth pleaded innocent to that charge, and Judge Francis Donovan set his trial date for the same day as the hearing.

He was a native of Salt Lake City and moved to San Francisco at an early age. He had been a resident of Marin for 13 years.

WATER

as soon as it was voted on, allows the district to provide water to users whose service has been disconnected and to public agencies such as police and fire facilities.

Felson, who introduced the ordinance, said it "will give us some time to come to grips with the water shortage problem."

Like several others in the audience, Joseph E. Bacheller III, of 409 Hilary Drive, Tiburon, said he didn't see the urgency in the situation.

Felson disagreed. With a relatively dry winter followed by a hot summer, he said, the district very easily could run out of water and be forced to institute rationing.

"I've been saying for one-and-a-half years that we're faced with a critical situation. We're sitting under a blade that's going to come down on us any minute now," he said.

Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger concurred. "We can't run out of water this year but we damn well could come close to it next year," he said.

Nathan Jones, of 1470 Vistazo West Street, Tiburon, who identified himself as a developer, said the halt to new connections would save only one-half of one day's consumption in the district, or 50 acre-feet, between now and November, when the board hopes to float a bond issue to bring in new water supplies.

(An acre-foot is the amount of water needed to cover an acre of land one foot deep. The Marin Municipal Water District now uses roughly 32,000 acre-feet per year, but can count with certainty on only 26,000 acre feet per year from its reservoirs.)

Felson, however, said new building units, if not halted by the moratorium, could consume up to 1,000 acre feet of water between now and November and much more after that in the absence of a connections freeze.

David G. Greenlee III, president of the Marin Builders Exchange, said tax revenues in the district would drop if a moratorium were enacted and "you'd be putting a lot of people out of work."

"It's an affront that the water board is becoming a planning agency. I don't think any of you up there is competent to plan my town. I don't think it's legal to plan with water," he said.

Tiburon architect Philip K. Buskirk said drawing new water from the Walker Creek in West Marin, one of several sources being investigated by the board, could take up to seven years, a figure no one disputed.

At the request of MacPhail, directors wrote into the moratorium a clause stating the district intends to seek approval of a bond issue for new water supplies as soon as possible, but no later than November 1973.

Board members then unanimously adopted the freeze.

After the vote, directors continued to a future meeting consideration of two variance requests for water service to homes and a pipeline extension agreement to furnish water to the Casa Madera project in Corte Madera.

These requests will be considered when the board adopts guidelines for processing variance applications for customers seeking to bypass the moratorium. The guidelines are expected to be enacted at the board's May 9 meeting.

The board also discussed a preliminary report by William T. O'Leary, a consultant who is studying water sources for the district. The report says the most feasible sources of water are Walker Creek, diverting part of Lagunitas Creek to Nicasio Reservoir and the North Marin Intertie, which would bring Russian River water to Marin from the North Marin Water District and the Sonoma County Water Agency.

The complete report will be finished sometime around May 20, O'Leary said.

Belvedere Planners Eye Zone Amendment As Density Control

The Belvedere Planning Commission last night discussed an amendment to a proposed zoning ordinance that would, if adopted, become the city's primary "tool for controlling density."

The proposed amendment would prohibit building on lots that are of substandard size and in "contiguous ownership."

In other words, anyone owning a standard lot and also owning an adjacent lot judged to be of substandard size, would not be permitted to build a structure on the adjacent or substandard lot.

Both lots would be considered one lot under the proposed law, and would allow only building of additions to an existing structure or construction of a single residence over the area of both lots. Landowners would be forced to obtain a variance for permission to build on the substandard lot alone.

"This would be a tool to keep density down and keep lot sizes from getting smaller," said City Mgr. William L. Cavalli.

Cavalli called this section "the meat of the new ordinance" and cautioned commissioners to consider it carefully before passing it to the city council for adoption.

"This is the one that is very important and the one the city probably will end up in court on," Cavalli said.

The ordinance would apply to lots that are under 15,000 feet in size with less than a 75-foot frontage and a 75-foot average width.

Attorney Charles Patterson appeared before the commission to protest the proposed ordinance, questioning it on the contention that it is being enforced retroactively.

Patterson said the freeze on such building currently is in effect under an emergency interim ordinance until December, at which time the city council may adopt it permanently under the new zoning regulations.

He also questioned it on a philosophical basis, saying that it is unfair to apply the rule to contiguous owners of substandard lots and not to all persons owning lots that are below size.

Although he agreed the proposal could control density, "to arbitrarily take someone's property away is inequitable," he said.

The commission agreed to study the section further when it meets at 8 p.m. tonight in the city offices.

The suggested new ordinance is a combination of a report by the planning firm Livingston and Blayney — compiled in November 1971 — and work by Cavalli and Robert A. Switzer, a summer intern hired last year by Belvedere.

Commissioners accepted a provision of the proposed ordinance that reduces height limits of structures from 42 to 36 feet in the multiple zone and from 32 to 28 feet in all other zones.

They also agreed to increase side yard setbacks in R-15 zones (covering steep slopes) from five feet to ten feet; set a five-foot minimum setback from the street line for building on Corinthian Island, and limited fences, hedges and solid walls to 42 inches in residential zones.

The commission is expected to review a provision of the proposed ordinance that limits the amount of land that can be covered by buildings when it meets tonight.

Grand Jury To Decide On Salaries

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday voted to turn the entire matter of salaries for themselves and other elected officials over to the county grand jury.

The vote came after a discussion in which the Irate Taxpayers of Sonoma County asked that the salary issue be decided by the county's voters and the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association opposed any raises for the supervisors.

The latter group also opposed changes in the civil service system so that some elected officials could receive merit increases, according to Richard McGlinchey, county public information officer.

McGlinchey said there was no indication of when the grand jury might submit its review and recommendations on the salary issue.

Teacher Named Coordinator Of Film Contest

Barbara Rosenberg, a teacher who has taught film making at Terra Linda High School for three years, has been named coordinator of the 1973 Marin County Film Competition to be held in connection with this year's county fair.

Winning films will be shown in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building each day of the fair, which runs from Aug. 30 through Sept. 3 on the county civic center fairgrounds.

Any independent producer from throughout the country with a film which runs 40 minutes or less and which was completed and released after January 1, 1971, is eligible to enter.

The competition will award five prizes ranging from $500 to $100 as well as a special award of $250 for the best film using "Man and Nature" as a theme.

Larkspur Eyes Larger Redevelopment Area

The Larkspur City Council will amend its redevelopment survey area at its meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at city hall.

Larkspur, racing against Corte Madera to attract a regional shopping center, also will direct the city's planning commission to select a redevelopment project area and formulate and adopt a preliminary redevelopment plan.

According to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, the council will be asked to enlarge the redevelopment survey area from the Bon Air site proposed for the Connolly-Rouse "Larkspur-Greenbrae Mall" to include all city territory on the San Quentin peninsula and much of the town's flatlands too.

Also on tomorrow's agenda is an "urgency ordinance" adopting a moratorium on land with a slope of 10 per cent or more bordering on Magnolia Avenue.

Judge Sentences Concord Man To Six Months

A 23-year-old Concord man was ordered yesterday to serve six months in jail for passing a forged check for $550 last Aug. 14.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court also placed Walter Sydney Boatright on probation for two years and ordered him to participate in therapy at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Palo Alto, undergo periodic drug testing and make restitution.

He cashed the check, which had been stolen in Fairfax, at the San Rafael branch of Bank of America.

Reportedly a heroin user, he had prior arrests for selling the drug, smuggling it and for burglary.

Allende Awarded A Lenin Prize

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Salvador Allende of Chile and Uruguayan trade unionist Enrique Pastorino have been awarded International Lenin Prizes for "strengthening peace among the peoples," the Tass news agency said today.

Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev also was given the award.

Bomb Shatters Lisbon Office

LISBON (UPI) — An explosion shattered fourth floor offices in the ministry of social welfare early today and damaged nearby houses and shops, police said.

No one was injured.

Wants Nixon Talk

PARIS (UPI) — Gen. Lon Non, brother of Cambodian president Lon Nol and former minister of the interior, said today he will seek a meeting with President Nixon in about three weeks.

Impact Report Of Pleasure Faire Appealed

Sonoma County officials yesterday appealed the environmental impact report on the controversial Renaissance Pleasure Faire, saying it was inadequately prepared.

According to Harvey Bragdon, Marin County Deputy zoning administrator, an appeal hearing will be held either next week or the week after by county supervisors.

Bragdon last week approved a use permit for the Pleasure Faire's permanent site north of Novato on the Sonoma County Line.

Much of the northbound traffic to the site on Pleasure Faire weekends will have to travel into Sonoma County, turn around at Petaluma and return to Marin to get to the site.

Hilliard Takes Case To Tribunal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Imprisoned Black Panther leader David Hilliard has asked the California Supreme Court to overturn his conviction in a 1968 shoot-out with Oakland police.

Hilliard argued Monday that the District Court of Appeal had affirmed his conviction on two counts of assault with a deadly weapon despite the lack of evidence connecting him to the crime.

Two Canoes Stolen

Two canoes, one aluminium, the other bright orange fiberglass, were stolen from Canoe Trips West Inc., of 2170 Redwood Highway, Larkspur, between 5:30 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. yesterday, reported Larkspur police. The canoes were valued at $300 each.

Sympathetic Partner Helps After A Disastrous Round

"How could I tell what was going on?" West asked at the end of today's hand.

Everybody was sympathetic. "Nobody thinks that you're losing on purpose," his partner assured him. "It just happens to look that way." A sympathetic partner is a great asset.

WISE ACTION

Wise opened the deuce of clubs and South won with the king. South immediately returned a club and West played low. He expected to take the third round of clubs, at which time his partner would be able to make a discard and thus give him some information.

After winning the second club trick in dummy, South ran five diamonds and two top spades. He then cheerfully conceded the rest.

SHOULD HAVE KNOWN

West should have hopped up with the ace of clubs at the second trick and should have led a low heart. The defenders would then take their club and four hearts to defeat the game contract.

It was easy to see this at the end of the hand, but how could West know at the second trick what was going on?

The TIP-OFF

The tip-off was that South hadn't tackled dummy's long diamond suit. In this situation, South would surely lead diamonds at once if an opponent held the ace of diamonds. His failure to lead diamonds meant that he held the ace himself, and that the suit was ready to run at a moment's notice.

It should have been clear that West had to take five defensive tricks without delay. The only reasonable chance was to take the ace of clubs and switch to a low heart.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q J 6 2
♥- A 10 9 8
D-10 8 7
C- 9 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Your hand is worth only one response, and your first duty is to raise partner's major suit rather than show a suit of your own.

Behr To Speak To GOP Teen-Agers

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will speak on "The Teen-Age Role in the Republican Party" at a meeting of the Marin County Teen-Age Republicans at the Marin Civic Center supervisor's chamber at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Spokesman Alexis McKenzie said the group also will discuss Governor Ronald Reagan's tax initiative proposal and a field trip to Sacramento. The meeting is open to all Marin teens interested in the Republican Party.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

The summing up! Our birthday bookkeepers told us to correct the ages on today's notables. So who becomes older? younger?

1. Glenn Ford could be 48 or 57 today. He'll give you a happy grin whichever you choose because this "Cowboy" and "Sheepman" is still "The Fastest Gun Alive" in any man's western. Born in Quebec, Canada, he learned horseback riding and rope tricks from Will Rogers, as his stablehand in the early days. He washed windows and sold newspapers before getting his chance to act in his first film. Now 157 movies later, half of them westerns, he says, "Sam Cade is really me!"

2. Scott Carpenter, 48 or 57 today, got his father's middle name and liked it so much that he prefers it to his own first name, Malcolm. Commissioned an ensign in 1949, he served as a fighter pilot in Korea in 1951, then volunteered for the space program. On May 24, 1962, he became the second American to orbit the earth in a space capsule aboard Aurora 7, a trip that took four hours, 56 minutes.

3. Kate Smith reaches 64 or 77 today. Born in Greenville, Va., she was singing in amateur shows at the age of 11 and made her stage debut in a 1926 musical comedy, "Honeymoon Lane." After CBS put her on its network in 1931, she became one of radio's biggest stars, nationally known for her rendition of the song, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain."

4. Mark Clark, 64 or 77 today, rose from a first lieutenant in World War I to commander in chief of United States Army Ground Forces in Europe in World War II. He made a secret mission to North Africa, preparing the way for its invasion, then commanded the Fifth Army in its recapturing of Italy and Rome. He was United Nations supreme commander in Korea, retiring in 1953.

By NELS JOHNSON

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, in a fiery meeting laced with angry outbursts from a small but vocal audience, last night abolished its project area committee, saying the group had mismanaged its affairs, failed to fulfill its goals and was inoperable due to internal dissension.

The action came amid a revelation that a preliminary federal audit had ruled as "ineligible expenses" a $1,905.91 bill for a three-day training retreat attended by eight committee representatives.

The board, backing recommendations by its executive director, Wallace K. Shepherd, and a board subcommittee, voted 4-1-1 to "dismantle" the 11-member area committee, a Marin City group formed last September to provide advice on redevelopment matters. Board member Richard S. Harding opposed the move and Reuben Kaehler abstained.

An audience of about a dozen residents —many of them area committee members — loudly protested the action, and instead urged the ouster of Shepherd.

Although the board majority appeared most concerned with what they agreed was a failure of the area committee to fulfill its goals, much of their attention focused on the findings of a Department of Housing and Urban Development audit of committee expenses.

The two-page document declared ineligible for funding expenses of $1,905.91, including a $1,500 fee for "pretraining consultations and interviews" with committee members by a Berkeley firm and a $405.91 fee for "meals and meeting rooms." The tab was incurred by six committee members and two committee staff at a committee training session held in March at the El Rancho Tropicana in Santa Rosa.

Services performed by Forbes and Smith Associates of Berkeley for the committee in Santa Rosa were "not in accordance with the type of service or expense the project area committee was authorized to incur" under the provisions of its contract with the agency, according to the audit.

The committee contract provides that its activities relate to contact with local residents, distributing information on agency activities, redevelopment testimony at public hearings and written analysis of redevelopment proposals. But the consulting services amounted to "personal interviews and consultations among six project area committee members," the audit said.

The audit recommended that the money be refunded to the agency project fund, that consulting contracts for the committee require previous approval from the agency, and that the committee be "considered for termination in relation to the closeout status" of the Marin City redevelopment project.

Shepherd, who described the unsigned report as an unofficial and "informal transmittal" of a HUD auditor following a three-week auditing of redevelopment agency accounts, predicted that an "official" audit would be sent to the agency in about three weeks and declared his hope that HUD management would revise the preliminary statement.

Shepherd, in a "reply to audit findings," said that although the funds were "improperly spent" only $405.91 of the training costs should be disallowed since the session "would have been a great benefit" if it had been properly administered and attended. The committee had submitted an outline of the training program to the agency but had apparently not followed that outline, he added.

Shepherd said he had issued the committee a 10-day notification of the end of its contract in accordance with the audit report, an action ratified by the agency last night.

Should HUD agree with the report of its auditor, the money will be taken out of the grant given the agency by the government, he said, adding that the $1,905.91 had already been paid. The fee, he said, was in addition to committee funding by the agency of about $1,100 monthly since September.

Committee members argued that agency staff had approved the training program and urged the audit be disregarded since it was an unsigned and preliminary document.

Board Chairman George H. Gnoss Jr. agreed that the auditor's report "doesn't have a great deal of bearing on what we do tonight," saying he was concerned that the committee had failed to provide analysis of redevelopment proposals, had demonstrated an inability "to get together to solve problems" and was not "performing the job as presently constituted."

Agency member James O. Quiett said the committee had been torn by "general dissension" and wasn't "functioning in proportion to the funding." Quiett and Collie B. Gaines, were appointed several weeks ago to explore committee inactivity and last night recommended the committee be abolished.

Other board concerns included lack of communication between the area committee and agency members, a lack of regular meetings and the appointment by the committee of replacements to fill vacancies.

The original agreement provided that the agency board appoint area committeemen from Marin City organizations and that an election be held within a year to choose permanent members for the committee.

Committeeman Nesbit Crutchfield, however, declared it would be "ludicrous" and expensive to hold elections "every time a member resigned" before the annual election. The original agreement, he said, includes no provision for replacement of committee members who resign.

The committee appointed Crutchfield and two others to fill vacancies in the wake of recent resignations.

Melvin Atkins, chairman of the Marin City Council, which represents tenants of public housing there, and a project area committeeman, read a committee statement urging the ouster of Shepherd and claimed Shepherd had failed to communicate with the committee or attend its meetings. "Wallace K. Shepherd, having time and time again demonstrated his inability and unwillingness to work with the citizens of Marin City, (should) be dismissed immediately as executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority. Crutchfield, who told the Housing board he was backed by more than 200 Marin City residents, said then that Shepherd had been derelict in his duties, permitted deterioration of public housing units, subsidized tenants not meeting statutory requirements and scheduled board meetings outside Marin City.)

The Redevelopment Agency voted to abolish the project area committee after a move by Harding to take no action failed for lack of a second.

Massed Choirs Will Present Novato Concert

The Novato High Choraliers and Music Theater Workshop and choirs of three elementary schools will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Novato High School gymnasium.

The elementary school choirs, 180 voices, from Pacheco, Pleasant Valley and Rancho schools, formed in February, will be giving their first public performance.

The massed choirs will sing a tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a special arrangement of "We Shall Overcome," by Roy Ringwald, arranger for Fred Waring.

The performance will be directed by John H. Enders, district music instructor, with Karen Woomer, contralto; Deborah Layne, soprano; and Paul DeWitt, bass, as soloists.

Call Made To Impeach Nixon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The three-state Central Area Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Monday urged Congress to begin impeachment proceedings against President Nixon.

The conference said the President should be impeached because of his budget cuts and impoundment of education funds and the "criminal break-in and bugging of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate apartments."

The conference represents 19 branches of the NAACP in California's Central Valley and the states of Nevada and Utah.

Magee Lawyer Fined, Jailed For Contempt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert Carrow of Novato, court-appointed defense attorney for Ruchel Magee, was sentenced to 10 days in jail today and fined $1,000 for contempt of court.

Carrow had been cited on two counts of contempt during Magee's trial. The proceedings were declared a mistrial when the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

One count involved a remark Feb. 23 during cross examination of a witness. Carrow said, "Your honor, I submit to you that the trial is becoming a joke."

The second count involved two instances March 23 during closing arguments when Carrow was held to have violated court rules by informing the jury of the penalty for kidnaping for extortion, life in prison without possibility of parole.

Alvin Goldstein, representing Carrow, told Superior Judge Morton R. Colvin that Carrow's statements resulted from the passion of the proceedings, and an apology should suffice.

Colvin said an apology might suffice if he simply had attacked the court, "but he disrupted the orderly administration of justice."

Carrow, the former mayor of Novato, was sentenced to five days in jail and a $500 fine on each count. The sentences were made consecutive.

Goldstein said he would appeal the decision by seeking a writ of habeas corpus.

On Monday Carrow asked that aggravated kidnap charges against Magee, the San Quentin lifer indicted because of the 1970 Marin County courthouse gun battle, be dismissed. Carrow said retrial on the kidnap charges would constitute double jeopardy.

The jury in Magee's first trial voted 12-0 for acquittal on aggravated kidnaping but 11-1 for conviction of simple kidnaping. A mistrial was declared when the jury was unable to agree.

State Attorney General Evelle Younger previously announced the state would drop murder charges against Magee, 34, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis case, because of a vote 11-1 for acquittal by the jury.

Petaluma Ready For Vote On Controls

It has been just over a year since the City of Petaluma adopted a growth-control plan limiting new residential building permits to 500 yer year. On June 12, Petaluma citizens will get a chance to vote on whether they wish to continue the restrictions.

The election issue is somewhat complicated by a construction industry suit in federal court challenging the constitutionality of the procedure. Nevertheless, it will be watched in a lot of places besides Petaluma.

And If Petalumans prove at the polls that they endorse the idea, we may expect other cities to try the same system.

PETALUMA WAS experiencing much the same problem with rapid growth that came earlier to Novato, San Rafael, and unincorporated Marin areas when the city council last spring adopted the growth-control ordinance.

It set up a citizen committee to evaluate all building requests and allot permits on the basis of those most desirable or creating least problems. New construction permits were split evenly between the rapidly growing east side and the slower-growing west side of the city.

Unavoidably, there were complaints that some projects were allowed which should not have been, and vice versa. On the whole, however, the committee apparently was both conscientious and fair.

HOWEVER, the biggest protest has come from outside Petaluma — from residents who will have no vote in the June 12 referendum.

Because of the strict controls in Petaluma, builders naturally turned to nearby areas, especially Cotati and Rohnert Park, in seeking to fill the demand for new homes and apartments.

The growth pressures that were creating problems in Petaluma thus were passed on to its neighbors.

This was brought out pointedly last week in a discussion at the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors' meeting on density to be allowed in the vicinity of Sonoma State College.

Officialys of the college and of Rohnert Park lined up together to urge extremely low-density zoning in the unincorporated areas surrounding the college. They wanted it limited to one home for every 10 acres.

Such zoning would, it seems inevitable, just transfer the pressures to Rohnert Park itself, to Santa Rosa — and back to Petaluma.

THE APPROACH in Petaluma has not been to deny growth by zoning, but to control it by limiting the number of permits issued each year. The thought behind this is that the city can cope with growth if that growth is held to a reasonable rate.

It seems to us that this makes more sense than such things as 10-acre zoning (or 60-acre zoning, as has been adopted for much of rural Marin). It makes sense because it recognizes the need both for housing and for the public facilities which should accompany new housing. It may delay an owner's development of his land, but it does not forbid it forever. It does not constitute "inverse condemnation."

And, while decisions of the permit board necessarily are somewhat arbitrary, they appear less arbitrary than the "zoning to extinction" device.

The Red-eyed Chirper

Do you have a red-eyed chirper in your garden? Many Marinites do. That's a rough translation of the Latin name for the rufous-sided towhee. It is red-eyed, is a chirper, and is rufous-sided. But the word "towhee" is imitative of the cry of a related species.

Higher Education Budget Figures Boggle The Mind

By EARL G. WATERS

The Legislature is reviewing, as it does each year, the budgets for higher education. The state's program is divided among the university and the state and community colleges. The figures involved boggle the mind.

The dilemma of the legislators is putting it all together. They never have before them full information as to all sources of finances for the programs. Adding to their confusion is the tendency of those in charge to keep shifting their operational standards. This makes comparisons between institutions, and from year to year, impossible.

EFFORTS TO COMPEL coordination among the three programs have failed. It costs more for state college education than for community colleges, and more than either for the university. For this reason the Legislature has attempted to direct undergraduates to the state and community colleges.

But, faced with startling predictions of enrollment declines, the university has engaged in an all-out battle for enrollment regardless of student needs or abilities.

It has acted to increase enrollments bv extensive recruitment, reduction of grade average requirements for admission, exceeding special admission limits, waiving tuition rather than lending it, and increasing student aid from funds not controlled by the Legislature.

THE EXTENT to which the university can flout the Legislature by resorting to other funds can be seen by the size of its endowments. In 1968 it was ranked as the eighth most heavily endowed university in the nation, excelled only by such schools as Harvard, Yale and Princeton. By 1971 these funds had grown to over $328 million. In contrast private schools like USC, Pomona, Redlands and Santa Clara were far below the $100 million mark.

Many of these endowments, like the one used to provide emoluments for UC President Charles J. Hitch above those allowed by state law, are "unrestricted" and can be used by the regents as they see fit.

For example, to enforce the restoration of non-resident tuition fees the Legislature cut UC's budget by $1 million. The regents merely replaced the funds with endowment earnings.

THE AMOUNTS of general fund money allocated for the 19-campus state college system and the nine-campus university are about equal, each being around $400 million. But the colleges have another $200 million and UC an additional $350 million from other sources. This does not include federal money for special projects.

The community colleges are budgeted for $215 million but they will also get more than $300 million from local property taxes. Altogether the 1973-74 expenditures for the programs will exceed $2 billion, capital outlay for buildings not included.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post's report indicates a seeming disregard by the university of the need to cut costs.

To Guard Garbage Can, Just Feed Raccoons

For as long as I've lived in Marin and knew of the raccoons living among us, I've also read of people that go to all kinds of trouble to secure their garbage cans.

I feed raccoons nightly and maybe three times nightly and have never had my garbage can disturbed. I shudder to think of them getting into some of the things that are thrown into garbage cans. This type of feeding certainly must have killed more than one animal.

They'll eat numerous things — dog chow, cat chow, crackers, cookies, bread, marshmallows, etc. For five cents a night, isn't it worth it to watch these intelligent, beautiful animals and to know that this night they didn't go hungry? It isn't their fault that we've taken all their land from them and they're forced to live among us.

Bay Area Needs 'Up With People'

Prefers Motorcycles To More Residences

I wish to reply to a letter written by Louise Gulick and published in the Independent Journal on April 19. Mrs. Gulick states Marin County has no obligation to subsidize motorcycling in the area. However she says she is in accord with activities such as bicycling, hiking, horseback riding, etc. She forgets that areas and trails are set aside for these activities with taxpayer funds.

The motorcyclists ask for a parcel of land which they will maintain and police themselves. It can be far away from living areas so as not to disturb. They ask nothing of taxpayer money. They wish land which has no other use at present!. . .

Incidentally, the motorcycles were removed from China Camp and can no longer ride there. But wait until the bulldozers start making their noise, leveling hillsides and knocking down trees.

Motorcycling is a good healthy outlet for young and old alike. Many families enjoy this sport together. Building more homes will create an influx of new people, many of them young and interested in motorcycles. Where will they go?

I for one would rather look up at the hills, scarred or not instead of rooftop upon rooftop of crowded housing.

School Coordinator Objects To Reporting

The I-J's coverage of the April 23 meeting of the Tam High School District's board of education was extremely distressing to me. It is beyond my comprehension how your article could be entitled, "Tam High Open Campus Plea Heard" and proceed to devote the first two-thirds of the column to an item which amounts to "should the kids be allowed to spend their time freely?" The board debated this question for all of 15 minutes. But the main agenda item of the evening was concerned with the survival of an entire school and took an hour and a half of the meeting. You neglected to print one word of the firm support for Meewah Mountain that was voiced by the board, chose to write about the only lukewarm response out of a repeatedly positive board reaction, and relegated the entire subject to the status of some secondary item that the board also listened to. Perhaps your columnist didn't notice that about 40 of the 50 or 60 community members at the meeting left after the Meewah Mountain presentation before the "open campus plea" was heard.

How can I or anyone else expect to really learn about the news from such biased reporting?

Bridge Barrier Plan Could Set Up Real Howls

According to the I-J of April 14, the directors of the Golden Gate Bridge have now decided to do something about a suicide barrier on the bridge, after 477 jumpers have gone over the rail.

This barrier is to consist of a series of pencil steel rods, extending up eight feet to a steel rail support.

The estimated cost, $750,000, with another $67,000 for design and wind-tunnel testing. Knowing how these characters figure, I would say this new idea will go into millions of dollars.

Furthermore, has this group given any thought to the harmonics of this idea? If not they better, because when the prevailing west winds start blowing through this giant harp it will sound like hundreds of banshees howling around the bridge.

On Nov. 2, 1964, I wrote Mr. T. D. Hardcastle, who was then one of Marin County's bridge directors, my idea of a suicide barrier, which consisted of a series of tee-iron bars extending up four feet from the top of the present railing, with the top foot bent inboard 30 degrees. These bars to support four strands of barbed wire, 12 inches apart, above the present railing.

This design would not need any wind-tunnel testing or high priced design engineers, but could be installed by any fencing contractor under $75,000.

Tom Hardcastle submitted my sketch to bridge engineer Arthur Jenkins on April 6, 1964, where it was dropped.

This rod idea now on the fire would be a simple matter for a person bent on suicide to squeeze through those rods and over.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Elusive Chance For World Peace Must Be Seized Now

WASHINGTON — When drafting the momentous speech he made to the Associated Press editors last week, Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security affairs, took a long look at the road ahead. Within the next few years the principals with whom he has worked in formulating a policy of peace — Chou En-lai, Willy Brandt, Leonid Brezhnev — will have passed from the scene.

In Kissinger's thinking the coming three to four years will present the golden opportunity to knit together what has been started. It is an opportunity that may never occur again if this chance for peace slips away by default.

So to the editors in New York he proposed a new and comprehensive approach to Europe and Japan. "We deal with each other regionally and even competitively in economic matter, on an integrated basis in defense, and as nation-states in diplomacy," he said. He was preparing the way for the President's visit to Europe in the fall.

WITHOUT EXTENSIVE progress toward economic cooperation, that trip will be useless or even worse than useless. The text of the speech was given to the foreign offices of Europe shortly before its delivery. Kissinger was saying: Here is the broad outline of what could be a new chapter of understanding and common endeavor.

The hope is that within the next week or 10 days response will come from across the Atlantic and the Pacific, and the long and arduous process of working out economic ties can begin. The shadow cast over this hope even as he was speaking was the Watergate scandal and its impact at home and abroad.

In the question period following his prepared address, about a third of the questions dealt with Watergate. Another third concerned Vietnam and the rest were miscellaneous. Kissinger scarcely needed this indicator of where editorial interest lay, since it is reflected on the front pages of every newspaper.

Responding to the Watergate questions, he said what he has been expressing in private for some time. If we now indulge in an orgy of recrimination we shall certainly lose the chance to help lead the way to a generation of peace. President Nixon will be in office for another three and a half years and a President crippled or destroyed will serve in dreary futility through a prolonged feud with Congreee and the public.

THE VENGEANCE-IS-MINE theme is understandable. The arrogance of the White House has been intolerable, notably on the side of the German Mafia — Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Company. This arrogance has prompted the long unhappy weeks of denial and evasion.

It added up in many instances to rank deceit.

So now, Kissinger is saying, get the bloodletting over and let's get down to what this nation must do in the months ahead. Having known the principals at the top level, he has compassion for their personal tragedies. As far as Watergate is concerned, the President's security adviser knew nothing of the involvement of the men around the President until the main outlines of the story began to break.

EVERYTHING TURNS on continuing confidence in the United States. If Brezhnev comes here in midsummer, a foremost objective will be to achieve a breakthrough in the stalled negotiation in the second round of the SALT talks. Without intervention at the top, the talks in Geneva can go on, as did the session just ended, with wearying repetition of old and impossible positions from both sides of the conference table.

As for China, the elderly men in power look for stability and continuity from the United States. They want to see the relationship begun so fortuitously by the President carried on into an indefinite future.

James Reston in the New York Times compared the Kissinger speech to the address given by Sec. of State George C. Marshall at Harvard when he proposed the plan for rehabilitating Europe that was to bear his name. This may be overstating the case, but it seems to one observer better to overstate it rather than treat a masterful presentation merely in turns of the current conflict here at home.

The Marshall Plan, when the United States proceeded to distribute 2.5 per cent of our gross national income to restore war-wounded Europe, was America's finest hour. To achieve what Kissinger has proposed — hardly less than economic union with our trading partners — will, as he knows, be infinitely more difficult. So much has happened to America's strength in the world since that finest hour.

Forgotten Kingdom Of Sikkim Poses Problem For India

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The last time a major news reference service found reason to mention the chogyal (king) of Sikkim was in May, 1969 when he was included in a lengthy list of dignitaries attending the funeral of the president of India. So far as the chogyal was concerned it was not a headline of much eyecatching value.

New Yorkers perhaps heard more of him than most others since his queen is the American-born former Hope Cooke of New York where society gives more knee-bending deference to visiting royalty than often is bestowed upon them by their own citizens.

WHAT GIVES SIKKIM its importance is its location, nestled in the Himalaya mountains with Nepal and Bhutan on either side and with Tibet to the north and India to the south. It is an Indian protectorate and an important buffer against possible invasion from the north.

It attained special prominence in 1962 when China accused India of attacking Chinese positions from across the Sikkim boundary and then proceeded to humiliate India in a brief border war that same year.

The dispute flared again briefly in 1965, reaching the farcical stage when China accused India of "kidnaping" 800 sheep, 59 yaks and four men presumably assigned to look after them.

THE FOREGOING is offered as a quick thumbnail backgrounding last week's disclosure that Indian troops had occupied Gangtok, Sikkim's capital, at the request of the ruler.

Amid the highest mountains on earth, Sikkim provides some of the world's most awesomely beautiful scenery. Its climate ranges from Alpine cold to temperate to tropical. The wooded slopes of the outer ranges are covered with rhododendron and towering magnolias.

Politically, its 200,000 people in some 2,700 square miles offer a teacup-sized brew made up of the problems and contradictions common to the underdeveloped world with a few others thrown in.

AS A PROTECTORATE is a world in which India is a champion of independence for all, Sikkim is an embarrassment to the Indian government which nonetheless has shown no inclination to give it up.

Sikkim's 20-year-old treaty with India recognizes Sikkim as self-governing and autonomous but gives India control over communications, defense and foreign relations. The present king, Alden Thondup Namgyal, took over as a champion of representative government. Under his rule, literacy has increased from 25 per cent to nearly 50 per cent, government revenues have doubled, road mileage tripled.

But his is a divided kingdom. The native Lepchas make up but one fourth of the population. Nepalese make up the remainder and they are the ones now demanding reforms possibly including the King's abdication.

Would Candidates Seek Office If They Attended Meetings?

Candidates in the June 12 Petaluma city election are politicking vigorously, but they are curiously absent from public meetings.

Usually attendance at meetings of the city council, planning commission and school board rises rapidly after candidacy filing has closed. Presumably after a person has filed for an office, he or she feels obligated to start attending meetings to find out what's going on.

This year candidates are few and far between at the meetings, with the exception of incumbents and a few who have been following a particular board for months.

One wonders how many of the candidates would still aspire to hold the public office if they attended the meetings. Both the Petaluma City Council and board of education have had constituents shouting at them lately.

Some candidates haven't been to a meeting since their unsuccessful attempts two years ago. If they do bother to attend, they'll find times have changed.

SPRING SEEMS to have brought an avalanche of petition passing in southern Sonoma. In the past few weeks residents of Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Cotati have been besieged by friends and neighbors circulating petitions for or against some public issue.

In Petaluma, residents of the Sunnyslope area spent weeks passing petitions in opposition to the subdivision planned by Arthur Condiotti. Despite the barrage of signatures, the subdivision was approved by the city council and disgruntled citizens are now talking about a possible lawsuit to halt the project.

Petalumans were also asked to sign petitions both for and against the K-Mart store proposed for Lakeville Highway. Although the Kresgo Co. amassed a great list of names by paying circulators, they also failed to win over the council.

School schedules have also produced petitions as parents have been furiously badgering their neighbors to sign documents in favor of year-around school. The next knock on the door is likely to be another neighbor with yet another petition in opposition. Some signed both to preserve friendships.

In Rohnert Park, the growth control question has caused residents to fire up copying machines to whip out petitions urging the city council to reverse its stand and establish a strict growth control policy.

Cotati residents may also join the procession soon as oldtimers seek signatures to oust the three younger members of the city council.

Nearly 600 Register As Capitol Lobbyists

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Nearly 600 persons, representing a range of interests from the giant ITT Corp. to a 92-year-old, self-proclaimed Capitol muckraker, registered as lobbyists this year, it was reported today.

In a directory of legislative advocates and organizations published by the legislature, 576 persons were listed as lobbyists. The total is 115 more than last year and amounts to almost six lobbyists for every state lawmaker.

Most of the lobbyists represent only one or two groups, but some, such as Robert J. Beckus of Sacramento, promote the interests of up to 16 organizations.

Among the names is that of Robert J. Simpson, who advocates simply the causes of Robert J. Simpson, which usually means denouncing government officials as "traitors" or worse.

The 92-year-old man has been a Capitol fixture for years, and by his count, has been arrested more than 190 times for walking his pushcart through the building with protest signs. He registered as a lobbyist for the first time this year but was still being arrested.

Chemists Will Convene At Sonoma State

Representatives of some 20 bay area colleges are expected to participate Saturday in the 1973 meeting of the American Chemical Society student affiliate chapters at Sonoma State College.

Results of independent research projects will be presented by students, and Dr. Alan Nixon, national president of the American Chemical Society, will discuss, "Is there a job in your future?"

May Day

The glorious rebirth of nature at springtime inspires one universal activity: flower picking. In medieval Europe, in festivities that date back to Roman times, even lords and ladies arose with the sun on May 1st to "go a-Maying," and gather flowers and branches. Washing the face in May-day morning dew was thought to beautify the skin. The festivities would continue all day with singing and dancing around a decorated pole, the Maypole.

DO YOU KNOW — What importance does May Day have for international labor?

Detroit Provides The Answer; Emission Control For People

WASHINGTON — Detroit has had so much trouble meeting the Environmental Protection Agency's emission standards that it was given one year's grace, until 1976, to produce an engine which will not pollute the air. Even with the extra 12 months, the automobile companies insist they will not be able to meet the EPA deadline.

The auto manufacturers are so desperate that they are now submitting alternate proposals to Washington which they believe will take care of the air pollution hazard.

One promising plan I heard about was brought to EPA the other day by Huxley Barnstable, an automotive engineer who has been working on the emission problem for years.

HE TOLD ME, "It is absolutely impossible for Detroit to develop an engine which will meet EPA requirements by 1976."

"Then you're throwing in the towel?" I asked.

"Absolutely not. It's true that we can't build an engine that will cut down on carbon monoxide, but we believe we have developed a device which, when attached to a human being, will make it impossible for him to breathe the poisons we emit."

"That's fantastic!" I said.

"For years the automobile companies have devoted all their research to cutting down on pollution created by their engines. Only recently did we realize it was easier to invent a gadget to put on a person."

"WHAT IS IT?" I asked excitedly.

I tore the paper off. "Why, it's a gauze bandage with strings on it!"

"That's correct," Barnstable said. "You tie it over your nose and mouth when you go outside and it will cut the dirty air you breathe by 50 per cent."

"It's so simple," I said. "How did you scientists ever think of it?"

"It was really an accident," Barnstable replied. "One of our researchers was going through an old National Geographic and saw a photo taken of a group of people during a typhoid epidemic in Japan. They were all wearing gauze bandages over their mouths. It suddenly dawned on him that the bandage was the answer to air pollution in the United States."

"Leave it to the Japanese," I said.

"THE BEAUTY of it is that these bandages will cost the consumer only $1 while an anti-pollution device on a car would cost $300. We've not only solved the emissions problem in the United States but we've done it at a $299 saving to the car buyer."

"And they said Detroit has been asleep all these years!"

"What we have to do now is persuade the Environmental Protection Agency to make it a law that everyone in this country must wear a guaze bandage by 1976," Barnstable said. "Anyone who goes outdoors without his bandage would be subject to a fine or imprisonment, or both."

"It puts the onus on the public where it belongs," I agreed.

"OUR CONTRIBUTION to the Clean Air Act would be that you wouldn't be able to start your car until your bandage was tied over your mouth."

"I don't see how EPA could turn down your proposal," I said. "If this doesn't prove that the auto companies have gone the extra mile, then I don't know what will."

THE RIVER KEEPS ON RISING

This restaurant in St. Mary's, Mo., is closed because of flooding from the rampaging Mississippi River but the hotel upstairs is providing a dry haven for flood victims until the waters recede. Tens of thousands of persons have been driven from their homes by flood waters and damage already is estimated at more than $500 million in seven Mississippi Valley states.

Member Of Angel's To Vacaville

A 25-year-old Hell's Angel, whose attempts to rob eight occupants of a Lucas Valley home ended in his own hospitalization, was sent yesterday to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville for 90 days of observation.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court decided he wanted a recommendation from the state Department of Corrections before sentencing Michael Lyn Tankersley of Santa Rosa on a charge of attempted robbery.

He was arrested Aug. 2 after an inept robbery attempt concluded with one of the victims grabbing Tankersley's gun and hitting him with it, according to sheriff's deputies.

They said Tankersley went to the house at 561 Idylberry Drive and demanded money at gunpoint, but, instead of cash, received a thrashing before deputies arrived. He was treated for scalp cuts at a local hospital, then jailed.

Salary Talks

The Petaluma Board of Education will hold a special closed session at 7 p.m. today to discuss teacher salary negotiations with Supt. Lesly H. Meyer.

Mill Valley Schools Seeking Fund Grants

Applications for state and federal grants totaling $85,732 were approved last night by trustees of the Mill Valley School District, according to Patsy White, secretary to Supt. James A. Collins.

Approved were requests for $24,115 for an early childhood education program at Tamalpais Valley School; $32,487 for a reading specialist program; $26,730 for a grant to disadvantaged schools, where a certain percentage of the children have parents with low incomes and $2,400 for library materials.

Mrs. White said the board also set machinery into motion for selecting principals for Marin Terrace and Alto-Edna Maguire schools.

A screening committee will sift 65 applications for the posts, she said. The committee will consist of three teachers from each of the two schools, two other teachers to be chosen by the Mill Valley Teachers Association, two principals at other schools to be chosen by Collins, the president of the Mill Valley Parent-Teacher Association Council, plus the P-TA presidents of the two schools, Trustee Thomas D. Spencer and Peter G. Palches, who will become superintendnet July 1.

A meeting with parents and the Marin Terrace staff probably will be held next week, the board was told last night.

Mrs. White said the board was also presented a preliminary budget of $4,534,000, an increase over this year's $4,347,000 spending program, but took no action.

Of the total payroll, employees residing in Marin accounted for $2,743,730, or 34.2 per cent. Sonoma County was second, with employee income of $2,240,407, followed by San Francisco County with $1,588,317. District employees residing in other Golden Gate Corridor counties earned $1,458,166.

Ross School Board Cuts $22,266 From Budget

A frugal Ross School District Board last night thinned down a proposed 1973-74 maintenance and capital outlay budget by $22,266 after inspecting Ross School at a workshop meeting.

Supt. Thomas A. Anderson said trustees started whittling the proposed $41,429 section of the preliminary 1973-74 budget, after considering a total of $36,524 proposed for maintenance and replacement of fixtures and fittings at the 32-year-old school.

"High priority" items totaling $20,770 was cut to $14,258, and "low" and "very low" priority items of $11,865 and $3,889 deleted.

The board decided it would spend money on painting some classrooms, repairing and rewiring and a new wall for the multipurpose room, replacing the old venetian blinds in two or three classrooms, new tile and carpet for two classrooms.

The board decided to get new tables and chairs for three classrooms, reported Anderson (the old 1941-era desks are sold locally as antiques as soon as they are replaced.)

Other approved expenditures included three teachers' desks — from the state surplus supply at $25 each.

Trustees agreed to spend $630 on resurfacing the blacktop sidewalk in front of Ross School, after hearing the Town of Ross had refused to pay, but said the school patio's surface would only be patched and sealed instead of resurfaced.

Anderson was instructed to investigate prices and alternatives for lockers for fourth, fifth and sixth graders, and to get a list of new audio visual equipment required.

The board left in the budget 15 new music stands, a geiger counter (for civil defense and for science classes) a collator for the office and parent teacher association use, filing cabinets, $650 rental purchase on a mathematic problem machine, and $1,800 on airconditioning for one classroom.

Shower Singing Competition Set

One of the organizers, Thomas Egan, said the competition is intended mainly "for the many quiet people who make like Caruso or Elvis Presley once water hits them between the shoulder blades."

Judges will listen for volume, lyric expression, range, rhythm and how well the sound of the voice blends with the sound of running water.

Ryan said contestants must agree not to hold Rutland or the local chapter of the Society for the Preservation of Barber Shop Quartet singing liable for injury or for "laryngitis and athletes's foot."

State's Junior Miss Heads For Alabama

LORI GIELEGHEM of Novato, California Junior Miss, packs luggage for her trip to Mobile, Ala., where she will compete with 49 other girls throughout the United States for the national title. A special guest on the trip with her will be a toy rabbit that she has had since she was in the first grade. Many of her dresses were made by her sister, Lois.

The Novato Jaycees sponsored the local Junior Miss Pageant, and Lori said only one member of the Jaycees from Novato came to the state pageant held in Santa Rosa, while there were as many as 15 Jaycees from Simi Valley and 12 from as far away as Huntington Beach to support their candidates.

Lori and the North Dakota Junior Miss will be living with a family in Mobile for the two weeks they are there. Her prizes are a $1,000 scholarship, a pocket 30 Instamatic camera and the trip to Mobile. However, she has had to furnish her own wardrobe and much of that has been made by her sister, Lois.

On May 11, the final night of the national contest Ed McMahon will be commentator for CBS. The show will be on KPIX at 8 p.m.

Lori will wear a dress of white organdie over a crepe back satin slip, which her sister made.

Lori explained that this is not a beauty contest. The girls are judged on their poise, physical fitness, scholastic achievement and creative performing arts.

"I was a long shot winner," Lori said, explaining that she didn't place first in any single competition but was overall winner.

The Novato girl will be singing "Second Hand Rose" as her talent performance, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Gieleghem will be there to see her perform.

Black Poet Says 'Old Age' Has Changed Her Outlook

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NIKKI GIOVANNI
Black poet

NEW YORK, N.Y. — In her poem "Ego-tripping," Nikki Giovanni writes, "I am a gazelle so swift/So swift you can't catch me."

It is rare to become a successful poet before the age of 30, and the fact that Miss Giovanni is black and a woman makes her achievement all the more unusual.

Reared in a middle-class family in Cincinnati, and a graduate of Fisk University, Miss Giovanni is the author of five books of poetry and a biographical essay about her grandmother called "Gemini," nominated for a national book award this year. She also has received an honorary doctorate from Wilberforce University, and an award for outstanding achievement from Mademoiselle magazine. She now is an editorial consultant for Encore magazine.

But gradually, as in her most recent book, "My House," she has turned toward more personal and universal themes and now deals with social ideas from a broadened perspective. Her poems now radiate black pride and woman pride — and also, most importantly, self-pride, that both depends on these categories and transcends them.

In an interview held after the reading, the slender poet, who in certain lights looks like a 16-year-old, attributed the change in her poetry to "old age."

"I think that I've had a logical growth, a logical progression. I don't know how long I could have kept writing the poems that I wrote, and I think that certainly my son's had an effect on my world outlook. Children have a way of softening you, I should think."

Miss Giovanni continues, "I'm not trying to say that I'm 80 — don't misunderstand — but a 21-29-year-old is very different from a person 30-39, and I don't like people who are 30 years old acting like they're 20. I don't believe in it.

"I THINK I'm now in what Victoria, (her press agent) and I call my 'love period,'" says Miss Giovanni. "Black poets traditionally don't write love poems ... But black people do fall romantically in love. I think I'm more interested now in exploring people than I am in exploring ideologies — mostly because I've explored the ideologies, and there's a limit. It's always going to come back to you — no matter who you are, no matter what you believe in — it's going to come back to you."

Miss Giovanni feels that love for the individual and love for humanity "go hand in hand ... But I don't think that you should ever confuse the two. I don't think you can ever approach a group passionately. There has to be some body.

When Miss Giovanni speaks of her 3-year-old son Thomas, her face softens and the extent of his influence on her life is obvious. Some of her poems she has written for and about him.

Miss Giovanni does not consider herself a feminist, in the current sense of the term. She sees the women's liberation movement as "very white, and I think that's probably as it should be. What black women have called drudgery white women are now viewing in terms of liberation. And certainly the issues of childcare centers ... and equal pay are not new ones, and they're not something we have forgotten. These have been constant problems in our community because our community is a female-based community.

SHE CONTINUED, "I'm sympathetic of course ... I think it has relevance to white women, and I wish them the best of luck. But I think it's going to be a long time before they have any black women involved in it or before black women and white women come together, because there's a lot of emotion.

As for black people in the United States, Miss Giovanni does not feel that conditions have improved and is "very pessimistic about the President.

She also points out that blacks, like white liberals, traditionally fear success, which they equate with corruption, and that they are "geared for failure." But her attitude toward the future of black people is not one of resignation or despair.

"I THINK that in terms of black people as a group it's out there. It's just that nobody's going to hand it to you. It's a lot of work. But if you want it, do it. The worst that can happen is that you fail. It is better to fail, I think, trying to do something than to fail because you say 'I'm gonna be cool. I ain't gonna try it.' You're still a failure."

"Where I sympathize most with men is that there's nothing in the system that says that they can be wrong. There's nothing that says a man can say, 'I made a terrific mistake, and I'm sorry,' or, 'That hurt,' and sit down and cry. And I would hope, speaking of the feminist movement, that it would give men the same space that they need. And I would hope that my son is enough of a man to be able to cry, to be able to be wrong, because once you can be wrong then you can be terrifically right. If you always have to be right, then you have to be safe which means you'll never do anything."

How Much Should Food Labels Tell?

NEW YORK (UPI) — What kind of information should appear on the labels of products bought in food stores? The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed telling the consumer the percentage of the recommended daily allowance (RDA) for an adult contained in the various constituents of the food product. Also listed would be nutrition information about the amounts of calories, protein, fat and carbohydrates.

However, Dr. Paul Lachance, professor of nutritional physiology at Rutgers University, contends that the average consumer cannot understand what this information means when she or he shops for food.

He made that point to the editors of the Sciences, journal of the New York Academy of Sciences.

In the article titled "Food for Thought," he said if the information on the label were related to individual meals rather than food intake per day, it might be useful to the housewife — or househusband or houseperson, as the Women's Movement likes to designate the keeper of the homefront.

Another point about all the information proposed for labels: a shopper will have to take a magnifying glass on food-fetching excursions.

Putting so much information on a label may further clog aisles of supermarkets with parked carts—as shoppers take time to read and digest the consumer information on the bottle or can or plastic tube or box.

There's another problem: how, oh, how will nutritional information be fixed to apples, bananas, tomatoes, potatoes, peaches, radishes, celery and such?

What about fixing same to meat packages?

As for the professor's contention that we're slightly incapable of understanding nutritional information, give yourself a test. Define vitamin. Tell the meaning of calorie. Then look meanings up in a dictionary.

If you were wrong, you're a nutritional dunce.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

She's Told To Count Flowers And Forget About The Weeds

RAP:

I've called this "The People Today," but I guess you know I'm aiming at one person, who seems to stand for them all.

It's hard for me to understand why everyone's the same.

They think the same and act the same and play the same ol' game.

Inside they're thinking evil thoughts and "conning" all the while!

Their hearts: a cup of stones, three cubes of ice and some black butter —

Oh, fellows are so blind to love they don't know that it's there.

Take my advice (unless you're sure) — "Get out of there, and fast!"

Cause what you think are warm kind words and soulful Jello-eyes,

They do you in, they'll win and win and then they'll leave you flat,

For he who wins the rat race is still a lousy rat! — COCOA WHO KNOWS (Age 15)

COCOA:

Your writing: good; your rhyming: fine; your pessimism: No!

DEAR COCOA:

Someone hurt you badly, but don't judge all by one guy's deeds —

It's said that she who counts the flowers forgets to count the weeds. —HELEN

P.S. What we mean in plain prose is: All but the very lucky meet one or two (or three or four) no-good rotten con artists in their lifetimes. And when you're down it's human nature to suspect everybody of being a rat. This feeling won't last long if you open your eyes and see that most people would rather help than hurt you. Give them a chance!

RAP:

My brother and I have always wanted a trail bike. Our parents were against it, still are, but a couple months ago my Dad made a deal: If my brother makes "Cs" in school and I make a "B" average, we can have the bike.

I can easily make "B" in everything but math. Right now, I'm pulling a "D" here. My brother has brought his grades up, so that makes me the guy that goofs up our summer. He's worked hard and he'll be pretty mad. I don't want to be the dummy with the fat lip, but is there any other way? — D.K.W.

DEAR D.:

Ask your math teacher for special help after class. If you bring your grade up to a "C" here, and pull "Bs" everywhere else, your father will surely relent — unless he has a basic fear of trail bikes and is looking for an excuse to keep you off one. (Note to Mr. .: If this is the case, you should have been more honest.) — HELEN

D.:

You say you pull easy "Bs" in other courses. So how about shooting for at least one "A"? Then even a "C" in math would bring your grade point average to "3" — a solid "B."

If you're really trying, your teacher should give you that half-point for effort. Hope he agrees with me. — SUE

INSIDE YOUR HOME

A Quiet Room Is Created Out Of Unused Bedroom

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

There's something rather desperate about that term all-purpose. It seems to reflect an anxiety to squeeze every centimeter of utility out of a particular product or space. We even expect our automobiles to be all-purpose, demanding seats that recline and trunk space that expands into the interior.

But the all-purpose room is a toughy. The moment you try to make it do something for everybody in the family, the space falls apart as a pleasing environment. It becomes a hodgepodge with or without people.

Here are some of the things we often try to put together in an all-purpose room: sewing, guesting, television viewing and music listening, reading and homework for youths and adults. If any three family members try to enjoy any three activities, you have mayhem in the manor.

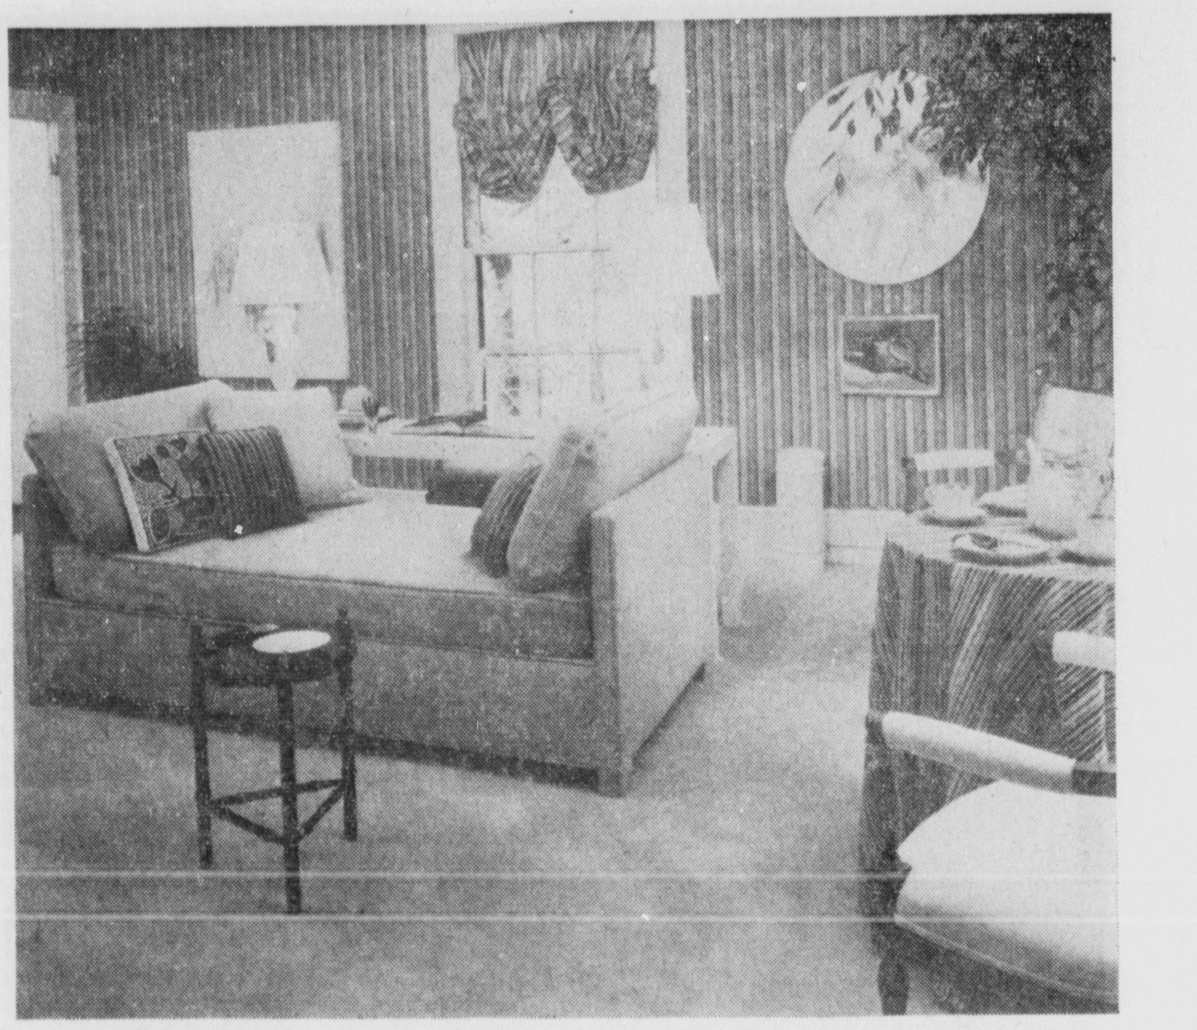
THE CLIENT'S daughter had graduated from college and moved to another section of the country. Now that her room was available, the parents asked designers Robert Newell and John Spicer Norwood to help create a room that could occasionally serve guests or their daughter on her infrequent visits yet allow them to enjoy the additional space for everyday activities.

Since the daughter had taken her twin beds and chests to her new apartment, the designers found a new all-upholstered daybed that they upholstered in wide-rib corduroy fabric. Instead of planting this daybed against a wall, they created an island arrangement — of bed and Parsons-type table — about four feet from one window wall. The table acts as a sofa-back table, a library table for reading or paperwork and as a surface for the client's sewing machine. When the room is housing a guest, that same table is in a comfortable position to hold lamps, bedside radio, clock, books, tissues and whatever.

When the guests are gone, the lady of the house can stretch out on the daybed for reading sessions or hours with her needlework. She and her husband can stop for a mid-Sunday tea and snack as a bright change of scenery from the breakfast room.



QUIET PLEASE: As an antidote to all the exterior noise, this cheerful, converted bedroom provides a quiet spot for quiet activities. "Bright Dream" nylon plush carpeting by Burlington House adds its own bit of acoustical control to this sleep-sitting room.

THE OVERALL color quality is one of warm sunlight. Burlington House plush carpet, is a melted butter color and costs about $7 a yard. Inexpensive seersucker fabric has been applied to the walls, used to create "balloon" curtains and stitched to pillows. Another length has been hemmed by the owner to create a washable table cover.

It's become a quiet, contemplative room, filled with light and sun, but one that can handle a portable TV when the need crops up. It has added a new dimension to this couple's lifestyle — one that gives them an extra cushion against noise pollution.

Mammography Is Recommended

"There is no question in my mind that mammography should be used for every woman who presents herself to a physician to be reassured of the nonexistence of breast cancer," said Dr. William B. Hobbins, general and thoracic surgeon, of Madison, Wis.

Moreover, the use of mammography annually to screen all women over the age of 30 for breast cancer is urged by Dr. Hobbins in a report on a seven-year study of the X-ray technique, published in "Chronic Disease Management."

The most striking results were observed in a group of 114 women who were biopsied and among whom, 19 carcinomas were discovered for a rate of 16.6 per cent, he said. None of these breasts had evidenced any defect upon routine examination.

Student mimes practice some of the funny faces they will use during a performance tonight at 8 o'clock at the School of Arts and Sciences. Audience Potential Of 40 Million For Concert

By PAUL LIBERATORE

More than 40 million persons are expected to hear tonight's musical salute by the Marin Symphony Orchestra to the Organization of American States, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year.

Of course, all 40 million of them won't be at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building for the 8 o'clock concert featuring conductor Carmen Dragon and soprano Claudia Cummings.

The concert, which will include music by composers from five OAS countries, will be taped by the Voice of America for broadcast in 24 countries, primarily in Latin America, as part of a year-long tribute to the OAS.

The Marin Symphony Association has announced that all seats have been filled for the free concert, part of a series of musical programs sponsored by the OAS Department of Cultural Affairs.

"Choosing the Marin Symphony had a great deal to do with my interest in presenting the musical life of a country from its grass roots level, which I think is more representative of the cultural life of its people," said Harold Boxer, music director of Voice of America.

Boxer, in Marin to coordinate the taping, said the Marin Symphony ended his search to find a community orchestra with the standards of musicianship required to perform a difficult program.

HAROLD BOXER
Tapes Marin Symphony

"It is a tribute to the Marin Symphony that it can handle it," the 54-year-old director said. "And it is a tribute to the community's music-making, which keeps the orchestra alive."

The tape is to be broadcast in about two weeks, Boxer said, then rebroadcast by local radio stations in Latin America and in Europe, bringing its potential audience to well more than 40 million.

The concert will include "An Outdoor Overture" by Copland, "Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5" by Villa Lobos, "Lyric for Orchestra" by Sommers, "Glitter and be Gay" by Bernstein, music from the ballet "Estancia" by Ginastera, "New England Triptych" by William Schumann and three traditional Mexican songs.

The Voice of America, Boxer noted, has been broadcasting for 30 years and currently produces about 1,000 hours a year of musical programs.

It was born during World War II as a part of the Office of War Information and is funded entirely by congressional appropriations.

Although he described the organization as "bare bones," Boxer said it has not suffered any "massive slash" in its budget and has no more problem getting money than any other organization in times of government cutbacks.

The OAS, the oldest of international regional organizations, grew out of the International Union of American Republics established in 1890. The official charter governing the OAS was signed in Bogata in 1948.

A grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund provided most of the concert's financing, Boxer said. Other contributors include Standard Oil Company, Musicians Local 6 and the Marin Symphony Association.

Ex-Convict Ordered To Vacaville For Diagnosis

A 34-year-old ex-convict, who disarmed a Corte Madera policeman during an attempted burglary last year, was ordered yesterday to undergo 90 days of diagnosis at the state prison system's Vacaville facility before sentencing.

The recommendation of the Department of Corrections was sought by Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court, who must sentence Paul Manuel Barros of Castro Valley on a felony grand theft charge.

Barros, also known as Hoss Barrows, was arrested in October, five months after a Corte Madera officer surprised men trying to steal copper pipe from the Marin Municipal Water District Corporation Yard.

Officer David Zehnder said that on May 12 he saw the pair loading $620 in copper pipe into a car, but was disarmed by Barros while the other fled on foot.

Michael Lopez, 30, of no fixed address, was arrested near the yard after a struggle and pleaded guilty to grand theft, but Barros escaped.

Barros also pleaded guilty despite the threat by Menary of almost certain return to prison. The judge dismissed a felony count of assault with a deadly weapon in return for the guilty plea March 12.

Leonardo Film Set Tomorrow

"Leonardo: To Know How To See," the national gallery of art film on Leonardo Da Vinci, will be shown tomorrow at 11:45 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at Civic Center.

The film is the first in a series of art films to be presented by the Marin County Public Library, according to Regina Jimenez, the library's film specialist.

Production Facility Coordinator Hired

Carter was selected from among 67 candidates and will assist executive director Leon G. Kalimos in the development of programs, facilities and grounds. He will be paid $1,008 per month.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1973 with 244 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

American architect and engineer Benjamin Latrobe was born May 1, 1764.

On this day in history:

In 1873, penny post cards went on sale for the first time.

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York City — 102 floors, a total height of 1,250 feet.

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson predicted the day will come when the United States has a woman chief executive.

A thought for the day: American humorist James Thurber said, "You might as well fall flat on your face as lean over too far backward."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Tax Windfall Is Announced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California cities and counties will get $19 million more than expected during the current fiscal year from gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees.

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy also said Monday that the city-county allocations in 1973-74 would increase by $30 million from the $335 million in projected revenues going to local governments in fiscal 1972-73 from highway users taxes and motor vehicle license revenues.

Flournoy said increasing sales of gasoline and diesel fuel indicate city-county allocations of highway user taxes for 1972-73 will be about 4.4 per cent higher than originally estimated.

ONE HURT

Stand-Up Cyclists In Crash

It was certainly a case of "Look Ma - No Hands!" yesterday morning as Erik and Scott Von Hendrickson rode down Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur standing on the seats of their motorcycles with their hands outstretched.

Unfortunately, reported Larkspur police, it was very nearly a case of "Look Ma - No Head!" as well.

At 8:30 a.m., Erik Von Hendrickson, 18, of 127 Manor Road, Fairfax, fell from his motorcycle on Magnolia Avenue near Hillview Gardens. Police reported that Scott Von Hendrickson, 17, of the same address, was unable to stop and ran into the first rider's head.

Erik was taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was today reported in satisfactory condition with a head injury, and multiple scrapes and bruises.

Larkspur police said "many witnesses" had reported seeing the two cyclists riding in town standing on the seats of their machines.

Prize Nominee

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — A church action group known as the "Cologne Movement" has nominated Sister Teresa, 60, a native of Albania, for the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize. The Catholic sister has been working in India for more than three decades. An Archbishop spokesman said the nomination was in recognition of her numerous actions of aid to war victims and care for the poor.

Post Attacks Reagan's Tax Limitation Program

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Charging the plan ignores "economic reality," Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has warned Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed tax limitation program could cause sharp local tax increases if enacted.

Reagan, responding to Post's criticism, said Post had "embraced the policy positions of those free-spending leaders in the legislature by whom he is employed."

In a report yesterday to the Legislature, Post — the Legislature's nonpartisan fiscal adviser — said if Reagan's proposal had been adopted in 1966, the governor's currently proposed $9.2 billion budget would have been cut back by 25.5 per cent or $2.5 billion.

"Such a reduction would in effect eliminate all of the existing direct property tax relief programs and in addition require a 30 per cent curtailment in state support for local schools," Post said.

In urging the Legislature to reject the governor's plan along with Reagan's bill to dispose of the state's projected $852 million tax surplus, Post said under the limitation program, "It is almost inevitable that reductions in state expenditures will be shifted to local governments and cause increases in local property and sales taxes."

Reagan, in a statement issued by his office, accused Post, who frequently differs with him over tax policy, of choosing to "abandon the interests of the taxpayers."

The governor said Post and his staff have made "horrendous errors" in the past, including forecasting in 1971 that the state would face a huge budget deficit. Reagan noted the state has a big projected budget surplus.

"For one who has been so wrong in his prediction to again parrot the precursors of misery and ruin who only oppose our efforts to cut taxes, but also have consistently urged higher and higher spending levels, is very difficult to understand," Reagan said.

Under the governor's program, both in a proposed ballot initiative and a constitutional amendment introduced in the Seante, a permanent lid would be set on the amount of taxes the state could collect. The ceiling could be raised only with voter approval.

The measure would permanently cut taxes by 7.5 per cent, and reduce the total tax burden of Californians by 20 per cent over the next 15 years, Reagan has said.

But Post told the lawmakers it would be "imprudent" to enact Reagan's bill to refund the surplus to income and sales taxpayers or any other measure which significantly reduced the initiative's limitation base next year. Assembly Democrats are sponsoring their own refund bill.

Rites For Indians Delay Peace Parley

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A new wave of uncertainity hung over the long standoff at Wounded Knee today as American Indian Movement militants prepared to bury their dead.

Resumption of talks between federal negotiators and AIM leaders apparently were stalled until completion of funeral services for two slain men. No exact time for the services had been announced.

Chief federal negotiator Kent Frizzell said that one crisis passed without major incident Monday when the body of Frank Clearwater, 47, a militant from Cherokee, N.C., was permitted on the Pine Ridge Reservation by the Oglala Sioux tribal government.

The tribe relaxed an earlier court order and permitted the body to be brought to the reservation for a one-day wake. It was to be removed today possibly to the neighboring rosebud reservation for burial.

AIM leaders had earlier insisted upon burial of Clearwater's body at Wounded Knee but the tribal government vetoed this because Clearwater was not an Oglala Sioux.

The body of Lawrence Lamont, 31, Pine Ridge, a member of the tribe, was to be buried at Wounded Knee with the government restriction that the burial part be limited to eight to 10 close relatives.

Frizzell and an assistant negotiator, Richard Hellstern, said they ready to meet with AIM leaders Dennis Banks and Leonard Crow Dog—possibly today. But it appeared the controversy over funeral arrangements might delay for a third day the resumption of the talks.

"I still think we are running out of time," Frizzell said, "but I don't like to set deadlines or issue ultimatums in a situation of this type."

Anti-U.S. Signs

BERLIN (UPI) — Swastikas and "Get out of Cambodia" slogans were smeared early today on nine American automobiles and three homes in the American housing area near American headquarters, West Berlin police said.

Retirement Is Seen As A New Beginning

Edwina Codoni, veteran San Rafael educator who will leave the city's school system next month after 37 years of service, sees her retirement as the beginning of a new life.

When the energetic, 61-year-old Miss Codoni leaves her office as principal of Coleman School for the last time June 15, she will immediately begin preparation for a year-long vacation that will take her from Hawaii to the Phillipines, Australia and New Zealand.

On her return to Marin, she expects to do public relations work — "perhaps for an airline" — and, in 1975, make a bid for a seat on the San Rafael Board of Education.

"I could stay for another five years at Coleman, but after 40 years in the teaching profession . . . well, that's enough for one job," she said. "I've got so much else to do.

"I live every day as though it's my birthday and as though it's the last day of my life . . . but I have many miles to travel and many things to see before I go to sleep."

Miss Codoni, the daughter of a pioneer Marin County family, was born in Point Reyes Station in 1911. Her father, a bookkeeper, later became a car dealer in San Rafael, and the family moved to the city when she was four.

She attended the old B Street and E Street schools and was a member of the fourth graduating class of San Rafael High School. After graduating from the teacher's college that is now California State University at San Francisco, she began a search for work as an educator.

"It was the Depression and there were no jobs," she recalled. "I walked through many a cowpasture to find a job as teacher." She finally landed a job in 1933 as the teacher of a one-room school in the Natividad District of the Salinas Valley, a post she left in 1934 to teach ranch children at Pierce Point School at Point Reyes.

After two years in West Marin, Miss Codoni began her 37-year career with the San Rafael School System, becoming a teacher, and later principal, at the B Street School. She has taught in almost every San Rafael school since, and been a full-time principal for the past 28 years — the last nine at Coleman.

Looking over her career in education, Miss Codoni said things haven't really changed that much since she first entered a classroom 40 years ago.

The open classroom technique "is the same as we had with the one-room rural school," she declared. And the new math? "Two plus two still equals four."

Although she lauded the flexibility and freedom now afforded many teachers, she criticized the habit of some administrators of "jumping on the educational fad bandwagon before we understand what it is." She also called for more communication between parents and teachers, and more community involvement in the school system.

The flood of textbooks issued by the state is virtually useless, she said, because neither teachers nor students have time to read them all.

And she is wary of the practice of segregating so-called "educationally handicapped" students from the "more able learners," claiming that children are their own best teachers.

She does, however, favor the closing of several small neighborhood schools in San Rafael, as has been mentioned by the school board, because "we have to be practical . . . and we may be able to give the children a better education in a little larger school."

Things have become too stuffy in the educational world in recent years, she said, pledging that if she is elected to the school board in two years, "we won't be having meetings with a lot of people" where an elite group does all the talking. Smaller meetings where everyone is given the chance to speak are more productive, she said.

EDWINA CODONI
"I live every day as though it's my birthday, as though it's the last day of my life."
(Independent-Journal photo)

Miss Codoni, who said she always wears a wide array of jewelry because "children love color," said future plans also include tending her rose garden at home on Hillcrest Drive.

None of her time will be spent idly, she said. "It's been a beautiful life."

The veteran educator will be honored at a retirement party at 6:30 p.m. June 9 in the Grand Ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco..

Another Bond Call Is Likely On Novato Creek

Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board members indicated this morning they will call another bond election, probably in November, to finance a Novato Creek flood control project.

A $4.5 million bond proposal for an undefined project received a 63.9 per cent favorable vote at the polls April 17, short of the required two-thirds.

Director William W. Wright said at a joint breakfast meeting with the Novato City Council that the next bond measure should specify a "definite project."

The type of project to be proposed will be decided after a series of hearings starting with one by the Army Corps of Engineers, tentatively scheduled for later this month.

The corps has been planning a federal-local project that "fits the needs and desires" of the community.

Councilmen and directors also discussed the problem of upstream residents throwing debris in Novato and Warner creeks, hindering the flow of waters.

The council and the board set another breakfast meeting at 7 a.m. June 5 at the Alvarado Inn.

Cigarette Tied To Accident

A 22-year-old Petaluma man was hospitalized Sunday night with multiple scrapes after his car ran off the road and hit a tree when he bent over to pick up a lighted cigarette he had dropped.

Lonnie R. Rolford, of 741 Mountain View Avenue was released yesterday from Hillcrest General Hospital. Police said he was thrown from his car in the 8:10 p.m. accident on Petaluma Boulevard North near Cotona Road. The car landed in a culvert, officers said.

Four Receive Degrees At BYU

George James Jett of Mill Valley received his master's degree. Rosalyn Ann Struck and Peter Brian Yorke, both of Novato, received bachelor's degrees. Marlise Brown of San Rafael received an associate degree. Graduation was April 20.

Meet Postponed

Tonight's scheduled meeting of the Reed School District board has been postponed to next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Del Mar School to reestablish a two-week gap between sessions, the district office announced. The meetings got out of sequence because no session was held April 17, election day.

A Solution Offered In Water Fuss

Albert Bianchi, representing the McCarthy Co. in its fight to get water for a planned 292-unit project opposite the Marin Civic Center said in a letter he wanted the matter discussed "before (it) . . . escalates into full-scale litigation."

The McCarthy Co. has filed suit to force the district to provide water for the project. A Marin judge April 18 ordered the district to do so or appear in court to explain why it shouldn't.

Bianchi explained the project to board members yesterday and suggested four criteria for judging the project and others:

Does it provide the maximum public benefit; is it compatible with existing uses in area; has it received favorable reaction from planning agencies and does it conform with the proposed countywide plan?

Bianchi said he thinks the project meets those criteria. After his plea, directors held a 30-minute closed session to discuss the McCarthy court case.

Put over to the board's meeting next Wednesday was consideration of a $1.63 million claim by the company. Such claims, usually a prelude to civil suits, routinely are rejected by government agencies.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

TIME — Granted 90-day time extensions on pipeline extension agreements with Jerome Meislin for Los Colindas Unit 11, Terra Linda, and with Securities of America for Shelter Ridge Unit 3 in Mill Valley.

PIPE — Approved replacing 300 feet of two-inch pipe along Poplar Drive west of Wolfe Grade in Kentfield with six-inch pipe.

GROUP — Recommended that the advisory committeee to improvement district expand the role and membership of its environmental advisory subcommittee.

San Anselmans Hurt In Wreck

Two San Anselmo men were injured yesterday following an accident on Bolinas Road, Fairfax police reported today.

Arnell R. Etherington, 26, of 45 Fernwood Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition today with cuts and bruises in Marin General Hospital. Brian Popazivanov, 26, of the same address, was reported in satisfactory condition with a broken rib.

Popazivanov was a passenger in a car driven by Etherington that was smashed broadside by a car driven by Thomas Poksay, 16, of 7 Devonshire Drive, Novato, according to police.

Film On Flying Is Planned

Joe Mugnaini, artist, author illustrator and teacher of drawing, will show his film, "Icarus, Montgolfier and Wright" at 1 p.m. Friday in Room 1002, Stevenson Hall, Sonoma State College.

The film, which Mugnaini made with science fiction writer Ray Bradbury, is an animated color story of man's struggle to fly.

After the film showing, Mugnaini will be available for questions, and refreshments will be served in alcove of the college commons.

CHRISTOPHER PERRY

SHELLY STIDHAM

CAROLINE LINSE
More say in laws

Terra Linda High Junior Top Law Day Essayist

Three Marin County high school studets have been named winners of the annual Law Day Essay Contest sponsored by the Marin County Bar Association.

First prize of $75 went to Christopher Perry, 15, of San Rafael, a junior at Terra Linda High School. Shelly Stidham, 16, also a junior at Terra Linda High School, captured the second place award of $50 and Caroline Linse of Larkspur, a 16-year-old sophomore at Redwood High School, received the $25 third place prize.

The youngsters were to receive the awards for their essays on "Youth and the Law" during a luncheon today at the Alvarado Inn in Novato.

Perry's essay deals with the conflict between youth and the older generation over the sometimes violent methods young people may use to bring about change in society.

Perry suggests the most effective way of bringing about peaceful change is through political action.

"If a greater proportion of elected officials, and especially those in influential positions, are under 40," he writes, "and youth turns to initiatives and propositions instead of the gun and the bomb, youth can change the law — hopefully for the better."

Miss Stidham's essay also involved the division or generation gap between the young and older in America, especially over the issue of legalizing marijuana.

She calls for youth and older persons to examine the hypocrisy in their own positions to form a united effort for social-change.

"Once we can accomplish this," her essay says, "the truly important social issues such as the revamping of our economy and the end of racial strife won't seem nearly as distant."

Miss Linse suggests that young people under 18 be given more say in forming the laws and policies that affect them.

Her essay questions the reasoning behind spending millions for war instead of education, allowing large companies tax shelters while they pollute the environment.

"Laws and opinions toward young people have to change before our opinions are altered," she writes. "It is not an easy task to make us feel positive towards law. It would be much easier if we didn't have so much energy and vitality. Put our energy and vitality to use, let us know what we can do to change and better the laws."

Essays were assigned by English departments at the two schools.

Fire Advisers Want Nonactive Existence

The Corte Madera Citizens Fire Department Improvement Committee last night decided it would like to continue in existence but not hold regular meetings.

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels said the group recommended the town council retain its services, but indicated it would meet only on call from its chairman, councilman Robert J. Flahive.

Bartels said the committee endorsed a five-year plan for the fire department prepared by Chief Frank L. Nelson, but emphasized It's a long-range document.

Nelson recommends moving the fire station headquarters to a site near the present California Highway Patrol building east of Highway 101. Since Corte Madera is a one-fire-station town, stated Nelson, a station by the freeway cloverleaf would make runs to any location in town "acceptable for adequate response."

If the headquarters isn't moved from its present location on Tamalpais Avenue next to the town hall, Chief Nelson suggestes remodeling the substation on Paradise Drive, east of the freeway, to give east side coverage.

Bartels said the committee approved the 63-hour work week schedule for firemen which went into effect Nov. 1, when the fire department began round the clock shifts. The committee also suggested firemen undertake fire prevention work by instructing home owners on Christmas Tree Hill on fire precaution measures.

First Name Misspelled

SAN MATEO (UPI) — The name of A.P. Giannini, the Bank of America founder, is misspelled on postage stamps scheduled to go on sale June 27.

Claire Giannini Hoffman, the banker's only daughter, was surprised Monday when the misspelling was pointed out to her and remarked that she had "never even noticed."

Gianni died at 79 in 1949.

Security In North Block Is Tightened

Two inmates of the "honor block" got into a fight with crude weapons, according to Lee DeBord, information officer. One of the weapons recovered was a sharpened screwdriver and the other a sharpened brass rod, DeBord said.

Neither inmate was hospitalized because the wounds were superficial, DeBoard said. The fight was broken up almost immediately by guards who saw it about 2:30 p.m.

The inmates involved are Rudolph Van Whitley, 26, of Los Angeles, serving five years to life for rape and armed robbery convicted in August 1969, and Eddie Wilson, 33, of Alameda County, serving five years to life for armed robbery.

They were the 21st and 22nd stabbings this year at the prison.

DeBord said that the cell block housing 395 inmates had been an "honor block" giving the inmates much more freedom. It was returned to regular "mainline" status which is much more restrictive, DeBord said.

The North Block has been the scene of four stabbings this year, including two in cells, he said.

Prison officials are investigating smuggling of drugs into the prison, DeBord said.

"There is a chance that drugs were an underlying problem in yesterday's stabbing, but now it appears to have been a personal thing," he said.

Groups that apparently are involved in the violence are the "Aryan Brotherhood," a white racist group and the "Mexican Mafia," he said. There is another group at the prison, the "Nuestra Familia" or "New Family," but they have not been involved in violence recently, DeBord said.

DeBord said that 18 members of the "Aryan Brotherhood" have been locked in segregated cells during the past week.

Talk Scheduled On Sentry Dogs

Andrew Mills, Hamilton Air Force Base veterinarian, will talk about sentry dog training at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow at the base, a session sponsored by Marin County 4-H Clubs in conjunction with the Marin County Veterinarians Society.

Final sessions in the veterinary science series will be at 10 a.m. May 19 at the Guide Dogs for the Blind, Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, when Dr. Michael R. Kluse will tell about the guide dog program.

DAVID ROXANDER
"I want to be able to please an audience, and to dance like no one else before."

Marin Duo In Ballet Big Leagues

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The orchestra had finished tuning and David Roxander, standing in the wings waiting to make his professional ballet debut, was terrified.

He was 17 and a long way from his hillside home in Corte Madera. This was the National Ballet of Canada, Rudolf Nureyev's troupe, and Roxander had a part in "Swan Lake."

At about the same time last fall, Jane Thelan of San Rafael, at 18 the youngest member of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet by two years and in her first season with the company, was offered the leading role in a new ballet — an unusual occurrence for a ballerina in her first season — and admittedly felt the pressure.

Roxander and Miss Thelan, former dancing partners in the Marin Civic Ballet, are home in Marin, training and studying for their second seasons in professional ballet.

Both plan to attend the Eighth Annual Pacific Regional Ballet Festival scheduled May 9 through 12 at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building in San Rafael. Considered the most important event of the year in nonprofessional ballet, more than 600 dancers, teachers and ballet directors will participate in three days of master classes and seminars, climaxed by the performance of the Gala Ballet at 8 p.m. May 12.

Both said it was their training under Leona Norman, director of Marin Civic, and their experience in regional festivals that helped sustain them in their first seasons in the big league of ballet.

"It was the most terrifying experience of my life," Roxander said of his first appearance in "Swan Lake." "There was this incredible fear that took place in my body."

(Roxander is known in Marin as David Roxander White, but had to drop his last name for professional purposes to avoid confusion with another member of his union named David White).

In all, he danced in about 150 performances of that ballet last year, and "that's a lot of nights to be scared."

Only a few months before, Celia Franca, directress of the National Ballet of Canada, had snatched him from the ranks of the San Rafael company after seeing him dance in a videotaped preview of a new ballet by Norbert Vesac, a choreographer and teacher at the Marin Civic.

Appearing in last year's Pacific Regional Ballet Festival, he also had been seen by Robert Joffery, head of the Joffery Ballet in New York, who offered him a spot in the Joffery "corps de ballet."

But he chose the national ballet because he preferred its classical orientation and because it had Rudolf Nureyev.

"I had a lot of apprehensions about meeting him," White said of Nureyev," because of what I had heard about his temperament and about what a bastard he is to work with."

And while Nureyev was often aloof and sometimes moody, he wasn't the scowling master the young Roxander expected.

"Rudy helped me a lot. He was truly concerned with my development as a dancer."

It was by Nureyev that Roxander was presented his biggest triumphs and one of his most crushing disappointments.

A member of the company for only two weeks, Nureyev picked him to dance two solos in "Sleeping Beauty."

He rehearsed for three weeks to learn a solo in the "pas de cinq" section of the ballet, and another part called "cats."

He had been custom fitted for two costumes at a cost of $300 each, special shoes were dyed to match his outfits and everything was ready. "The heart especially was ready," he said.

"He told me I was too young and too small and he took the parts away, just like that, and it was never discussed again."

After his initial disappointment and with the assurance of Nureyev that the decision had nothing to do with his ability as a dancer, Roxander took it philosophically.

"I trusted him," he said. "I believed in him and that made it easier. He didn't want me to be this baby star who was a big hit at 17 and burned out by 20."

But there were other parts and he was dancing every day and learning and maturing when he suffered his second setback, an injury during the first act of "The Nutcracker Suite."

He was executing a "tour de l'air" — a movement in which he leaps into the air raising his legs and grabbing his ankles and spinning around twice before touching the floor — when a muscle cramped in his leg and he came down on the toe of his left foot, tearing 15 ligaments.

He was told to take three weeks off to recover, but came back in one, and primarily because he didn't allow enough time for his injury to mend, he said, he reinjured the foot two months later and was out for the season.

But he showed so much promise in that first season that he was offered a contract for next year and he now is taking classes and practicing at the Marin Civic Ballet School, preparing to leave for Canada in June.

Roxander is the son of Jody and Ralph White, his mother a former ballerina with the Bay Area Civic Ballet, which later evolved into the Marin Civic, and his father a former professional actor who still appears with local theater groups in Marin.

Jane Thelan credits her 11 years of training with the Marin Civic and the experience and stage presence she absorbed during the regional ballet festivals with helping her through her first difficult season with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

She had just finished a term at the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada last June when she applied for a spot with the royal ballet.

She was told there was no opening, but at the end of August two dancers were injured and Arnold Spohr, director of the royal ballet, called her to Winnipeg.

Within two weeks she was offered a contract with the leading role in a new ballet by Vesac, "What to do Till the Messiah Comes," a rare break for a "corps girl," a rookie, to jump into a solo role.

"It bugged people who had been there for a while," she said. "But I had to prove myself, not to the others, but to myself."

And there were other pressures. "The whole trip of living alone was almost as trying as the dancing itself. There was no family, no friends. You've got yourself and that's it."

But Miss Thelan, a graduate of San Rafael High School, and the new ballet received good reviews and she later was presented one of five women's parts in "Scriabin," a ballet by John Neumeier of Germany.

"I have a better idea of what I am shooting for," she said. "And I have a better idea of who I am, not just 'Jane the dancer.' "

Like Roxander, she prefers dramatic parts.

"I get more fulfillment dancing with the soul, not just with what my body can pull off."

Living at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Thelan, and taking classes at the Marin Civic preparing for next season, she admits that she is sorry college and a dance career are incompatible. "I don't want to be just a dancer and only know theater, dance and the arts."

When she stops growing as a person, then she said it will be time to quit dancing and go on to something else. But the road to the royal ballet was not an easy one, and she said quitting is a long way off.

She bagan dancing at 4, in class where children learn the fundamentals of movement, and kept insisting that she wanted to be a ballerina.

At 7 she was in classical classes with Leona Norman at the Marin Civic, and confesses that during her years of training there were times when she wanted "to hang it up."

"I am a perfectionist and sometimes it was all so frustrating," she remembered. "I think it was the fear of failure, of not making it. I thought, why don't I just creep out quietly?"

But she stayed with it and now is looking forward to her second season, which will include tours of Israel, Greece, Cuba and South America.

Many of the dancers in this year's festival — the first time the event will be held in Marin County — will be trying to follow in the footsteps of Jane Thelan and David Roxander.

The event is sort of minor league world series for amateur dancers and, scouted by officials of professional troupes, a possible springboard to professional careers.

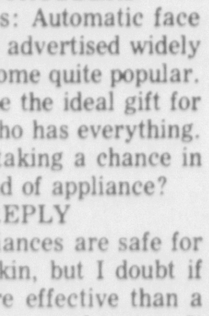
This year the Marin company, judged in 1972 as one of the five major nonprofessional troupes in North America, will be one of a few select companies to perform in the Gala Ballet, having been chosen in judging in March.

Ballet watchers also will be able to see young hopefuls in a free pas de deux class at 3:45 p.m. May 11 at the veterans building.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Alcohol, as Medical Problem, Causes Much Illness, Death



Statistics on alcohol consumption are frightening. Of the 90 million Americans who imbibe, it is estimated that 12 per cent are heavy drinkers. The yearly nationwide per capita average is 30.3 gallons of liquor, wine, and beer. Alcohol is our most abused drug and the cause of America's largest "untreated, treatable illness." It is now a major factor in suicides, automobile and other accidents, and injuries and death due to violence. It causes cirrhosis of the liver, the fifth leading cause of death among men from 25 to 64 years of age. Drinkers also run the risk of developing a variety of diseases that cut 10 to 12 years off their lives.

WHAT CAN be done about it? It is a real hot potato so far as the government is concerned. Our politicians are not about to revive anything that smacks of prohibition. They conveniently have trouble determining whether alcohol is a beverage, food, drug, medicine, poison, anesthetic, liniment, or germ killer. Obviously, most of us regard alcohol as a drug, and as such, the sale of alcoholic beverages could be regulated, advertising controlled, or warnings listed on the label.

We wonder what would happen if it were subjected to the same types of tests that were used to incriminate the cyclamates and many other chemicals. Oddly, we have a law that makes it mandatory to list the side effects of therapeutic drugs, but none that covers the most dangerous and abused of them all.

ALCOHOLISM IS expensive to treat and the results are disappointing. Medical Tribune published some terrifying statistics from the Karolinska Hospital (Stockholm) where a followup study of 200 alcoholic patients was conducted. During an eight-year period, 44 died, 60 became chronically ill, 40 were still on booze, and 56 appeared to be cured. This is a poor record considering that Karolinska is one of the world's great medical centers.

For those who regard alcoholism as a disease, a death rate of 22 per cent and a 30 per cent incidence of chronic illness are excessive.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

FACE SCRUBBERS

G. F. writes: Automatic face cleansers are advertised widely and have become quite popular. It seems to be the ideal gift for the woman who has everything. Is a woman taking a chance in using this kind of appliance?

REPLY

These appliances are safe for the normal skin, but I doubt if they are more effective than a washcloth, soap, and water. It is difficult to get a brush that cleans "deep" without causing considerable irritation to the skin. There is no harm in giving this to a woman who has everything, but it is not an essential piece of equipment for people who need to wash their faces.

CHEMOTHERAPY

J. M. writes: Just what is chemotherapy supposed to do for the patient?

REPLY

Cure, relieve, or control disease. Chemotherapy means treatment with chemicals. In contrast, physiotherapy is treatment via physical means — heat, massage, and ultraviolet rays. Chemotherapy is widely used in cancer, where it prolongs life even though it may not cure. The use of antibiotics in the treatment of infections is now an established method of cure.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Z'berg's Plan For Saving Lake Tahoe

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg has introduced legislation designed to save the Lake Tahoe from developers by spending $20 million in state funds to purchase private lands.

The Sacramento Democrat, who led the 1967 fight to protect the lake from overdevelopment, Monday also proposed restructuring the membership of the California half of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency so local government representatives no longer would have the controlling votes.

The measure (AB1944) would apply strictly to the California half of the bi-state lake, and would have no effect on the Nevada side. It would be financed from the state's one-time projected $852 million budget surplus.

Z'berg, chairman of the Assembly Natural Resources Committee, noted that the California-Nevada Tahoe Regional Agency, created by his 1967 legislation, has adopted a master plan for controlled development of the scenic lake basin but told a news conference it is in "jeopardy" unless private lands are purchased and made public.

"There is no way that the plan can work without purchase of key sections of land," Z'berg said. "And, to make it stick, large amounts of property have to be acquired and put in public ownership."

He said one candidate for possible purchase by the state would be the Kings Beach area at the north end of the lake where condominiums are being built.

In addition to appropriating $20 million, the bill would create a five-member California "Tahoe Conservancy Agency" empowered to acquire both public and private funds for the purchase of land at Tahoe and to contract with other public agencies for the land's actual management.

DRUG BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill permitting the advertising of prescription drugs has won the endorsement of an Assembly committee despite a warning that such promotion could increase drug abuse.

The Assembly Health Committee Monday approved the bill by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, designed to make it easier for consumers to compare prices of prescription drugs. The measure was sent to the Ways and Means Committee on a 5-1 vote.

The measure (AB684) would require pharmacists to post the prices of the 100 most frequently prescribed drugs and permit advertising of prescription drugs in newspapers, radio and television.

Citing a recent study by his staff, Moretti said there was "complete chaos" in the present pricing system for prescription drugs. He said there was "no means available for the cost-conscious consumer to easily obtain price information on his prescription drug purchase."

Testifying in opposition was Rosalyn King, a pharmacist consultant for government agencies, who warned the promotion of prescription drugs "contributes and possibly enhances the incidence of drug dependence, misuse and abuse."

MAIL LISTS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three bills to ban or greatly restrict state and local governments' ability to sell mailing lists of California citizens were introduced Monday in the Assembly.

Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Napa, submitted the toughest measure (AB1918), which would outright prohibit state and local agencies from selling mailing lists.

Dunlap also introduced a less sweeping measure (AB1919), giving citizens the right to have their name removed from any state or local government mailing list by notifying the California attorney general.

The third measure (AB1863) was introduced by Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-La Puente, and deals exclusively with the Department of Motor Vehicles. It would prevent the department from selling any mailing list without receiving a waiver from each person involved.

A CHALLENGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has been challenged by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti to a series of television debates on the governor's proposed ballot initiative to limit taxation.

An aide said Reagan had not read Moretti's written debate "invitation," issued Monday, and withheld comment.

Moretti, a contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year, suggested the debates be held between now and June 15. To qualify for a special statewide election Nov. 6, the measure must obtain the signatures of 520,000 voters by June 27.

Moretti, who opposes the proposal, told Reagan in a letter the debates would help voters be "fully informed of the potential effects of this far-reaching change in the financial relationships between state and local government."

Another Reagan aide reported that $142,000 has been contributed so far by citizens to help finance the initiative campaign organized by the "Californians for Lower Taxes." He said 120,000 petitions have been issued for distribution but reported he did not know how many persons had signed them.

Under Reagan's proposed constitutional amendment, a permanent ceiling on total state taxes would be imposed. It could be lifted only by a vote of the people. Reagan says the total tax burden would be reduced by 20 percent over a 15-year period. The income tax would be cut permanently by 7-½ per cent.

EXCAVATION

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $110,000 bill to finance an archaelogical excavation of a prehistoric Indian village at the site of the proposed new governor's mansion has reached the Senate floor.

The bill, endorsed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, was approved Monday by the Finance Committee on a 12-0 vote.

Sen. Alan Short, D-Stockton, said he feared the proposed excavation really was "an insidious effort to stop construction of the mansion."

"You can poke along the American River and find anything you want," he said, voicing doubt over the value of Indian relics at the site.

Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento, author of the bill (SB441), noted some Indians were against excavation or construction on the site, arguing that either move would destroy an ancient Indian burial ground.

Drake's Voyage Celebration Wins Approval

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The Assembly gave final legislative approval yesterday to a concurrent resolution aimed at commemorating Sir Francis Drake's circumnavigation of the globe 400 years ago.

The lower house concurred in Senate amendments to the resolution (ACR 35), sponsored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The resolution paves the way for creation of a commission that would plan plays, parades, pageants and other public events marking Drake's trip around the earth, which included a stop at Marin County.

All funds would come from private or corporate donations.

Long Agenda Before Trustees

The Marin Community College District board will approve a district policy on faculty selection at its meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the Science Building at College of Marin.

Trustees have deliberated on whether students should have a voice in hiring instructors for nearly a year. Students want to be on the faculty selection committees, while faculty members have mostly disagreed. Supt. John A. Grasham has recommended student participation.

Trustees also will decide whether to approve a separate ethnic studies department at the college. Such classes at the moment are scattered through various departments.

Plea Made To Felony Charge

An 18-year-old Vacaville youth yesterday admitted to feloniously leaving the scene of an auto accident last August 13 in San Rafael.

Eugene Milton Paine entered the plea in Marin Superior Court after Judge David Menary Jr. and the district attorney agreed he would spend no more than 120 days in jail. Sentencing was slated for June 4.

The illegal flight followed a collision in which Paine's car went through a red light at Fourth and Second streets and smashed into a vehicle driven by Jacklyn Askew, 20, of San Anselmo, who was hospitalized with cuts and scrapes.

Law On Smog Devices Goes In Effect Today

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Starting today, Bay Area owners of 1966 through 1970 model cars must install a new smog device if the car is being registered in California for the first time, or if it is being traded or sold.

Starting July 1, all 1966 through 1970 models, whether being retained by their present owners or not, must be so equipped according to a time table based on license plates, according to the State Air Resources Board.

The time table compels installation during July for cars with plates whose last number is 1; during August for plates ending with 2, September for plates with 3, October for 4, November for 5, December for 6, next January for 7, next February for 9, next March for 9 and next April for 0 and for plates with letters only.

Application of the smog control regulation to Bay Area vehicles marks the start of phase 2 of a program that began in Riverside County Feb. 1 and on April 1 was extended to Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura, San Bernardino and Santa Barbara counties.

Phase 2 includes the nine Bay Area counties in the program.

1966 through 1970 year models had exhaust emission controls installed at the factory, but these systems controlled only carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons. They did not control oxides of nitrogen, which is a primary ingredient in the formation of photochemical smog. The substance reacts with hydrocarbons in sunlight to produce the smog.

State Air Resources Board tests indicate the new control devices will cut these emissions by from 43 to 53 percent.

Owners may have the devices installed at any state-licensed smog device installation and inspection station, designated by a large blue shield. (Information on what vehicles are exempt is available at these stations.)

The seller is responsible for paying for the installation. By law, the device and the installation charge must total no more than $35, plus tax on parts only. Owners can install devices in their own vehicles, but the job must be inspected anyway and certified in good operating condition at a licensed station.

Whether a car owner installs his own device or not, he must obtain a certificate of compliance from a licensed station — and he must obtain and display a windshield sticker indicating compliance with the program. A red sticker indicates the car is exempt and a blue sticker indicates it is equipped with a device. The sticker must be displayed on the inside of the windshield on the passenger side in the lower right hand corner.

Compliance with the program will be a condition of registration of the motor vehicle in the 1975 license year.

18-Year-Old Fined $500 On Charge

A youth, who broke into a San Rafael sporting goods store to steal an outboard motor, was fined $500 yesterday immediately after pleading guilty.

No time in jail was part of a plea bargain between William Edward Petro, 18, of Santa Venetia and Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court. The District attorney recommended three months in jail.

Petro also was ordered to pay during three years of probation $165 restitution to the Western Sport Shop and $250 for the legal services of the public defender.

Petro and a 17-year-old companion were arrested Dec. 29 after a witness told police the pair smashed a window of the store at 902 Third Street and took something.

Traced through his car's license number, Petro was arrested with the stolen boat motor in his car, San Rafael police said.

The theft was his first scrape with the law, and probation officer Sarah Deming concluded it probably would be his last. "There is nothing in the defendant's past record which would indicate a propensity toward antisocial or criminal activity," she wrote in a preplea report.

America Said Named For British Sheriff

NEW YORK (UPI) — America was named for the high sheriff of Bristol, England, in the late 15th century, not for Amerigo Vespucci, according to Britons promoting Bristol's 600th anniversary.

According to Ted J. Rawlings, managing director of the anniversary exhibition scheduled for this summer, said there is strong support in England for the idea the new continent was named for Sheriff Richard Americ.

The theory goes that Americ was chief financial backer of the voyages of Italian-born explorer John Cabot. Cabot discovered Newfoundland in 1497 and named the new land for Americ, the theory goes.

Historians generally attribute the name of America to Amerigo Vespucci, the Italian navigator who discovered South America on a 1499-1500 voyage and returned there in 1501. The name America first appeared in print on a map of South America published by Martin Waldseemuller in France in 1507.

Drop Shown In Rate Of Gonorrhea

Gonorrhea appears to be on the decrease in Marin while the number of syphilis cases appears to be climbing, county health officials have reported.

The figures, released as part of venereal disease awareness month which ended yesterday, show 1,561 cases of gonorrhea reported in 1971 and 1,382 cases in 1972.

So far this year, officials said, 267 cases of gonorrhea have been reported in Marin.

Syphilis, the more dangerous of the two venereal diseases, climbed from 73 cases reported in 1971 to 90 cases in 1972. This year, 21 cases have been reported.

According to Dr. Warren Ketterer, head of the Bureau of Venereal Disease Control in the state Health Department, statewide figures show both diseases are dropping. He gave no figures, however.

He credited the drop to improved public and school information programs, a 60 per cent increase in the sale of condoms and private physicians examining women for symptomless gonorrhea when doing pelvic examinations.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Balanced Portfolio Is Best For Widow

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What investments would you recommend for a widow in the late forties with $150,000? I have additional income and no special need for this money at this time. — S.T.

A. You are fortunate to have been left in such a secure financial position. While preservation of your capital is an important consideration, your portfolio should have a potential for appreciation. For this reason I have attempted to achieve a balance among the selected securities. For stability, I suggest that you buy $20 thousand each of Federal Land Bank 7.30s of 1982 and Federal Home Loan Bank 7.15s of 1977.

These bonds, which are issued by two government sponsored banking corporations, are not federally guaranteed but are considered second only to Treasury bonds in terms of security. Another feature is that, interest, while taxable by the federal government is not subject to state, municipal or local tax. This $41,000 investment will return $2,863 in income annually, a 7.0 per cent return.

For the remainder of your funds a list of seven common stocks, selling at 12 to 14 times earnings, offers strong growth potential. The first, unlisted American Express, is an international travel, insurance and financial concern. Buy 300 shares at a cost of approximately $17,500. With $19,000 a 150-share investment in American Home Products (NYSE) is recommended. This drug and consumer product company has a five-year compound growth rate of 13 per cent annually. Heublein (NYSE) is the leading U.S. producer of vodka and premixed cocktails. A 300-share investment should work out well over the long term.

Kerr-McGee (NYSE), an integrated oil producer, appears well situated in view of the energy crisis. Buy 200 shares. A more speculative issue, Lomas & Nettleton Financial (NYSE), has projected a 20 per cent increase in earnings for the year to end June 30. Buy 1,000 shares at about $14,000. A 200-share block of Union Pacific Corp. (NYSE), a rail and natural resource issue, plus 150 of medical, drug and consumer products firm Warner Lambert (NYSE), will round out your common stock portfolio valued at about $107,000.

Import Quotas About The Same

SYDNEY (UPI) — At the turn of the century, American-Australian trade had developed to a point where the United States supplied about 13.8 per cent of Australian imports while Australia supplied about 7 per cent of its total exports to the United States.

Today, the United States furnishes about 25 per cent of Australia's imports while taking about 12.5 per cent of its total exports.

Stocks Cut Early Loss, Level Off

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market made a sharp recovery from earlier losses on the New York Stock Exchange today, then leveled off to close mixed to slightly lower. Trading was only moderate by the close.

A report around 1:30 p.m. that President Nixon will meet with his economic advisers and with his labor-management committee and then make a statement on the economy sparked investor enthusiasm. A White House spokesman said he did not know if the statement would contain any new moves to curb inflation.

Nick's Cove Bar, Restaurant Will Change Hands This Week

Nick's Cove restaurant and bar north of Marshall, a West Marin landmark for 40 years, will be sold this weekend to a couple from Danville, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Gibson.

Mrs. Dorothy Matkovich, who has operated Nick's Cove for 22 years, said she plans to retire and move to Petaluma, where her daughter lives.

Gibson, the new owner, was a landscape gardener in Danville. He and his wife Ruth have moved to Nick's Cove and will operate the restaurant and bar under the same name. The Gibsons also bought the Sea Galley, a takeout seafood restaurant at BodegaBay, about two months ago.

Nick's Cove bar was established in 1933 by Nick Kojich. When it was destroyed by fire in 1950, Kojich's nephew, Andrew Matkovich and his wife Dorothy Matkovich built the existing building and went into partnership with Kojich. The Matkoviches bought out Kojich in the early 1960's and have run it ever since. Kojich died in 1967 at age 80. Mrs. Matkovich has been running Nick's Cove alone since 1969, when her husband passed away.

A NEW PRINTING firm called Custom Litho opened for business today at 118-D Hamilton Drive in Hamilton Industrial Park.

Custom Litho provides offset printing, color work and layout designs. It prints such items as greeting cards, business forms, and brochures for both businesses and individuals.

William Hoey Company arranged the lease of space for Custom Litho and for the following six firms:

Return Of The Giants

With the Giants playing exciting baseball and leading the National League West by 3½ games over the Reds, I am very curious to see the number of fans drawn into Candlestick Park in the Giant's homestand which opens tonight against the Pirates.

As we've heard before, San Francisco fans will back a winner, but won't walk across the street to see a loser. Last year they had a loser and they stayed away in droves. I don't want to put a hex on the team, but the Giants really look like a winner.

THE 1973 YOUNG GIANTS won their 18th game on April 28. The 1972 Stumbling Giants won their 18th game on June 11. I know the '72 season was late in starting because of the players' strike, but San Francisco missed only five dates. So the comparison is still astounding.

By the time San Francisco had managed to win that 18th game last year, they had already lost 39 and were in last place, 16½ games behind. This year the Giants had lost only five games by the time win number 18 came along.

Another astounding thing is that the Giants are winning with an eight-man pitching staff and some may even call it a six-man staff. Of the 10 roster pitchers, left-handed reliever John Morris has been out of action since April 10 with a broken thumb on his pitching hand and right-handed starter Tom Bradley has been on the shelf since April 17 with a cracked bone in his right ankle. Don Carrithers has pitched only one ineffective inning the first month and it's very obvious manager Charlie Fox fears using Sam McDowell unless absolutely necessary. That leaves six.

AND, EVEN IN the face of Sports Illustrated's latest trivia question (which major league relief pitcher led his team in home runs the previous season?), I cannot list Dave Kingman as one of the Giant pitchers. I have heard Dave say, "I will not pitch again."

And the injury situation is not looking any better since Fox announced on the team's return from the very successful road trip that Bradley would not pitch for at least three weeks. Eventually, although Fox is trying desperately to avoid it, help will have to be called up from the Phoenix farm club. Frank Reberger, who enjoys the commute from Mill Valley to San Francisco much better than the one to Phoenix, would be the first logical choice when Fox finally flashes the SOS sign.

The team's top hitter, Garry Maddox, has missed a few games with injuries and might miss the three-game Pirates series because of badly bruised ribs. No. 2 hitter, Ed Goodson, has missed some games with injuries. All this and the team has won 18 of 24 games.

The Giants drew 106,620 fans to the season's first homestand of nine games and that is 1,167 less than the first nine games of 1972, a year in which the club took a financial bath. But this team is worthy of many more eyes staring down at it.

I HOPE ALL THE publicity which is showering upon the Young Giants doesn't go to their heads. Chris Speier was the cover boy of the Sporting News last week and Sports Illustrated this week and if he can beat the double jinx by bashing a home run or two and coming through with those timely hits and fielding gems, my hat is off to him.

It's no secret many of the Young Giants don't agree with the traditional ways of Fox, but they are not showing it on the field. And that, my friends, is professionalism.

NBA Lakers Tabbed In Opener Tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — After over a decade of hard luck and close calls in the National Basketball Association playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers for once find themselves in the favored position in the league's championship series, which opens here tonight with Los Angeles meeting the New York Knicks.

For the opening game at the Forum before a capacity crowd of 17,505, the Lakers were listed as four-point favorites and they were 9-5 at Las Vgas and 8-5 in Reno to win the series.

Nearly forgotten are the six times in the 1960s that the Bill Russell-led Boston Celtics tripped the Lakers in the championship series. Their 1970 loss to New York in seven games is also a thing of the past.

Tonight the Lakers take the floor as the defending champions against a team they defeated in five games last season for their first NBA crown since they came West from Minneapolis in 1960. Largely due to the home court advantage, the Lakers are rated as slight favorites to repeat as league champs.

"I guess you can say the law of averages has caught up with us," said guard Jerry West, who has been a part of all of the Lakers' near-misses as well as their one moment of glory last year.

"We didn't get a lot of breaks for so many years. Now we are starting to get them," he said after New York defeated Boston Sunday to give the Knicks a spot in the championship series and the Lakers the home court advantage.

"I think we would have beaten the Celtics," said West. "I think we can beat any team. But the home advantage means a lot—especially if there is a seventh game."

The Knicks started fast in game No. 1 here last year by routing the Lakers 114-92 for their only series victory, and Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman is wondering if his team's inactivity since their last games six days ago might produce the same type of opening game.

"I'm a little worried about the layoff," he said. "I don't like to have a team of mine go that long between games. New York might be a little tired after their tough series with Boston but they should be sharper than us—at least in the first game."

After Tuesday's opener, and a second game here Thursday night, the series picks up in New York's Madison Square Garden for games Nos. 3 and 4 next Sunday and Tuesday. Game No. 5, if necessary, will be played at the Forum on Thursday, May, 10, and game six would be in New York on Sunday, May 13. The series would return to Forum on Tuesday, May 15, if it goes the full seven games.

Old Vets Lead Young, Resurgent Giants

SAN FRANCISCO — Would the San Francisco Giants, with the best record in baseball, be even contenders without Juan Marichal and Willie McCovey healthy again.

"Go ask Charlie Fox. It's his team," growled Houston manager Leo Durocher after McCovey ruined his Astros with three home runs in a recent two-game series here.

Fox, whose Giants are back from an 8-2 road trip to face the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight, listened to the question and used diplomatic wording to say maybe.

"I can't make any comment. I might make some of the other guys feel bad. Or I could hurt Marichal and McCovey," he said.

The Giants, who finished fifth in the National League West last year, lead the division now by 3½ games over the defending champion Cincinnati Reds.

Marichal, the 34-year-old right-hander who was 6-16 in 1972, has four of the team's 18 pitching victories this season. McCovey, who missed half of last season because of injuries, has come back to slug five homers and drive in 14 runs in the first month of 1973.

But the team has been billed as "The Young Giants" since tickets went on sale last winter.

Center fielder Gary Maddox, 23, and third baseman Ed Goodson, 24, were the leading hitters in April, with averages of .392 and .338. Young veterans Bobby Bonds, 27, and Chris Speier, 22, helped McCovey in power hitting by adding eight homers and 27 RBIs.

Jim Barr, 25, Jim Willoughby, 24, and tonight's starter Ron Bryant, 25, are working with Marichal now in the starting rotation. Tom Bradley, 26, has been out since April 17 with an ankle injury.

Bradley, a right-hander obtained from the Chicago White Sox in a big midwinter trade, Monday was declared out of action for at least three more weeks when a crack was found in his ankle bone.

"No cast will be necessary and he'll be able to work out. But, I don't expect him to pitch again until our next road trip," Fox said.

Fox says he realized in spring training that Marichal and McCovey were going to hold back the Giants' youth movement somewhat. He couldn't have been happier.

Marichal had winter back surgery and McGovey had a metal pin removed from the arm he broke last season.

"I was convinced after about Juan's third game in Arizona that he was okay. He had his high kick back, he was throwing from over the top and he wanted to throw every day between starts," Fox recalls.

"I watched him a lot. It was too good to be true. I got so I was watching him even as he walked around. I was afraid he'd trip on a pebble or something."

But Fox and his Giants aren't afraid anymore. The young team is on top — and, with veteran help, they plan to stay there.

Meanwhile, the San Francisco Police Department is send-

Sharon's Team Wins

BAD HOMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael and Patti Hogan of La Jolla defeated the doubles team of Bassi-Porzio (first names unavailable), 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 as the United States beat Italy, 3-0, in the second day of the 11th Women's Federation Tennis Cup play today.

Charges Fly In Cage Aftermath

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — After a wild ending resembling last summer's fiasco in the Munich Olympics Monday night, representatives of the United States and Russian basketball teams unleashed a barrage of charges which also recalled last summer's hysterics.

The visiting Russian team, composed of nearly the same squad that won that controversial Olympic final 51-50 for the gold medal, continued their bruising brand of basketball and edged the U.S. All-Stars 78-76 to even the series at one game apiece.

"I disagree," responded U.S. Coach Bob Cousy. "Swen is not a dirty player.

"I have instructed my players to be as physical as they can be," Cousy said, "but we do not know how to be as physical as international rules will allow."

Tom Henderson of Hawaii, who played on the U.S. Olympic team, said, "They are very physical under the boards. I consider them a dirty basketball team but that's their style of play."

The United States took a slim 41-40 lead into the locker room after a bruising first half in which Coursy received a technical foul for protesting a call. Ron Behagen of Minnesota was ejected from the game in the second half for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Ernie DiGregorio of Providence got the U.S. team off to good start by firing in the first five points in the game before Russia fought back to take a 16-9 lead. The score was tied 10 times in the contest.

Ivan Dvorni paced the Soviets with 16 points before he fouled out with only 43 seconds gone in the second half. Aleksander Salnikov, a 6-6 forward, then got hot and tossed in 14 points in the next 13 minutes to give the Russians a 68-61 lead with 7:30 to play.

Oxley scored two quick layups to help bring the Americans back to a 70-70 tie with 5:58 remaining. The lead changed hands until Russia went on top for good at 78-76 with less than a minute to play.

DiGregorio, who ended with 15 points, came down and missed a 25-footer with 30 seconds left and then threw a pass out of bounds after the U.S. had recovered possession. The Soviets lost the ball again with one second remaining, setting up Oxley's final shot.

The series picks up in Albuquerque, N.M. on Wednesday night and moves to Indianapolis on Saturday, New York on May 7 and Baltimore on May 8.

Raiders, 49ers Face Tough Skeds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders both get acid tests in a hurry this season as the 49ers open the season at Miami Sept. 16 and then the Super Bowl Champs come to the Coliseum for the Raiders' home opener Sept. 23.

For those with short memories, Miami was the first team ever to sweep through a 14-game National Football League campaign and playoffs unbeaten last season.

Coach Dick Nolan of San Francisco did not seem too disturbed about the opener at the Orange Bowl but he was unhappy that the 49ers would go from the sunny climes of Florida into chilly Denver for their next game.

He also noted that the Prospectors play four division champions out of six. They themselves were No. 5 five and they don't meet the Raiders. But they face Washington, Green Bay and Pittsburgh, in addition to the Dolphins.

Oakland, which saw its season end on a miracle Pittsburgh touchdown by Franco Harris in last year's playoff, have to open at Minnesota, come home to face Miami and then call on Kansas City.

"Those three are the toughest we've ever had to open the schedule," said Raider coach John Madden.

The 49ers schedule: (preseason): July 28—New England at Canton, Ohio; Aug. 6—At Cleveland; Aug. 11—New York Jets at Tampa, Fla.; Aug. 19— San Diego; Aug. 26—Denver; Sept. 1—at Oakland; Sept. 7—at Los Angeles.

Regular season: Sept. 16—at Miami; Sept. 23—at Denver; Sept. 30-Los Angeles; Oct. 7—at Atlanta; Oct. 14—Minnesota; Oct. 21—New Orleans; Oct. 28—Atlanta; Nov. 4—at Detroit; Nov. 11-at Washington; Nov. 18—at Los Angeles; Nov. 26—Green Bay; Dec. 2—Philadelphia; Dec. 9—at New Orleans; Dec. 15—Pittsburgh.

Oakland's schedule (pre-season): Aug. 5—at Minnesota; Aug. 11-Dallas; Aug. 18—Los Angeles at Berkeley; Aug. 25—Minnesota; Sept. 1—San Francisco; Sept. 8—at Buffalo.

Regular season; Sept. 16—At Minnesota; Sept. 23—Miami; Sept. 30—at Kansas City; Oct. 7—at St. Louis; Oct. 14—San Diego; Oct. 22-at Denver; Oct. 28—at Baltimore; Nov. 4—New York Giants; Nov. 11—Pittsburgh; Nov. 18—Cleveland; Nov. 25—at San Diego; Dec. 2—at Houston; Dec. 8—Kansas City; Dec. 16-Denver.

NFL SCHEDULE

Miami To Open Against 49ers

NEW YORK (UPI) — West Coast opponents will play a key role in the world champion Miami Dolphins' run for National Football League records this season.

According to the 1973 National Football League schedule released Monday, the Dolphins, who last season became the first team to go through an NFL season unbeaten with a 17-0 record, could tie a record on Sept. 16 when they open at home against San Francisco and set one and tie another the following weekend when they take on the Raiders at Oakland.

A victory over San Francisco would tie the NFL record for consecutive victories at 18, set by the Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and again in 1941-42. A victory over Oakland the following week would give the Dolphins the record for consecutive wins and tie the record of 18 consecutive regular season triumphs, also set by the 1933-34 Bears.

Nineteen games will be televised nationally during the season, including 13 Monday night games. Both Super Bowl clubs — Miami and Washington —will be in action on national TV on Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 22).

OAKLAND ON ROAD

A's Odom To Pitch; Blue Rejoins Mates

Combined AP & UPI

MILWAUKEE — The Oakland Athletics' pitching staff, no longer manager Dick Williams' main concern, may grow on the road trip that begins here tonight.

"We hope Vida will be ready to pitch next Sunday in Cleveland. We'll try to get him one inning of relief work before then," said Williams.

If Blue isn't ready to start in Sunday's doubleheader, the A's may have to call up a pitcher from their Tucson farm club. Dave Hamilton, who won six games for the A's last year, is the most likely candidate and Chuck Dobson, sent to the minors after arm surgery, is a possibility.

Odom was the starter April 19 in Kansas City in a game the A's lost 16-8. Since then, the world champions have given up no more than four runs in a game and have won 6 of 10 outings.

Although the two clubs have comparable records, Milwaukee's 9-9 has the Brewers in second, a half-game out in the muddled American League East while Oakland's 9-11 puts the A's in next to last place in the more spreadout A.L. West.

One Man, One Coach Rule In Effect For Tom Cronin

By LEW CODDINGTON

Going through your entire varsity athletic career with only one coach has an advantage — after awhile, it becomes very easy to understand instructions.

The last two times Marin Catholic High School baseball coach Dave Gonsalves has sent pitcher Tom Cronin to the mound with orders like "get 'em out," Cronin has responded with a no-hitter and a two-hitter.

The two-hitter came Saturday night as the Wildcats beat San Rafael, 4-0, to keep the Bulldogs from moving into a tie for first in the Marin County Athletic League. It lowered his earned-run average to 0.66, best in the league, and earned him Independent-Journal Prep of the Week honors.

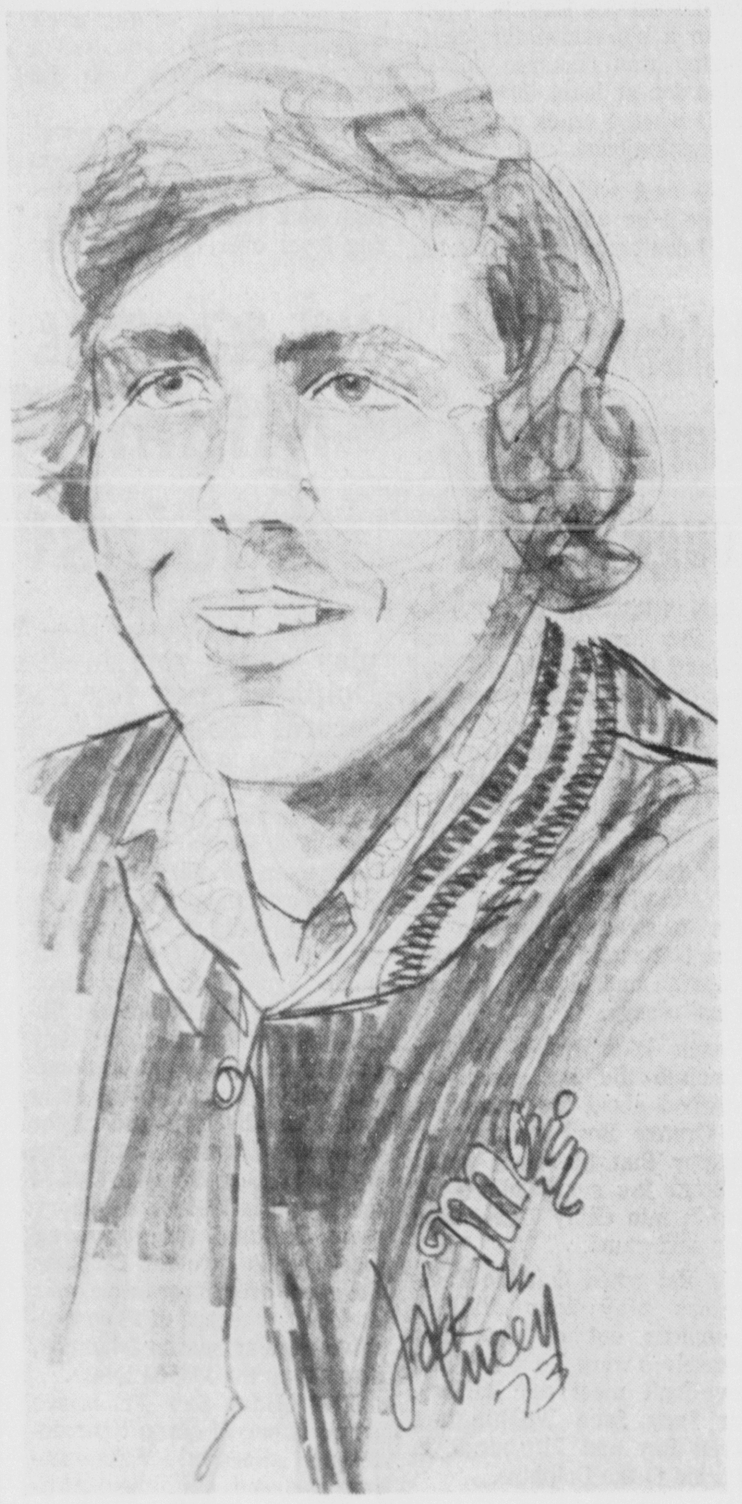
The no-hitter came the Saturday before, in the Soquel Boosters tournament down in Santa Cruz County, and naturally put him on the all-tournament team.

This is Cronin's first year on the varsity baseball team. Last year, he played junior varsity baseball, where his coach was Dave Gonsalves. He has played two years of varsity basketball — under Dave Gonsalves. He played one year of freshman basketball —under Dave Gonsalves. Since he is a junior, he will be back at both sports next year — expectedly under Dave Gonsalves.

Cronin first started playing baseball in the third grade. "Everybody was doing it, and my dad (Leo, a Fairfax lawyer) sort of pushed me into it," he explains.

His first pitching appearance was not exactly auspicious. "I got stuck in when we were losing, 15-4," he says. "My first pitch hit the umpire, who was dusting off home plate. I was nervous." He has improved since then, and this year has a 5-2 overall record and a 2.43 earned run average inflated by the fact that he gave up eight runs in the first inning he pitched. He has allowed three earned runs in his last 44⅓.

"Last year his breaking pitches were his best, but this year it's his fast ball," says Gonsalves. "He's really challenging the hitters. He's going to get better and better."



TOM CRONIN

(Independent-Journal sketch by Jack Lucey)

When not playing baseball or basketball (he was starting center on the Wildcats' surprising winter contenders), Cronin gravitates to the outdoors, liking to camp, fish and hike. "I'd like to go into forestry or conservation in some way," he says. "something in the mountains."

He intends to major in forestry or its equivalent in college, probably would continue to play baseball, but might drop basketball due to overlapping seasons. He has not yet made up his mind as to which college he will attend.

When he does show up on a collegiate diamond, however, he'll probably look around and half expect his coach to be Dave Gonsalves.

Supervising Police Capt. Jeremiah P. Taylor said the team, which will include plainclothesmen, would "protect citizens, survey conditions and determine what additional protection may be needed inside."

There have been many complaints of robberies and assaults in the stands since the season started.

And on April 18, concessional and program employes Union Local 468 threatened to set up a picket line at the stadium gates unless more protection was provided.

Lamar Signed By ABA; Cleveland Gets Brewer

Combined AP & UPI

SAN DIEGO — The American Basketball Association has its first draft choice in the fold today. Dwight Lamar signed yesterday a multi-year contract with the San Diego Conquistadors for an amount estimated at $600,000.

Lamar, who led the nation's collegians in scoring as a sophomore and junior, also had been drafted by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association.

As a senior last year, he dipped from his usual 36 points a game to only 28.9, concentrating more on playmaking and defense.

The Southwestern Louisiana University prospect denied rumors he had agreed to go with the ABA before the draft.

"I'm very happy to be playing in San Diego," Lamar said. "I'm pleased with the area and pleased to be playing for a coach like K. C. Jones, who will help teach me defense."

More Basketball

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association yesterday announced the signing of their No. 1 draft choice, Jim Brewer of Minnesota. Brewer, 6-9, was the second man chosen in the NBA draft. He was also drafted by the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Boxing

LOS ANGELES — Mexican welterweight Isaac Quintas, who crumpled to the canvas after losing a gruelling 10-round fight last week and was rushed to a hospital for brain surgery, is "improving steadily" at County-USC Medical Center.

Quintas, who underwent a three-hour operation to remove pressure from a blood clot on his brain early Friday morning, was taken off the critical list and removed from the intensive care unit yesterday. Hospital spokesmen said Quintas could possibly be released in two weeks.

Football

LOS ANGELES — Marty Brill, star halfback on Knute Rockne's undefeated Notre Dame football teams of 1929 and 1930, died yesterday at St. Vincent's Hospital from a heart attack. He was 67.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The St. Louis Cardinals announced today that quarterback Gary Keithley of the University of Texas at El Paso, the team's second-round draft choice, had signed a long-term contract.

Keithley, 22, is a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder who led the Miners in total offense and punting last year, completing 57.2 per cent of his passes for seven touchdowns and punted 70 times, averaging 42.6 yards per punt.

Baseball

NEW YORK — Jerry Koosman, a lefthanded pitcher for the New York Mets, has been named National League player of the week for the period of April 23-29, it was announced today by league president Charles S. Feeney.

Koosman pitched two complete game victories during the week, both on the road, and currently boasts a 4-0 record with a 1.06 earned run average.

Golf

NEW YORK — Lanny Wadkins, winner of last weekend's Byron Nelson Golf Classic, has moved into fourth place in the Professional Golfers Association weekly money winnings list with $75,682.

Non-Derby Hopeful Heads Lineup For Derby Trial

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Mr. Prospector headed a field of six scheduled to run today in the $20,000 added derby trial stakes at Churchill Downs but the speedy colt was prepping for the Preakness Stakes on May 19 rather than next Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby.

"As far as I'm concerned he's headed for the Preakness but I can't speak for the owner," said trainer Jimmy Croll who does plan to start Royal and Regal in the first of the Triple Crown races.

"Mr. Prospector is a nice colt but he hasn't been tested yet. I had no intention of bringing him here at all after he missed 10 days of training in Florida because of a fever. That threw him off schedule. He couldn't run in the Hutcheson and, because he missed that race, he had to miss the Fountain and Youth and then the Florida Derby," said Croll.

Gold Bag, Settecento, Crimson Falcon, I'm Guaranteed and Blue Chip Dan complete the field for the mile race. Vodika was scratched from the trial and the derby because of an attack of colic.

Only Gold Bag and Settecento were likely to come back in the Kentucky Derby.

Secretariat remained the strong favorite with Sham a highly regarded second choice. A one-sided vendetta surfaced Monday between their trainers with Frank (Pancho) Martin, who handles Sham, claiming he was slandered by Lucien Laurin, trainer of Secretariat.

"He called me a thief when he said 'the only way they can beat Secretariat in the Wood Memorial is to steal it,' " Martin said.

"That means Sham can't beat Secretariat unless I do something bad. Let me tell you, my reputation on the race track is a million percent honest. It was very cheap to say that about me," Martin said.

But Laurin denied he was referring to Martin but only expressing his confidence in Secretariat's ability, a confidence that was shaken when Angle Light won the Wood Memorial with Sham second and Secretariat third.

He, like Martin, was ready to settle the matter on the race course and said he not only was afraid of Sham but of "all of them."

That included Angle Light, also trained by Laurin; Knightly Dawn, also trained by Martin; Twice A Prince, Restless Jet, Impecunious, Warbucks, My Gallant, Shecky Greene, Our Native, Starkers, Navajo, Forego, Royal And Regal, also trained by Croll, and Gold Bag and Settecento from the trial field.

Trainer Lou Goldfine does not want to start Shecky Greene, winner of the Stepping Stone Purse on Saturday, but owner Joe Kellman may insist upon it. Forego may come out if he does not work satisfactorily either today or tomorrow or if the track is muddy on Saturday.

IN ABA PLAYOFFS

Leonard Lauds Gilmore

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore scored 29 points, grabbed 26 rebounds and blocked seven shots to help the Kentucky Colonels whip the Indiana Pacers 114-102 here last night in the American Basketball Association Championship series.

The two teams are tied at one win apiece in the best-of-seven competition.

But the 7-foot-2 giant says he has to do better.

"When we go up to Indianapolis for our next game Thursday night, I know I've got to get a few more rebounds, take a few more shots and take a few more charges," he said after the game at his locker. "I know that's what it's going to take to win."

Kentucky Coach Joe Mullaney credited the Colonels' simple "bread and butter" offense for the victory — getting the ball inside to Gilmore or Dan Issel and watching them put it in the hoop.

Issel had 28 points and 12 rebounds Monday night.

"It may not look very attractive, but it's what we do best," Mullaney said. "We tried freelancing during the first three weeks of the season but when that didn't work, we went back to our old standby of getting the ball in to the two big men.

"This is one of the things that should work to our advantage because Indiana doesn't try to force you out of your normal patterns the way Carolina and Virginia did in our earlier playoffs," he added.

The Colonels lost Rick Mount, their outstanding outside shooter, in the second quarter when he limped off the court with a sprained ankle. It reduced their backcourt corps to two fulltime guards — Louis Dampier and Jim O'Brien — with swingmen Walt Simon and Pierre Russell for use in an emergency.

"I hope we'll have Rick back by Thursday night," Mullaney said.

Softball Results

Red Hill Shell defeated Mainline Nine, 2-1, and Independent Electric was awarded a forfeit victory over Thirty-Nine Main last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league games at Albert Field.

IN STANLEY CUP FINALS

Black Hawks To Come Back, Canadiens' Bowman Predicts

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman, with one victory in the Stanley Cup finals under his belt, predicts the Chicago Black Hawks will "come back and be hard to stop" in tonight's second game.

The Canadiens scored an easy 8-3 victory over the Black Hawks in Sunday's series opener, including four tallies in the final period.

"The Hawks will regroup," Bowman said. "They'll sell themselves that Sunday was just one game and even though we forced them to give up that early 2-0 lead, they know that they're in the finals and teams like that never get down.

"They were so strong against the Rangers that they'll come back and be hard to stop."

Montreal's all-star goalie Ken Dryden echoed the sentiments of his coach. "A team like Chicago will come back and won't let those eight goals bother them," Dryden said.

"They usually play with a difficult style to defense against and I'm sure they'll use it in the second game and play differently than they did in the opener."

Dryden, who as a rookie two years ago led his team to a Stanley Cup victory against the Black Hawks, said he felt Chicago did not use its basic style Sunday.

"From now on they'll play tight and just wait for their breaks," the netminder said. "They'll certainly try to slow down the pace of the game."

Although the opener was expected to be a goalie's battle, there were few outstanding defensive moves. Dryden allowed two of the first three shots against him to score and Black Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito, who boasted a 1.55 goals against playoff average going into the finals, fell apart in the third period, allowing four quick goals.

Defenseman Bob Murdoch, who sat out the opener, is expected to dress for tonight's game. However, veteran rear guard Jacques Laperriere is hospitalized with a broken nose and severe groin injury. He is not expected to play for the next few games.

"I'd like to use twelve forwards to match up against their four lines," Bowman said. "But it all depends on the momentum of the game — that's the important thing for us."

After tonight's game the clubs will move to Chicago for game three on Thursday and game four on Sunday afternoon. If a fifth game is necessary it will be played in Montreal May 8.

Mount Tam Netters Top Marin Academy

Peter Morris defeated Henry Jacobson in first singles, 6-0, 7-5, and Mount Tamalpais School of Ross went on to whitewash Marin Academy of San Rafael, 5-0, in a tennis match held yesterday at Mount Tam's courts.

Other winners for Mount Tam (6-2) were Eric Chilton and Preston Sargent in singles and the teams of John Way-Greg Hartman and Miles Albert-Dave Stevenson in doubles.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

First Day Anglers After The 'Big One'

When trout season opened last Saturday most of the first day anglers were kids all looking for that "big one." Warden Russ Ild and I started the morning off by checking the Paper Mill Creek areas.

The first angler checked with a limit, the biggest fish being a fat 10-incher, was Ted Kemp of San Rafael. His age is 10 and he was a happy kid. His dad Ed and his big brother Rich had four to go for their limits.

WE THEN CHECKED the Taylor Park hole where we had planted the 30,000 yearling salmon and the 10,000 yearling steelhead a month ago. We had been worried that the fish hadn't gone to sea as they should have, to return in two years as 10-pound adults. Our worries were for naught. Ten anglers and most of them were kids, were having their problems catching the very few fish that hadn't left. Just about all had gone to sea. That's good news for the salmon and steelhead anglers of the future.

We had checked about 36 anglers with most of the fish being somewhat small. We spotted this old time angler working the deeper potholes under the brush on Paper Mill Creek near Lagunitas, and near the deeper submerged rocks. The angler was Joe Bianchi of Forest Knolls, a guy who started fishing with me when I was a kid. He was putting his past youthful knowledge to good use. He had one fish that measured about 13 to 14 inches, and some others that were respectable sized trout in any man's league.

You just can't beat that old know-how. No steelheads were checked though with so much rain, most of the big spawners had ample water for their return trip to the sea.

PLANTS OF catchable sized trout are scheduled through this week at Rodeo Lagoon and Bon Tempe, Lagunitas, Phoenix and Stafford reservoirs. In Solano county, Lake Chabot will be stocked. In Napa county Hennessey reservoir has plants scheduled. Also in Sonoma County, Lake Ralphine and Spring Lake, and in Mendocino county, Cleone Lake and the East Branch of the Russian River.

Several other seasons will be going full swing this week because tide is right. Starting Wednesday at 5:52 a.m. (DST) there will be the start of a series of the first big minus tides of the season. Next Saturday the minus tide will be a whopping -1.6 at 8:25 a.m. and Sunday a-1.4 at 9:19 a.m. These are prime abalone and clam tides, and the rock fisherman and eel poke polers will have their days right for them. You should carefully check the Sport Fishing Regulations booklet from Section 51 through 58 for closures of areas and certain species of sea life.

FOR INSTANCE, Duxberry Reef has closures on many types of sea life. Estero De Limantour and the Point Reyes Headlands are reserves where no forms of marine life can be taken. The laws on tidal invertibrates are also more restrictive in state parks and in the Point Reyes National Seashore Recreation Area. Bolinas Lagoon, though full of clams, is still closed by the state and county health departments.

On May 1, the annual quarantine on mussels goes into effect. This year could be a particularly dangerous one for the red tide and its effects on mussels. The red tide danger doesn't affect the muscle meat of abalones, but it is recommended that only the white parts of the clam meat should be used. The stomach contents of clams should be considered dangerous. The flesh of all fish is considered to be perfectly safe.

SALMON FISHING has still been a hit and miss propositon. Party boat loggings for March show that 9,684 salmon were landed for that month compared to figures close to 30,000 last year in March. Only 144 stripers and 32 sturgeon were logged. It really proves that March, with its heavy winds and big runoffs of rain, was a tough month for the bay and ocean anglers. Some 6,338 rockfish were logged, so I guess Jach Ellis the skipper of The Blue Horizon party boat was on the ball.

Green Light On At Indy 500 Practice

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The green light was on at practice for the May 28 running of the Indianapolis "500" as the 180 miles per hour speed limit was lifted about noon Monday.

Most of the drivers expected to have the horsepower and skill to crack the 200 m.p.h. barrier for one lap have yet to shake down their cars.

But the mounts of three-time winner A.J. Foyt, Houston, and the stable of Vel's-Parnelli Jones, which includes two-time winner Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., and 1969 race victor Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., were expected to arrive at the track today.

Since the track opened last Saturday, only four drivers have been over 180 m.p.h.,and two of them, Mike Hiss, Tustin, Calif., and Mike Mosley, Clermont, Ind., paid $25 fines for exceeding the temporary speed limit imposed by chief steward Harlan Fengler.

Mosley had top Monday, 184.955, with Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., just behind at 183.599. Bettenhausen's speed came in the new McLaren built car for Penski racing teammate Bobby Allison, the Nascar ace from Hueytown, Ala. He has been shaking the car down for Allison.

Allison, who is a rookie at Indianapolis because he has never driven in the Memorial Day classic, reached 181.087 as he finished the fourth and final stage of his rookie test.

Mosley, who was fined Saturday for exceeding the speed limit, still owns fast time at practice a lap over 185-plus.

Joelle In The Swim At Lowell

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joelle Soanes has made swimming practice more fun for the Academic Athletic Association, which until recently was restricted to males.

The 17-year-old Lowell High School senior was permitted to swim in practices and noncompetitive meets after she applied to varsity coach Bill Feiling in March.

A suit was nearly filed with the California Interscholastic Federation which prohibited girls from competing with boys. The CIF, however, changed its rule, effective July 1, to allow coed competition—even in football.

For Miss Soanes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Soanes, the rule change comes too late. She'll have graduated and plans to pursue a career in the health field.

However, she doesn't regret practicing with 30 boys three times a week and her presence apparently didn't affect the team.

"The boys were really nice," she said. "They always rooted and clapped for me and were quite encouraging."

Slump Troubles Braves' Aaron

By DAVID MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron is fighting back the panic, but we can't hide the concern.

If this were 10 years ago, or even five years ago, Aaron would laugh off a .125 batting average as "just a slow start."

But Hank Aaron is 39 years old and the lurking possibility that he may not be able to hike that meager average very much is no laughing matter.

The one saving grace has been that Aaron is still hitting home runs and if he continues to close in on Babe Ruth's record, few will worry about that batting average.

Through the Braves first 20 games, one-eighth of the way through the season, Aaron had five homers and a career total of 678, 36 shy of the Ruth record.

The Braves, who need Aaron's homers to hypo sagging attendance, point out that in five previous seasons when he had five homers in that span, he wound up with from 38 to 47 for the entire year.

Aaron, who came into this season with a 19-year major league batting average of .311, admits he is "embarrassed" by his early season failure.

But he is not convinced that the slump will continue. He feels that he may have taken it a bit too easy in spring training and thus is "behind schedule."

Anyway, Aaron, who had 3,000 hits as his prime goal until he reached that mark a few years ago, is now concentrating on catching Ruth.

"I don't know that I will ever hit .300 again, or even .270," said Aaron who hit .265 last season after batting .327 the year before.

"But I'm convinced I can still drive in runs and still help this ball club," continued Aaron who has said he would "not want to hang around when I no longer contribute. Given a choice between hitting .300 or catching Ruth, I'll go for those 714 homers every chance I get."

Opposing clubs, aware that Hank Aaron is strictly a pull hitter, have been using an exaggerated shift to cut off hits through the left side of the infield.

This is the same sort of thing designed more than 20 years ago against Ed Williams and, like Williams, Aaron refuses to hit to the opposite field to break it up.

"It would mean changing my entire hitting style," insisted Aaron. "It would mean bringing the bat back down where I could control my direction with a loss in power.

"I really wouldn't hit anything like that.

"I'm simply unwilling, at this late date, to sacrifice my power and take a chance on a new hitting stance just because other teams are shifting on me," said Aaron. "That's what they would like me to do."

Aaron insists he isn't letting the pressures attendant to chasing Ruth's record affect him.

"I don't mind all the interviews, all the questions," said Aaron. "Actually, people have been very kind to me. I suppose being in Atlanta gives me an advantage in that regard over the problems Roger Maris faced in New York the year he hit 61 home runs.

"I can see, with so many people coming at you in New York, where it might get you down. It's not that way in Atlanta.

Gal Netters Back Pact

SEA PINES, S.C. (AP) — The off-the-court contest between the Virginia Slims circuit and the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association is apparently over. And the results have opened the way for future on-court contests between the likes of Billie Jean King and Chris Evert.

The World's Professional Tennis Players' Association announced Monday that the players on the Virginia Slims circuit had approved an agreement with the USLTA by which the remaining 1973 Slims circuit tournaments would be sanctioned.

About 60 circuit players would be eligible to compete in the national championships including the French Open, Wimbledon, and Forest Hills, and the circuit would be sanctioned within the 1974 USLTA schedule.

Because the Virginia Slims circuit had been declared ineligible by the USLTA to compete in those events, the younger USLTA players such as Miss Evert and Evonne Goolagong had been unable to compete against Virginia Slims veterans such as Mrs. King, Francoise Durr and Nancy Richey Gunter.

"We are delighted that it has been possible to work out this agreement," Mrs. King said. "As players, we are glad now to have this opportunity to participate in all the tournaments."

Wednesday Action

The gymnasium at Drake High School in San Anselmo will be open for adults on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9:30 instead of Tuesdays, it was announced today by Bob Fitzhenry, physical education department chairman at Drake.

Proposed Tax Reforms Said Ineffective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional liberals are complaining that the administration's n e w tax proposals fail to close any existing tax "loopholes" benefiting the rich.

They said such loopholes allow corporations and the rich to escape paying $60 billion in taxes each year.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz promised that the White House would consider any anti-loophole proposals Congress can devise, but he refused to propose any on his own initiative.

Shultz's chief proposal—presented to Congress Monday'– was to increase by a modest $800 million the taxes that are paid on income which benefits from preferential treatment in the tax code—loophole income.

Under his plan, a doctor with $100,000 in taxable medical income could use the "paper losses" provided by tax shelters - hobby farming or real estate, for example—to shelter from taxation only $100,000 of income. There is no limit today to how much a taxpayer can benefit from tax shelters.

An example Shultz provided in his testimony Monday before the House Ways and Means Committee cites a taxpayer with oil investments, plus $175,000 in earnings, and $100,000 in profits from sale of stocks.

Under current law, his taxes would be $45,358—a tax rate of 16 per cent, or about the same rate as a $10,000-a-year secretary pays.

Under the change Shultz proposed, the tax would be $64,620—a rate of about 23 per cent.

Shultz also proposed what some saw as a new loophole—a tax credit of up to 12 per cent for investors in firms which explore for domestic sources of oil.

"I'm surprised," said Rep. William J. Green, D-Pa. He said the Treasury had ignored "tremendous inequities" uncovered by the committee in hearings which started early in February.

"The mountain has roared and produced a mouse," Green said.

"Tax reform, my eye!" said Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., in a statement which promised a floor fight.

Minister, 87, Hurt; Knocked Down By Dogs

An elderly Mill Valley minister was knocked down by two playing dogs yesterday and sent to the hospital with a broken right hip.

Rev. John Pennell, 86, of 71 Thalia Street, was reported in satisfactory condition today at French Hospital in San Francisco. A spokesman said a pin was placed in his fractured hip during surgery yesterday and he is doing "as well as can be expected."

Police said Pennell was walking along Sunnyside Avenue about 10:40 a.m. yesterday when two dogs playing in a yard ran onto the sidewalk, bumping into him and knocking him down.

Pennell, who is semiretired, sometimes assists at the Holy Innocents Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera, his granddaughter said.

Nothing Taken From School

Mill Valley police said today whoever broke into Tamalpais High School over the weekend apparently didn't take anything.

Police also said they have yet to learn what was taken from the office of Don L. Dimitratos, city director of parks and recreation. His office at the Community Recreation Center, 180 Camino Alto, was ransacked Sunday.

Yemeni Airliner Crash Kills Several Government Officials

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Yemeni airliner crashed in a remote region of South Yemen late Monday, killing the country's foreign minister and 24 other government officials, Beirut Radio said today.

The other officials included South Yemen's ambassadors to the Soviet Union, Britain, Iraq, Lebanon and Somalia and the South Yemeni representative at the Arab League, the broadcast said.

The radio said an official statement issued in Aden announced the crash.

It did not give the cause of the crash.

The radio, quoting South Yemen Information Minister Abdallah Al-Khamiri, said the plane went down while on a domestic flight about 290 miles north of Aden.

That placed the crash in desert country in the extreme northeast of South Yemen, not far from the Saudi Arabian and Oman frontiers.

The official Aden statement did not say how many persons were aboard the plane or whether any survived the crash.

Beirut newspapers said the ambassadors killed in the crash were summoned to Aden recently for one of their normal periodic consultations with the foreign minister.

South Yemen has the first and only Marxist regime in the Arab world. It became independent Nov. 30, 1967, after 128 years of British rule.

Last autumn, South Yemen clashed with the Yemen Arab Republic, its large neighbor to the north, in three months of border fighting. Under an agreement signed with north Yemen in Libya last November that ended the fighting the two countries agreed to work towards unification.

Bridges Says His Union Is No Longer Satisfied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — West Coast longshore leader Harry Bridges warned Monday that his union is ready to strike for cost-of-living pay hikes and against federal wage controls in next eight months.

Bridges, 71, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), told its 20th biannual convention "the principle we must operate on now is that we are never satisfied."

He announced a change in union policy on contract lengths and cost-of-living clauses for negotiations in the next eight months on contracts covering longshoremen, warehousemen and pineapple and fruit packing workers on the West Coast and Hawaii.

"From here on in, we're not going to allow any long term contracts unless the rank-and-file allows it," Bridges said. "We're going to build into contracts in the future cost-ofliving increases.

"We've always avoided that in the past as a matter of principle. But we don't want to give the idea that we're satisfied with what we've got now. The principle that we must operate on now is that we are never satisfied."

'Clean Look' In Hair Seen

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Long hair is on the way out—the clean look is back in. At least that's the word from the Pennsylvania Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association.

"Long hair and dress styles which looked as if the clothing had been borrowed are out," he said.

Rick, who was the only American to win a silver medal at the world "Olympics" of hair styling in Spain last fall, said the new cuts will be cut with scissors. Razor cuts are out, he said.

Take away your filter and what've you got?

That's all well and good. The filter is an important part of your cigarette. (We know. We give you the most famous one of all: the Kent Micronite filter.)

But how many cigarettes have something to say about the other end? The tobacco end. The part that gives you what you smoke for... taste.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

24 quality tobaccos are blended into each Kent. And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find them.

We also insist upon the lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent. They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top of the plant.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobacco as we do on our famous filter.

Because without either one, we couldn't give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

King Size or Deluxe 100's.

Kings: 17 mg. "tar," 1.1 mg. nicotine; 100's: 19 mg. "tar," 1.3 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Feb. '73.
